Time rolls away, and bears along A mingled mass of right and wrong; The flowers of love that bloomed bes The margin of his summer tide: The poison weeds of passion, torn From dripping banks, and headlong borne Into that unhorizoned sea Which mortals call eternity.

Noiseless and rapid as a dream, For ever flows the widening stream, While every wave or transient flower, Throws up a weed and takes a flower. The isle of life, that seemed to be A continent infinity, Grows bleaker, narrower day by day, And channelled by a salter spray.

Like shipwrecked men who closelier flock To the bare summit of the rock, When the loud storm that wrecked them flings Billow on billow from his wings,— We climb from youth's wave-rippled strand With colder heart and feebler hand Up the gray rock of age, whose peak Time's mounting billows surge and seek.

There from the barren top espy.
A girth of tears,—an ashen sky,
Bowed heads, dead hearts and palsied feet Up age's pinnacle retreat; And the dull tide that swells below Pursues them with a steady flow;
The rock is hid,—the waves beat high—
AND, LO!—AN OCEAN AND A SKY!

Our Major's Story.

A pleasant man, though rather addicted to snuff major. He is tall; and has round stoopin shoulders, which some of us don't consider at all

Our major, after the fashion of most halfpay of ficers, is often, according to our national saying, "like a Waterford merchant, very busy with nothing to do."

His snuff-box, his newspaper, his garden, and his dog, would serve but indifferently to fill the long hours of a summer day, were it not for that valuable resource,—and let stern philosophers, whether in trowsers, petticoats, or bloomers, say what they will, it is a valuable, and by no means exclusively feminine resource,—cosy, gossiping chit-chat. Our major is a thorough, but most harmless gossip.

It is, however, in telling stories that the major shines. As the public at large cannot be supposed equally well instructed in these legends, I will recount one which never fails to answer the word "ex-

"So Brown, you tell me, has been appointed ex ecutor to Smith's will," said the major the day, as we were lounging together against the low, sea-washed wall that divides Carlisle Ferrace from to him won't be as strange as mine were the fir-t time I was made executor.

Some years since, I received a letter from my old friend and comrade, Ellis, of the—th, telling me that his health had been for some time declining .teat he was about to make his will, and earnestly desired that I would consent, to act as his sole executor, "tnere being, he added, a 'trust of some importance to be undertaken, which I wish to confide to no one but yourself." The letter concluded with a cordial invitation to pay him a visit at the snug cottage in Devorshire to which he had retired.— Now Ellis was like myself—an old bachelor; and except his half pay was, I know, but little burden-ed with this world's baggage and accourtements; so it never occurred to me that the trust I was to un-dertake could possibly relate to anything more important than the bestowal of legacies on his old housekeeper and butler, or his almost equally anti-quated cat and dog. I wrote immediately to ac-cept the invitation, and early next morning I deposited myself and my port-manteau in the E—cosch, which, after a day's travelling left me at my destination. A pretty vine covered cottage was my friend's abode, and he was himself standing at the garden wicket, ready to give me a cordial welcome.

There was nothing very death-like in the clear bright glance of his eye, or in the firm grasp of his hand; and I mumbled internally what the missive he had sent me could possibly mean. However, I kept my thoughts to myself, and followed Ellis in-to his neat little dining room, where the snowy tablecloth was speediy and satisfactorily covered with a dish of fried soles, a pair of boiled chickens, with a tissi of rifed soles, a pair of totaled enterens, their snowy breasts gleaming amid fresh green parsley and butter, a juicy ham, and a dish of tender young peas. Ample justice was done to the fare by mysell, and despite of his mortuary intention, by mine host also. After dinner he produced a capital bottle of port, are which we discussed record. tal bottle of port, over which we discussed many of our former campaigning adventures.

