I LOVE THE FREE.

The wild streams leap with headlong sweep, In their curbless course o'er the mountains steep All fresh and strong they foam along, Walking the rocks with their cataract song; My eye hears a glance, like the gleam on As I watch the waters dash, and dance; And I burn with glee, for I love to see, The path of anything that's free.

The skylark springs with dew on his wings,
And in the arch of heaven he sings,
Trilla! trilla! O, sweeter far,
Than the notes that come thro' a golden bar,
The joyous bay of a hound at play,
The caw of a rook in his homeward way;
Oh there hall be the music for me. Oh, these shall be the music for me, For I love, I love, the path of the free.

The mariner trave, in his bark on the wave, May laugh at the walls round a kingly slave; And he whose lot is the desert spot, Has no fear' of an envious foe in his cot, The thrall and state at the palace gate, Is what my spirit hath learned to hate; And I burn with glee, for I love to see, The path of anything that's free.

THE OLD MAN'S STORY. A THRILLING SKETCH.

I shall never forget the commencement of th temperance reformation, I was a child at the time of some ten years of age. Our home had every comfort, and my parents idolized me their child. Wine was often on the the table, and both my father and mother frequently gave it to me in the bot-tom of my morning glass.

One Sunday at church, a startling announcement was made to our people. I knew nothing of its purport, but there was much whipering among the the men. The pastor said on the next evening there would be a meeting, and an address upon the evils of intemperance in the use of alcoholic drinks. He expressed himself ignorant of the object of the meeting, and could not say what course it would

The subject of the meeting came up at our table after the service, and I questioned my father about it with all the curious eagerness of a child. The whispers, and words which had been dropped in my hearing elebrate the which had been dropped in be best to pursue in the matter. my hearing, clothed the whole affair with a great nystery to me, and I was all eagerness to learn the mystery to me, and I was an eagerness to learn the strange thing. My father merely said it was some scheme to unite church and state.

The night came, and groups of people gathered on the tavern steps, and I heard the jest and the laugh, and saw drunken men come reeling out of the bar-room. I urged my father to let me go, but he first refused. Finally, thinking that it would be increased against the put an innocent gratification of my curiosity, he put on his hat and we passed across the green to the church. I remember well how the people appear ed as they came in, seeming to wonder what kind of an exhibition was to come off.

formed. The younger had the manner and dress of a clergyman, a full round face, and a quiet, good natured look, as he leisurely looked around over

But my childish interest was all in the old man. His broad, deep chest, and unusual height, looked giant-like as he strode slowly up the aisle. His hair was white, his brow deeply—seamed with fur-rows, and around his handsome mouth, lines of calm and touching sadness. His eye was black and restless, and kindled as the tavern keeper utand a crimson flush went and came over his cheek. One arm was off above the elbow, and there was a wide scar over his right eye. The younger finally arose and stated the object of the meeting, and asked if there was a clergy-

self made a short prayer, and then made a short address, at the conclusion calling upon any one present to make remarks. Ane pastor rose under the gallery, and attacked the positions of the speak-er, using the arguments which I have often heard since, and concluded by denouncing those engaged in the new movement, as meddlesome fanatics, who wished to break up the time-honored usages of good society, and injure the business of respectable keeper and his friends got up a cheer, and the cu

While the pastor was speaking, the old man had fixed his dark eye upon him, and leaned forward as it to catch every word.

As the pastor took his seat the, old man ro his tall form towering in its symmetry and his chest swelling as he inhaled his breath through his dilated nostrils. To me, at that time, there was dilated nostrils. To me, at that tine, ture assomething awe-inspiring and grand in the appearance of the old man as he stood with his full eye upon the audience, his teeth shut hard, and a silence like that of death throughout the church.

He bent his gaze upon the tavern keeper, and that peculiar eye lingered and kindled for half a moment.

