Trouble in Cincinnati. The Cincinnati Intelligencer gives, the following version of the emeute that recently occurred in that

Religious troubles appear to be rife in Cincinnati. Lately they had a most exciting contest for school directors, in which the Catholic candidates were all deleated. A few days ago, David T. Snel-baker, the mayor of the city, forbid a Protestant street preacher from holding forth on the Sabbath, on the plea that his sermon against the Catholics had the tendency of inciting to riot: This preach-er, however, disregarded the warning, and the very Sunday on which he was forbidden to speak he upon the head of a barrel in the midst of the market space, and was speaking to a crowd of about a hundred persons, when the mayor, attended hour: a number persons, when the mays, attended by the regular police and a large body of special officers, appeared upon the ground and obliged him to desist. This was in the morning. In the after noon of the same day a great Carbolic procession, numbering from five to ten thousand men, with badges, flags, banners, and a large number of bands of music marched through the streets to lay the badges, flage, banners, and a large number of bands of music, marched through the streets to lay the corner stone of a Catholic church. The Catholic church bells were rung during the whole time, the brass bands, comprehending nearly all in the city, were playing, and the procession marched through half the town, blocking up the streets, making an ostentatious parade, which created a great deal of excitement, sufficient to render some of the streets impassable to church going people, and to disturb the stillness of the Sabbath. The mayor had out a large police force to protect the procession. These elements of human knowledge. Each number of the Educator will contain articles in several of the departments. The Lessons in Geography will be accompanied with maps engraved on coper; and the lessons in every other department which can admit of it will be illustrated by Diagrams, Engravings and Drawings. Nothing which a large police force to protect the procession. These circumstances led to the holding of a large public neeting, which denounced the conduct of the mayor to the appointment of a committee of a and led to the appointment of a committee of a bundred citizeus to wait upon him, and request his immediate resignation. The object of the trayor appears to have been to prevent a riot on the oc-casion of the Catholic procession, but, in doing so, he has thoroughly aroused the Protestant population, and added fuel to a religious excitement which was already very deep and bitter

This Treatise although founded upon the celebrated theory of Guenon, which for a number of years past has attracted the attention of Farmers, Dairymen, and others, is caimed to be an improvement upon it. Is is the result of eight years experimental observation,—the author having separated that which was unaccessary in Guenon's Treatuse, from that which was essential. The whole has been reduced to simple rules, adapted to the ted that which was unaccessary in Guenon's Treatuse, from that which was essential. The whole has been reduced to simple rules, adapted to the comprehension of every Farmer, rendering it perfectly easy for any one to understand, and apply the discovery of Guenon.

The want of property classification in Guenon, the obscure and confused explanations, rendered his discovery of comparatively little value. In the present Treatise, the main object of the auther has been, to classify and explain, by handsome illustrations and otherwise, the principles of this great discovery, so as to render their practical application perfectly easy.

It is sufficient for present purposes to say, that a thorough understanding of the system, will enable the Farmer or Dairyman to determine, not only the daily quantity of milk a Cow will yield, but how long this yield will continue. Again, it is applicable to Calves of three months old, so that the breeder can determine, even at that early age, which promise to become good milkers, and which do not. And again, as the marks can be discerned in bull Calves as well as in Cows, the important information is secured to the Farmer, which enables him to couple such male and female animals as heformation is secured to the Farmer, which enables him to couple such male and female animals as belong to the same class, and the utmost possible extent. The breeder, by a proper application of the rules, may so improve the character of his stock, as to double its value.

The following report of a committe, appointed by the Philadelphia Agricultural Society, for the purpose of testing the truthfulness of this theory, is herewith submitted, and the attention of the reader particularly directed to it. The report was ormation is secured to the Farmer, which enable

The committee to whom was entrusted the examination of Guenon's system, very respectfully offer the result of their proceeding:

As the subject is one of great importance to the farmer, and no confidence in it can be created by vague generalities or isolated assertions, on the part of those who may have given to it some attention, the committee have endeavored, by personal observation, to verify the published statements.—
The fortunate arrival in this country of a German farmer. Mr. Nefflin, has offered a most happy opfarmer, Mr. Nefflin has offered a most happy opfarmer, Mr. Nefflin, has offered a most happy op-portunity of developing the nature and character of Guenon's observations, and the mode in which an adegt in the science proceeds in his examina-tions. More than forty Cows were examined by this gentleman, in the presence of the anembers of the Committee. All the remarks of Mr. Nefflin, all the questions and answers, were taken down at the moment by Mr. Arthur Cannon, phonographic re-porter, and all his statements were compared with porter; and all his statements were compared with those of the owners of the cows. In this form, an those of the owners of the cows. In this form, and in this critical mode of proceeding, the committee thought it possible to remove every doubt they themselves or others might feel in the truth of the system, and be enabled to offer to the Society and the agricultural community, a clear and truthful history of this interesting discovery. After a full and particular investigation, carried on in the most searching manner, and sharpened by incredulity the committee have no hesitation in giving their adthe committee have no hesitation in giving their adhesion, and expressing their concurrence in the views of Guenon. The precision and accuracy with which Mr. Nefflin describes the qualities of the with which Mr. Nefflin describes the qualities of the animals, and the unhesitating manner in which he revealed all their properties, could not but impress the committee with an entire reliance on his skill, and a perfect confidence in the views of his teacher. Still, though the committee have no hesitation in offering this opinion, as the matter is one of the utmost importance, they deem it proper to recommend that if there remain any doubt on the part of the society, as to the clear and complete demonthe society, as to the clear and complete demon stration of the truth of Guenon's observations, o stration of the truth of Guenon's observations, or if there are individual members who hesitate to concede this point, that the examinations should be continued until all scepticism as far as possible, be removed. Plainfield, Cum. co., Pa. [march 22 tf-9] Three Hundred Dollars Reward.

Three Hundred Dollars Reward.

—Ran away on Friday, the 4th of March, 1853, my servant HENRY, or Henry Jackson, a light mulatto, about 5½ feet high, between 30 and 35 years of age, rather thin visage; when spoken to answers quickly, and with an anxious expression of countenance; walks with a quick and a slight stoop; is of a delicate frame and feeble appearance; has curly hair, but wears it well combed to make it stand out straight. He is from the estate of the late Mr. Edward Dyer; is a very excellent cabinet-maker, and was employed by Mr. John D. Brown previous to his leaving. He has a free wife now living in this city. No doubt he follows his trade, perhaps under a fictitious name.