'I mean that la 'tooth—an unfortunate tooth has been my ruin, and will cost me my life!' And rising from his chair, he paced up and down the room in a state of the most violent agitation. Laying these articles on the table he seated himself in his arm chair, pushed aside his glass, and making a strong effort to speak calmly, began.—About two months since I had occasion to visit the town of T——on business, which having speedily despatched, I dined at the hotel, and afterwards set oll I passed through the High stree and walked for some way along the turnpike road without meeting any object of interest whatever.— A shady green lane opening on my right, invited me to turn into it—the fragrant bawthorn in the hedge, and the cool fresh grass below, offering a pleasant contrast to the hard, dusty road on which I had been walking. I soon found that this quiet lane led to a still more quiet and peaceful church-yard. And threading my way amongst the rustic graves, and rule headstones, I moralized on them graves, and rube headstones, I moralized on them after my, own fashion, if not precisely according to that of Harvey. I had at one time a transient fancy for the study of phrenology, and still retained a habit of inspecting the cerebral developements of revery one I met. It was, therefore, with some curiosity that I picked up a large, round, well-bleached skull lying jon the ground. What particularly interested me, however, was the great beauty and regularity of the teeth; they were all perfect, and evenly ranged as if they had been prepared to decreate the window of some advertising dentiat. Led by an idle impulse, which I could not then, no can I now account for, I pulled out one of the grind ers, put it into my waistcoat pocket, and, carelessly throwing down the skull, returned to the inn. 'The extremity of terror restored my voice.
'Would it it not do, sir, to restore your own tooth

'No, no!' replied my visitor, shaking his head until the gold spectacles slipped down to the very point of his long nose. 'I think I'm a very good natured fellow to give you the choice; so which will you part with—your life or tooth?'

'M' techt!' I exclaimed, in agony; and instantly

It was strange, said Ellis, without noticing my remark, that after such an agitating occurrence, I fell asleep, and slept soundly until late next morning. I awoke feverish as possible, very thankful that the road did not pass within the churchyard. Ever since that time my health has slowly but surely declined, not perhaps, outwardly, but I know and feel that my hour will soon come, and the dread of that fiend's vengeance will embitter my dying moments, unless you, my old friend, will promise to see me buried in T——churchyard, and with your own hand to place this miserable tooth in my coffin.

I remained with him for a few days, and had the pleasure of leaving him, as I trusted, in better health and spirits than when we met—and I hoped that this absurd fancy, as I deemed it, would soon pass away. I was therefore greatly shocked and pass away. Need I say that I hastened to obey the summon Very mournful it was, certainly, to enter the silent cottage where I had so lately met a warm welcome from my poor friend. A physician was in atten-dance, and was pronounced that death had resulted from disease of the heart. He, the clergy man of the parish, and Ellis' solicitor, were all, at my request, present at the opening of the will. After having disposed of his trifling property in legacies, the docdisposed of his trining property in legacies, the doc-ument went on to request that I, whom he styled his beloved friend, should have him decently buried in T—— churchyard, and followed in all matters connected with his interment the instructions pre-

After dinner I was suddenly attacked by an old enemy—toothache; and the pain, resisting all the usual applications of brandy, camphor, hot fiannel, &c., became at length so violent and excruciating, that, starting up in a sort of fren-zy, I inquired for the residence of the best dentist with the town, and speedily found myself in his study. Whether it was the effect of reaction of the rapid exercise I had taken, or the well known curative nfluence inherent in the atmosphere of a dentist's elt almost inclined to make a civil retreat, without outting his skill to the test. However, on second houghts, I considered it as well to lay my case beore him, and try to obtain some soothing nostrum hich might stand me in stead on future occasions. ally mentioned my having come a long journey that morning, and its melancholy cause. Ah! said the dentist, thoughtfully, "you came from E—, in Devonshire. The name of that village is associated in my mind with a curious incident which occurred to me some three months since! Now I have a decided hankering, whether natural or acquired, after strange stories; and my curiosity being excited I begged the dentist to have the kindness to