The scar grew red upon his forehead and beneath the heavy eyebrows his eyes glittered and glowed the neavy eyeurows his eyes gittered and glowed like a serpent's. The tavarn keeper quailed before that searching glance, and I telt a relief when the old man withdrew his gaze. For a moment he seemed lost in thought, and then in a low and tremulous tone commended. There was a depth in that with a deliminate of the commender. in that voice, a thrilling pathos and sweetness which rivited every heart in the house before the first pe riod had been rounded. I can but briefly remember the substance of What the old man said, though the scene is as vivid before me, as any that I ever witnessed.

"My triends! I am a stranger in your village, and I trust I may call you friends. A new star has arisen, and there is hope in the dark night which hangs like a pall of gloom over our country."—With a thrilling depth of voice, the speaker locked his hands together and continued—"Oh! God, thou whe leakest with compassion upon the meet string. who lookest with compassion upon the most erring of earth's children, I thank thee that a brazen serpent has been lifted, upon which the drunkard can look and be healed; that a beacon has burst out upon the darkness that surrounds him, which shall uide back to honor and heaven, the bruised and

The speaker's voice was low and measured, but a tear trembled in every tone, and before I knew why, a tear dropped upon my hand, followed by others like rain drops. The old man brushed one tion where it was pointed, dreading to see some shadow invoked by its magic movement.

"I once had a mother. With her old heart crushed with sorrows, she went down to her grave. I once had a wife, a fair, angel-bearted creature as ever smiled in an earthly home. Her eyes as mild as a summer sky, and her heart as faithful and true as ever guarded and cherished a husband's love. as ever guarden and the floods of sorrow Her blue eye grew dim as the floods of sorrow washed away its brightness, and the fliving heart I wrung until every fibre was broken. I once had a noble, a brave and beautiful boy, but he was driven out from the ruins of his home, and my old heart yearns to know if he yet lives. I once had a babe sweet tender blossom, but these hands destroyed t and it liveth with one who loveth children." "Do not be startled friends—I am not a mutder-er in the common acceptation of the term. Yes er in the common according sky. A spirit mother there is light in my evening sky. A spirit mother rejoices over the return of her prodygal son. The wife smiles upon him who again turns back to virtue and honor. The child-angel visits me at nighfall, and I feel the hallowing touch of a tiny palm upon my severish cheek. My brave boy, if he yet lives, would forgive the sorrowing old ma or treatment which drove him into the world, and the blow that maimed him for life. God forgive me for the ruin I have brought upon me and mine.'

He again wiped a tear from his eye. My father watched him with a strange intensity, and a countenance unusually pale and excited by some strong

"I was once a fanatic, and madly followed the malign light which led me to ruin. I was a fanation when I sacrificed my wife, children, happiness and home, to the accursed demon of the bowl. I once adored the gentle being whom I injured so deeply, "I was a drunkard. From respectability and af fluence, I plunged into degradation and poverty.— I dragged my family down with me. For years I saw her pale cheek, and her step grew weary. left her alone amid the wreck of her home idols and rioted at the tavern. She never complained, yet she and the children went hungry for bread "One New Year's night, I returned late to the hut where charity had given us roof. She was yet up, and shivering over the coals. I demanded food, but and shivering over the coals. I demanded food, but she burst into tears and told me there was none.— I fiercely ordered her to get some. She turned her eyes sadly upon me, the tears falling fast over her pale cheek. At this moment the child in its cradle awoke and sent up a tarnished wail, starting the desparing mother like serpent's sting."

"We have no food, James—have had none for several days. I have nothing for the babe. My once wind husband, must we starve?"

"That sad pleading face and those streaming eyes, and the feeble wail of the child, maddened me, and I—yes I, struck her a fierce blow in the face, and she iell forward upon the hearth. The furies of hell boiled in my bosom, and with deeper the stream of the strea intensity as I selt I had committed a wrong. I had never struck. Mary before, but now some terrible never struck. Mary before, but now some terrible impulse bore me on, and I stooped down as well as I could tin my drunken state and clenched both hands in her heir."

"God of mercy, James!" exclaimed my wife, as she looked up in my fiendish countenance, you will not kill us—you will not harm Willie," and she of an exhibition was to come off.

In the corner was the tavern keeper, and around him a number of friends. For an hour the people of the place continued to come in, until there was a fair house full. All were curiously watching at the door wondering what would appear next. The pastor stole in and took a seat behind a pillar under the gallery as if doubtful of the propriety of being in church at all.

