From Graham's Magazine November.

BY MRS. JULIA C. R. DOTR. Fie upon thee, November! thou dost ape
The airs of thy young sisters;—thou hast stolen
The witching smile of May to grace thy lip.
And Apri's rare, capricious loveliness
Thou'rt trying to put on! Dost thou not know
Such freaks do not become thee? Thou should be Such freaks do not become thee? Thou shoul A staid and sober matron, quietly Laying aside the follies of thy youth, And robing thee in that calm dignity Meet for the handmaid of the dying year. But ah! thou art a sud coquette, although The frost of age is on thee! Thou dost sport With every idle breeze that wooeth thee; And toy and frolick with the aged leaves That fluiter round thee; and unto the low, Soft murmur of the proceeds.

oft murmur of the brooklet, thou dost lend A willing ear; and crowning thy pale brow With a bright coronet, that thou hast woven With a bright coronel, that thou hast woven of the stray sunbeams summer left behind,
Thou dost bend o'er it lovingly, and strive
To answer in a cadence clear and sweet
As springs first whispers! In the valleys now
Greet thee no longer when thou wanderest forth,
Through the dim forest; and yet thou dost smile,
And selve as lightly extended. d skip as lightly o'er the withered grass, if thou hadst not decked thee in the robes As if thou hadst not decked thee in the root That thy dead sister's wore in festal hours!

A Patriot's Prayer.

Many years ago, on a well remembered occasion when the Union was undergoing one of those tests which threatened to rend it in twain, DANIEL WEB-STER closed one of the most soul-stirring speeches he ever delivered, with the following sentiments: "When my eyes for the last time shall be raised glorious, Union; upon States dissevered, discordant, belligerent; upon a land rent with civil feuds, and and drenched, it may be in traternal blood. Let heir last feeble and lingering gaze behold the glo ious ensign of the Republic, now known and hor red throughout the earth, still full high advanced not one stripe erased or polluted, not one star of scured, but streaming in all their original lustre, and bearing for its motto no such miserable inter-rogation as 'What is all this worth?' nor those of the words of delusion and folly, 'Liberty first, and Union afterward;' but everywhere, spread all over characters of living light, blazing on all its ample folds, as they float over the sea and over the land, and in every wind under the whole heavens, that other sentiment, dear to every true American heart, Liberty and Union, now and forever, one and insensable 2: and inseparable.