Seating himself opposite to me, he immediately complied and began in these words:—
'One night, between three and four months since I was aroused near midnight by a loud knocking and ringing at the door. I was just about to step into bed, and my servants having long before retired to their rooms, I had hastily resumed my clothes, and answered the summons. An elderly gentleman with a military air and address entered. There was an odd staring look in his eyes, but he There was an odd, staring look in his eyes, but he told me in a perfectly coherent manner, that he was suffering from a dreadful toothache, and wished to have one of his grinders extracted immediately. Of course I ushered him into this room, placed him in the patient's chair, and proceeded to examine his jaws. I don't think I ever saw a finer or more regular set of teeth—not a vestige of decay could I perceive in any of them—and the one which he pointed out as the offender, seemed to be perfectly free from disease. However, he insist ed so strongly on having the tooth pulled out, de claring that his comfort, nay, his very life, dependen on its being done, that I consented, though most unwillingly, to perform the operation, and in a twinkling the tooth was out. Having paid me my fee, the patient deliberately wrapped up his tooth, put it into his pocket, rose, and wishing me good night, was about to depart, when a suspicion which arose in my mind caused me suddenly to thrust a lighted in my mind caused me suddenly to thrust a lighted candle to his eyes. They never blinked; the pupils the Lancaster Bank. were fixed and distended; in fact, to cut the story Nov. 20, 1849. short, my visitor was fast asleep, and in a fit of som-nambulism had left his bed, and caused me to ex-tract his excellent tooth. As he still continued in the trance, and it would have been dangerous to arouse him suddenly, I prevailed on him to allow me to accompany him home. He made his way with unerring accuracy to the hotel; and the gates happening to be open for the reception of the occuants of a night coach, I was able to see him to his nom without attracting observation.

On inquring after him next morning, I heard nat he had left by an early conveyance for E-your visitor?

Yes,' replied the dentist. 'He took the blank back of a letter from his pocket, and tore off the corner to wrap up his tooth; the remainder he dropped, and it bore the address:—'Capt. H Ellis,—the Regiment, E.—, Devonshire.'

Here then was the explanation of my poor friend's monomania. He actually died the victim of somnambulism. And such was my first adventure as executor of a will.

Runaway Marriages.

There is a great amount of good sober truth in the following remarks from the New York Tribune, upon runaway matches, which usually form the staple of modern stories and romances, where they are represented as something exceedingly spirited and proper in the lady. Rightfully considered, they are neither, for as the Tribune says:

In a great majority of cases her elopement is un-wise, giddy, ungrateful, immodest, and evinces a lascivious appetite and reckless disposition. Why should she desert and distress those who have loved, nurtured and cherished her through all her past years, to throw herself into the arms of a comparative stranger, who has done nothing for her, and whose protestations of affection have yet to undergo the first trial? It is every way unworthy of pure and gentle maidenhood to do so. We cannot imagine but one excuse for her elope-ment, namely, the efforts of parents or guardians to coerce her into marrying some one she does not love. To avoid such a fate she is justified in running away, for no parent has, or ever had a right to constrain a daugater to marry against her will. But where the parents are willing to wait, the daughassented to or she attains her legal majority. Then, if she chooses to marry in opposition to her parents wishes, let her quit their home openly, frankly, in broad daylight, and in such manner as shall kindly but utterly preclude any pretense that her act is clandestine or ill considered. No one should be persuaded or coerced to marry where she does not love; but to wait a year or two for the assent of those who have all her life done what they could for her welfare, no daughter should esteem a hardship.

There is some truth to be told about the "common-run" of masculine prowlers by night about garden-walls and under bed-room windows, in quest of opportunities to pour seducing flatteries into the ears of simple misses; but we have not time to tell It was a pity the good spectre was not satisfied it now. As a general rule they, are licentious, good for nothing adventurers, who would much rather tooth is so exactly the same size and shape as your others, that I think it would have exactly filled the after a year or two. A true man would not advise, less urge, a woman to take a step which must inevitably lessen the respect felt for her, and violate the trust reposed in her by those who have loved and cherished her all her days.

The physician was called a number of times to visit the family of a farmer living out of the vil-lage. For more than a month some member of the family, and most of the time two or three, were under the doctor's care. At length one died, leav-ing three very sick. The physician became con-vinced that there must be some local cause.— He communicated his convictions to the family -A search was made, but nothing discovered .-The doctor still insisted that the sickness cause-less did not come. Another search resulted in the true cause. A large quantity of half eaten pota-toes, mixed with the excrement of rats, had tallen through the bottom of the potato bin, and, by the aid of heat and moisture, was undergoing the pu-trefactive fermentation. The odor from this mass was so very offensive as to cause vomiting on the part of the man who attempted to remove it

No doubt is now entertained by the physician of the family that this decaying vegetable matter was the principal if not the sole cause of the sickness.