Two men finally came in and went to the altar and took their seats. All eyes were fixed upon

"I turned on the little bed where lay my older son, and snatched him from his slumbers, and against his half-awakened struggles, opened the door and thrust him out. In the agony of fear, he called me by a name I was no longer fit to bear, and locked his fingers into my side pocket. I could not wrench that frenzied grasp away, and with the cool-ness of a devil, as I was, shut the door upon the arm, and with my knife severed it at the wrist."

The speaker ceased a moment and buried his face in his hands as if to shut out some fearful dream, in his hands as if to shut out some fearful dream, and his chest heaved like a storm-swept sea. My father had arisen from his seat, and was leaning forward, his countenance bloodless, and the large drops standing out upon his brow. Chills crept back to my young beart, and I wished I was at home. The old man looked up, and I never have since beheld such mortal agony pictured upon a human face as there was on his.

"It was morning when I awoke, and the storm had ceased. I first secured a drink of water, and then looked in the accustomed place for Mary.—

then looked in the accustomed place for Mary.-As I missed her, for the first time a shadowy scer of some horrible nightmare began to dawn upon my wandering mind. I thought I had a fearful dream, but involuntarily opened the outside door with a shuddering dread. As the door opened, the snow burst in, followed by the fall of something across the thresh-hold, scattering the snow, and striking the floor with a sharp, bad sound. shot like red hot arrows through my veins, and I rubbed my eyes to shut out the sight. It was—it O! God, how horrible! it was my own injured Mary and her babe, frozen to ice! The ever true mother

Again the old man bowed his head and wept, an all that were in the house wept with him. My father sobbed like a child. In tones of low and heart-broken pathos, the old man concluded: heart-broken pathos, the old man concluded:

"I was arrested, and for long months I raved in delirium. I awoke, was sentenced to prison for ten years, but no tortures could have been like those I endured within my own bosom. Oh, God, no!—I am.not a fanatic. I wish to injure no one. But while I live, let me strive to warn others not to short the noth which has been so dark and fearful! enter the path which has been so dark and fearful a one to me. I would see my wife and children beyond this vale of tears." The old man sat down, but a spell as deep and strong as that wrought by some wizard's breath, rested upon the audience. Hearts could have been heard in their beating, and tears to fall. The old man then asked the people to sign the pledge. My father leaped from his seat and snatched at it eagerly. I had followed him, and as he hesitated a mo ment with the pen in the ink, a tear fell from the old man's eye on the paper. "Sign it, sign it, young man. Angel's would sign it. I would write my name there ten thousand times in blood if it would bring back my loved and red and death-like paleness. "It is—no, it cannot be—yet how strange," mut-tered the old man. "Pardon me, sir, but that was the name of my brave boy,"

My father trembled and held up his left arm from which the hand had been severed. They looked for a moment in each other's eye

"My own injured boy!"
"My father!"

"My father!"

They fell upon each other's necks until it seemed that their souls would grow and mingle into one. There was weeping in that church, and I turned bewildered upon the streaming faces around me.

"Let me thank God for the great blessing which has gladdened my guilt-burdened soul," exclaimed the old man, and kneeled down, pouring out his heart in one of the most melting prayers I ever heard. The spell was then broken, and all eagerly signed the pledge, slowly going to their homes, as signed the pledge, slowly going to their homes, as if loth to leave the spot.

The old man is dead, but the lesson he taught wrecked. I am without friends, home or kindred the old man is dead, but the rest of the his grandchild on the knee, as his evening sun went night of death. Without friends, kindred or home! His fanaticism has lost none of its fire in my man-No one could withstand the touching pathos of hood's heart.

The Comet of 1856.

