

Respect to the Late Vice President
As soon as the melancholy intelligence received by Telegraph, of the decease of the Vice President, could be ascertained to be authentic, the subjunctive orders were issued by the President and the Executive Departments, and the whole country was in sympathy with the sentiments expressed in these testimonials of respect for the station, character, and public services of the eminent and lamented statesman, whose career had thus been closed in the fullness of years and of honors.

From Mexico.
We have dates from Mexico to the 5th of April. On the 1st, the arrival of Santa Anna in the English steamer was telegraphed from Uloa, and the people turned out and made preparations to receive him. In about two hours the steamer came up with the English and Mexican flags at mast-head, and for the fifth time Santa Anna became the master of the Mexican destinies. He was received with a salute of artillery from the Castle and from the Mexican steamer "Estado de Mexico." The authorities of Vera Cruz received him with great ceremony—military and religious formalities—a triumphal arch was erected, and the whole procession passed under it from the steamer. On the arch were the following inscriptions:
"AL EXCMO. S. P. P. DON ANTONIO LOPEZ DE SANTA ANNA, MARIZO, EN 1833 TO THE LIBERTY, PAZ Y ORDEN" (Liberty, Peace and Order)

The grand procession then passed to the Church, and after a solemn Te Deum they conducted the President to the National Palace, where his Excellency had announced to him that he had received 18 of three and twenty States in favor of his resuming the Presidency. At night there were illuminations, fireworks, vienas, serenades, &c.

The correspondent of the Havana Diario remarks that in Vera Cruz, Santa Anna was laconic, but at the same time dignified, and expressing highly patriotic sentiments. But he means to admit the Mexican position was about to give to Tamulapala, to take care of Carvajal and his adventures.

Santa Anna remained in Vera Cruz four days, where a sumptuous banquet was given him, which was followed by the proclamation of Santa Anna.

Far from thinking of avenging myself for ancient enmities, I dismiss all fear. All the past is forgotten; and on treating the soil of my country, I present to all the hand of friendship. Neither have I come to assist any party; nor have I come to disturb the public peace of the Union, and summon all Mexicans to follow; whatever may have been their opinions hitherto. Every one whose heart beats and responds to the voice of his country, is my friend—his ally.