Ought not tarmers and all housekeepers to be extremely cautious to remove vegetable matter from the cellar early in the spring? Ought not more caution to be used in abating nuisances, by the apclosed to place the tooth within it, and having com-plied with the strange whim of my poor friend, I spouts, vaults, and the like? Ought not every cel-prepared the next morning, with a heavy heart, to and the walls whitewashed?

The French Empress.

The London Atlas of a late date says: "It is i vain that she essays her most winning manners and her brightest smiles, upon the gazing crowds who watch her passage; not a sound, an acclama-tion ever greets her approach. At the hall of the Senate? she walked round the rooms, and bowed and smiled to all, but none returned her friendly saluta-tion—none cried "God bless her!" and she returned to her seat, the brilliant throne of velvet and o gold, with a pale cheek and a more saddened coun-tenance. At the review, likewise, she rode in front of the troops all down the lines, endeavoring to witch the men with that wonderous horsemanship for which she is so famous, and for which the dan-dies of London and Paris have often told her she would be irresistable; but here she had to do with sterner stuff; although she dashed up and down, and even saluted military fashion, by putting her hand to the greet she wore in compliment to the army, not a sign of acknowledgement or admira-tion escaped the men, and she withdrew, mortified to ride slowly by the Emperor's side during the rest of the review. These things would tend to prove that those prophets were right who declared that, for a Duchess de Teba and a grandee of Spain, Mdlle. de Montijo had made but a sorry marriage

Many troubled with ringing in the ears and head when asleep, great nervousness, being alarmed at sudden sounds, and bashfulness, with frequent blushing, attended, sometimes, with de-rangement of mind, were cured immediately. TAKE PARTICULAR NOTICE Dr. J. addresses all those who have injured themselves by private and improper indulgencies, that secret and solutary habits, which run both body and mind, unfitting them for either busines or society.

These are some of the sad and melancholy ef fects produced by early habits of youth, viz Weakness of the back and limbs, Pains in the head Weakness of the back and limbs, Pains in the head, Dimness of Sight, Loss of Muscular Power, Palpitation of the Heart, Dyspepsia, Nervous Irritability, Derangement of the Digestive Functions, General Debility, Symptoms of Consumption, &c. Mentally.—The fearful effects on the mind are much to be dreaded: Loss of Memory, Confusion of Ideas, Depression of Spirils, Evil of Foreboding, Aversion of Society, Selt Distrust, Love of Solitude, Timidity, &c. are some of the evils produced.

Solitude, Timidity, &c. are some of the evils produced NERVOUS DEBILITY.

Weakness of the system, Nervous Debility and premature decay generally arises from the destructive habit of youth, that solitary practice so fatal to the healthful existence of man, and it is the young who are the most apt to become its Victims from an ignorance of the dangers to which they subject themselves. Parents and Guardians are often nisled with respect to the cause or source of disease in their sons and wards. Alas! how often do they ascribe to other causes the wasting of the frame, Palpitation of the Heart, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Derangement of the Nervous System, Cough and Symptoms of Consumption, also those serious Mental effects, such as loss of Memory, Depression of Spirits or peculiar fits of Melancholy, when the truth is they have been caused by indulging Pernicious but alluring practices, destructive to both Body and Mind. Thus are swept from existence thousands who might have been of use to stence thousands who might have been of use to their country, a pleasure to their friends, an orna ment to society.

Another Scientific Wonder! GREAT CURE FOR DYSPEPSIA!

The True Digestive Finid or Gastric Juice

PREPARED from Renner, or the fourth Stomach of the Ox, after directions of Baron Lierality the great Physiological Chemist, by J. S. Hough's Jon, M. D., Philadelphia, Pa.

This is a truly wonderful remedy for Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Jaundice, Liver Complaint, Constipation, and Debility, curing after Nature's own method, by Nature's own Agent, the Gastric Juice.

Half a teaspoonful of Pepsin, infused in water, will digest or dissolve, Five Pounds of Roast Beef in about two hours, out of the stomach.