The following interesting details respecting the omet, which is expected to make its appearance bout the year 1856, are givenby M. Rabinet, an eminent French astronomer, and member of the Academy of Sciences, in an article recently published. ousehold idols that once were mine, now mine no | The Boston Traveller translates from the Courier de Etats Uni:

"This comet is one of the grandest of which his torians make mention. Its period of revolution is about three hundred years. It was seen in the years 104, 392, 683, 975, 1264, and the last time in 1556. Astronomers agreed in predicting its re turn in 1848, but it failed to appear—manque au rendez-vous, according to the expression of M. Rabinet—and continues to shine still, unseen by us.-Already the observatories begin to be alarmed for the fate of their beautiful wandering star. Sir John Herschel himself had put a crape upon his telescope, when a learned calculator of Middlebourg. M. Bomme, re-assured the astronomical world of the con

"Disquieted, as all other astronomers were, by he non-arrival of the comet at the expected t M. Bomme, aided by the preparatory labors of Mr Hind, with a patience truly Dutch, has revised all the calculations, and estimated all the actions of all he planets upon the comet for three hundred years The result of this patient labor gives he arrival of the comet in August, 1858, with an certainty of two years, more or less, so that from 1856 to 1860 we may expect the great comet which was the cause of the abdication of the Emperor Charles V., in 1856.

"It is known that, partaking of the general super-stition, which interpreted the appearance of a comet as the forerunner of some fatal event, Charles V. believed that this comet addressed its menaces par-ticularly to him as holding the first rank among sovereigns. The great and once wise, but now weaied and shattered, monarch had been for some time the victim of cruel reverses. There were threaten-ing indications in the political if not in the physical horizon of a still greater tempest to come. was left to cry in despair, 'Fortune abandons old men.' The appearance of the blazing star seemed to him an admonition from heaven that he must ease to be a sovereign if he would avoid a fatality from which one without authority might be spared. It is known that the Emperor survived his abdicaon but a little more than two vears. "Another comet, which passed near us in 1835, and which has app ared twenty five times since the year 18 before christian era, has been associated by e superstitious with many important events which ave occurred near the periods of its visitatio

"In 1066 William the Conqueror landed in England at the head of a numerous army about the time that the comet appeared which now bears the name of Halley's comet. The circumstances was regarded by the English as a prognostic of the vic-tory of the Normans. It infused universal terror into the minds of the people, and contributed not a little towards the submission of the country after the battle of Hastings, as it had served to discourage the soldiers of Harold before the combat. The comet is represented upon the famous tapistry of Bayeux, executed by Queen Matilda, the wife of the Conquer. The same comet in 1456, threw ter-ror among the Turks under the command of Manomet II, and into the ranks of the Christians during the terrible battle of Belgrade, in which forty thousand Mussulmans perished. The comet is de-scribed by historians of the time as "immense, terrible, of enormous length, carrying in its train a tail which covered two celestial signs (60 degrees,) and producing universal terror. Judging from this portrait, comets have singularly degenerated in our day. It will be remembered, however, that in 1811 there appeared a comet of great brilliancy, which inspired some superstitious fears. Since that enoch inspired some superstitious lears. Since that epoch science has noted nearly eighty comets, which, with few exceptions, were visible only by the aid of the telescope. Kepler, when asked how many comets he thought there were in the heavens, answered, "as many as there are fish in the sea."

of the poor, and to lighten the eyes of the diconso-late. And what greater pleasure can we have than that we should bring joy to our brother; that the tongue should be tuned to heavenly accents, and make the weary soul listen for light and ease, and when he perceives that there is such a thing in the world, and in the order of things, as comfort and joy, to begin to break out of his prison of sorrows, at the door of sights and tears, and slowly begin to melt into showers and refreshments—this is glory to thy voice, and enjoyments fit for the brightest angel. So I have seen the sun kiss the frozen earth, which was bound up with the images of death, and the breath of the north, and the waters break graves in the walls, and dance a little while in the air, to tell that joy is within, and that the great mother of creatures will open the stock of her new refreshments, become useful to mankind, and sing praises to her Redeemer. So is the heart of a sor-rowful man: under the discourse of a wise comfort he breaks from the despair of the grave, and the fetters and chains of sorrow; he blesses God, and He blesses thee, and feels life returning.

he is a little cross and snappish now and then. Remember the best apples are produced by engrafting on a crab. As woman that scolds and gets feverish, may be rather trying to the patience, but Of God, how horrible I it was my own injured Mary and her babe, frozen to ice! The ever true mother had bowed herself over the child to shield it, and wrapped all her clothing around it, leaving her own person stark and bare to the storm. She had placed her hair over the tace of the child, and the sleet had frozen it to the white cheek. The frost was white in its half-opened eyes and upon his tiny fingers. I know not what became of my brave neighbor, a soiled dog on her front door step gives her a rush of blood to the head that can only be subdued by resort to hot water and a broom stick. Again we repeat, don't be atraid of a girl

MARRIAGE.

Be particular in observing the name and number of you will mistake the place. DR. JOHNSTON.
Member of the Royal College of Surgeons, London, Graduate from one of the most eminent Colleges of the United States and the greater part of the Colleges of the United States and the greater part of the Colleges of the United States and the greater part of the Colleges of the United States and the greater part of the Colleges of the C whose life has been spent in the Hospitals of Le lon, Paris, Philadelphia, and elsewhere, has affe don. Paris, Philadelphia, and elsewhere, has allected some of the most actonishing cures that were ever known. Many troubled with ringing in the ears and head when asleep, great nervousness, being alarmed at sudden sounds, and bashilaness, with trequent blushing, attended, sometimes, with derangement of mind, were cured immediately.

TAKE PARTICULAR NOTICE

Dr. J. addresses all those who have impredented themselves by private and improper indulgencies, that secret and solitary habits, which ruin both body and mind, unfitting them for either business or society.

These are some of the sad and melancholy These are some of the sad and metancholy efects produced by early habits of youth, viz: Weakness of the back and limbs, Pains in the head, Dimness of Sight, Loss of Muscular Power, Paipitation of the Heart, Dyspepsia, Nervous Irriability, Derangement of the Digestive Functions, tieneral Debility, Symptoms of Consumption, &c Mentally.—The teartul effects on the mind are much to be dreaded: Loss of Memory, Confusion of Ideas, Depression of Spirits, Evil of Foreboding, Aversion of Society, Sell Distrust, Love of Solitude, Timidity, &c. are some of the evils produced.

NERVOUS DEBILITY.

Weakness of the system, Nervous Debility and premature decay generally arises from the destructive habit of youth, that solitary practices so fatal to the healthful existence of man, and it is the young who are the must apt to become its Victums from an ignorance of the dangers to which they subject themselves. Parents and Guardians are often misted with respect to the cause or source of disease in their sons and wards. Alag! how often do they ascribe to other causes the westing of the trame. Palpitation of the Hea., Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Derangement of the Nervous System, Cough and Symptoms of Consumption, also those serious Mental effects, such as loss of Memory, Depression of Spirits or peculiar fits of Melancholy, when the truth is they have been caused by indulging Pernicious but alluring practices, destructive to both Body and Mind. Thus are swept from existence thousands who might have been of use to their country, a pleasure to their friends, an ornament to society.

maladies which result from indiscretion. Such persons, before contemplating.

MARRIAGE, should reflect that a sound mind and body are the most necessary requisites to promote connubial happiness. Indeed, without this, the journey thro' life becomes a weary pilgrimage; the prospect hourly darkens to the view; the mind becomes shadowed with despair, and filled with the melancholy reflection that the happiness of another becomes ulighted with our own. Let no laise delicacy prevent you, but apply immediately. He who places himself under the care of Dr JOHNSTON, may religiously confide in his honor as a Gentleman, and confidently rely upon his skill as a Physician TO STRANGERS.

The many thousands cured at this institution within the last ten years, and the numerous important Surgical Operations performed by Dr. J., witnessed by the Reperters of the papers and many other persons, notices of which have eppeared again and again before the public, is a sufficient guarantee that the afflicted will find a skillul and honorable physicians.

OFFICE, No. 7, South FREDERICK Street, BALTIMORE, Md., on the left hand side, going from Baltimore street, 7 doors from the corner. Be particular in observing the name and number or Half of teaspoonful of Pepsin, infused in water. The True Digestive Fluid or Gastrie Juice

Half & teaspoonful of Pepsin, infused in water, will digest or dissolve, Five Pounds of Roast Beef in about two hours, out of the stomach.