Persun is the chief element, or Great Digesting Principle of the Gastric Juice—the solvent of the food, the purifying, preserving and stimulating agent of the stomach and intestines. It is ostracted from the digestive stomach of the Ox, thus ferming an Artificial Digestive Fluid, precisely like the natural Gastric Juice in its chemical powers, and furnishing a complete and perfect substitute for it By the aid of this preparation, the pains and evils of Indigestion and Dyspepsia are removed, just as they would be by a healthy stomach. It is doing wonders for dyspeptics, curing cases of Debility, Emaciation, Nervous Decline, and Dyspeptic Consumption, supposed to be on the verge of the grave. The scientific evidence upon which it is based, is in the highest degree curious and remarkable.

SCIENTIFIC EVIDENCE!

the highest degree curious and remarkable. SCIENTIFIC EVIDENCE!

Baron Liebig in his celebrated work on Anima Chemistry, says: "An artificial Digestive Fluid, analogous to the Gastric Juice, may be readily prepared from the mucous membrane of the stomach of the calf, in which various articles of food, as most and each will be estimated characteristics. as meat and eggs, will be softened, changed, and digested, just in the same manner as they would be in the human stomach.

ugested, just in the same manner as they would be in the human stomach."

Dr. Pereira, in his lamous treatise on "Food and Diet," published by Fowler & Weils, New York, page 35, states the same great fact, and describes the method of preparation. There are few higher authorities than Dr. Pereira.

Dr. Combe, in his valuable writings on the "Physiology of Digestion," observes that "a diminution of the due quantity of the Gastric Junce is a prominent and all-prevailing cause of Dyspepsia," and he states that "a distinguished professor of medicine in London, who was severely afflicted with this complaint, finding everything else to fail, had recourse to the Gastric Junce, obtained from the stomach of living animals, which proved completely successfull."

Dr. Graham, author of the famous, works on "Vegetable Diet," says: "It is a remarkable fact oldetly successful.

Dr. Graham, author of the famous works on "Vegetable Diet," says: "It is a remarkable fact in physiology, that the stomachs of animals, macerated in water, impart to the fluid the property of dissolving various articles of food, and of effecting a kind of artificial digestion of them in nowise diffreent mro the natural digestive process."

AS A DYSPEPSIA CURER.

AS A DYSPEPSIA CURER,
Dr. HOUGHTON'S PEPSIN has produced the most marvellous effects, in curing cases of Debdliy, Emaciation, Nervons Decline, and Dyspeptic Consumption. It is impossible to give the details of cases in the limits of this advertisement; but of cases in the limits of this advertisement; but authenticated certificates have been given of more than Two Hundred Remarkable Cures, in Pulladelphia, New York and Boston alone. These were nearly all desperate cases, and the cures were not only rapid and wonderful, but permanent. It is a great Nervous Antidote, and particularly useful for tendency to Billious disorder, Liver Complaint, Fever and Ague, or badly treated Fever and Ague, and the evil effects of Quinne, Mercury and other drugs upon the Digestive Organs, after a long sickness. Also, for excess in cating, and the too free use of ardert spirits. It almost and the too free use of ardent spirits. It almost reconciles health with intemprance. OLD STOMACH COMPLAINTS.

There is no form of Old Stomach Complaints which it does not seem to reach and remove at once. No matter how bad they may be, it gives instant relief! A single dose removes all the unpleasant symptoms; and it only needs to be repeated they for a time to make these condefficies returned. instant relief! A single dose removes all the unpleasant symptoms; and it only needs to be repeated short for a time to make these good effects permanent. Purity of Blood and Vigor of Body follow at once. It is particularly excellent in cases of Nausea, Vomiting, Cramps, Soreness of the pit of the Stomach, distress after eating, low, cold state of the Blood, Heaviness, Lowness of Spirits, Despondency, Emaciation, Weakness, tendency to Insanity, Suicide, &c.

Dr. HOUGHTON'S PEPSIN is sold by nearly all the dealers in fine drugs and Popular Medicines, throughout the United States. It is prepared in Powder and in Fluid form—and in prescription vtals for the use of Physicians.

PRIVATE CIRCULARS for the use of Physicians, may be obtained of Dr. Houghton or his Agents, describing the whole process of preparation, and giving the authorities upon which the claim of this new remedy are based. As it is not a secret remedy no objection can be raised against its use by Physicians in respectable standing and regular practice. Price Ork Dollars per bottle.