Persus is the chief element, or Great Digesting Principle of the Gastric Juice—the solvent of the Principle of the Gastric Juice—the solvent of the food, the purifying, preserving and simulating agent of the stomach and intestines. It is extracted from the digestive stomach of the Ox, thus ferning an Artificial Digestive Floid, precisely like the natural Gastric Juice in its chemical powers, and furnishing a complete and perfect substitute for it by the aid of this preparation, the pains and evils of Indigestion and Dyspepsia are removed, just as they would be by a healthy stomach. It is doing wanders for dyspectics, curing cases of Debility, they would be by a neating storage. It is doing wonders for dyspeptics, curing cases of Dability, Emaciation, Nervous Decline, and Dyspeptic Consumption, supposed to be on the verge of the grave. The scientific evidence upon which it is based, is in the highest degree curious and remarkable.

SCIENTIFIC EVIDENCE!

The scientific evidence upon which it is based, is in the highest degree curious and remarkable.

SCIENTIFIC EVIDENCE!

Baron Liebig in his celebrated work on Anima Chemistry, says: "An artificial Digeative Fluid, analogous to the Gastric Juice, may be readily prepared from the mucous membrane of the stomach of the calf, in which various articles of food, as meat and eggs, will be softened, changed, and digested, just in the same manner as they would be in the human stomach.

Dr. Pereira, in his lamous treatise on "Food and Diet," published by Fowler & Wells, New York, page 35, states the same great fact, and describes the method of preparation. There are few higher authorities than Dr. Pereira.

Dr. Combe, in his valuable writings on the "Physiology of Digestion," observes that "a diminution of the due quantity of the Gastric Juice is a prominent and all-prevailing cause of Dyspepsia," and he states that "a distinguished processor of medicine in Loudon, who was severely afflicted with this complaint, finding everything else to fail, had recourse to the Gastric Juice, obtained from the stomach of living animals, which provide completely successful."

Dr. Graham, author of the famous works on "Vegetable Diet," says: "It is a remarkable fact in physiology, that the stomachs of animals, macerated in water, impart to the fluid the property of dissolving va. ous articles of food, and of effecting a kind of artificial digestion of them in nowiss diffreent mro the natural digestive process."

AS A DYSPEPSIA CURER,
Dr. HOUGHTON'S PEPSIN has produced the most marvellous effects, in curing cases of Debulity, Emaciation, Nervons Decline, and Dyspeptic Consumption. It is impossible to give the details of cases in the limits of this advertisement; but authenticated certificates have been given of mor than Two Hundred Remarkable Cures, in Pailadelphia, New York and Boston alone. These were nearly all desperate cases, and the cures were not only rapid and wonderful, but permanent. It is a great Nervous Antidote, and particula after a long sickness. Also, for excess in caling, and the too free use of ardent spirits. It almost reconciles health with intemprance.

OLD STOMACH COMPLAINTS.

There is no form of Old Stomach Complaints which it does not seem to reach and remove at once. No matter how bad they may be, it gives instant relief! A single dose removes all the unpleasant symptoms; and it only needs to be repeated short for a time to make these good effects pormanent. Purity of Blood and Vigor of Body follow at once. It is particularly excellent in cases of Natisca, Vomitting, Cramps, Sorciess of the pit of the Stomach, distress after eating, low, cold state of the Blood. Heaviness, Lowness of Spirits, Despondency, Emiciation, Weakness, Tendency to Insanity, Suicide, &c.

Dr. HOUGHTON'S PEPSIN is sold by nearly all the dealers in fine drugs and Popular Medicines, throughout the United States. It is prepared in Powder and in Fluid form—and in prescription vials for the use of Physicians.

Private Circulars for the use of Physicians, vials for the use of Physicians.

PRIVATE CIRCULARS for the use of Physicians, may be obtained of Dr. Houghton or his Agents, describing the whole process of preparation, and giving the authorities upon which the claim of this new remedy are based. As it is not a screet remedy no objection can be raised against its use by Physicians in respectable standing and regular practice.
