TOM MOORE'S LYRICS.

The New York Knickerbocker, publishes the folowing as an authentic copy of one of Tom Moore's unpublished Lyrics:-

That though 'tis true I've thought of love,
And other beauties idly strove
My heart to free from Rosa's chain?
Unbroken the golden links remain
Entwined round every part;
And if another's charms I've praised,
Those charms but four remembrance raised. Those charms but fond remembrance raised

Perhaps it was her tresses flowing, Dimpled cheeks and blushes glowing! Oh, no! oh, no!

None but Rosa's lip, and Rosa's eye,
And Rosa's selt can cause the sigh;
Still Rosa rules my heart

I own, betrayed by youth or wine, I've thought a form, a face divine; Or, when some witching syren sung, My yielding soul enraptured hung, Bewildered by her art; But soon that feeble spell was gone;

But soon that feenie speit was gone;
Some faint resemblance said alone;
Can tones less sweet, or looks less smiling,
Long delude, your sense beguiling?
Oh, no! oh, no!
Name but Books line, and Ross's swe Oh, no! oh, no! None but Rosa's lips, and Rosa's eye, And Rosa's relf can cause the sigh; Still Rosa rules my heart.

FARMER PLAINLAND'S VISIT TO CHURCH

BY C. MILLER WENDALL.

Few, doubtless, have forgotten the existence of a very singular law which was enforced some fifty years since. It was to prevent absence from the regular places of worship on the Sabbath. Like many other laws, it was more actively enforced by the small county towns, than in the city or its suburbs. The Justices in these days had scarcely ough to sustain the dignity of their pron, while the people, in some cases, attended more closely to their neighbors' affairs than to their own, and, instead of attending strictly to the ser-mons, were too often gazing about the house, in order to mark the vacant seat of some neighbor .-After several addresses the delinquent was sure to receive a summons from the Sheriff to appear beore the august Justice, and to pass through the solemn ordeal of a country court.

In the cown of B——, a few miles west of Worcester, dwelt a worthy farmer and his happy family. He was the possessor of what in those days was considered a large fortune, viz: about ten thousand dollars, which was carefully invested in safe mortgages, besides more than 100 acres of land.

He had one grievous fault, for so his neighbors considered it, which was that his attendance at church was by no means frequent. His residence was more than five miles distant from the meeting house and he had imbibed the singular notion that the Sabbath was intended for a day of rest both for man and beast, and consequently, he would not allow his horses, which had laithfully performed their labors during the week, to be disturbed or used; hence, the family were obliged to walk, if they went at all, which was not often the case.

Now the farmer was by no means a skeptic on the points of religion. On the contrary, his family were assembled upon each Sabbath morning in their snug parlor, while he read to them portions of the Scriptures, and afterwards a sermon from the pub-lished writings of some popular clergyman. But lished writings of some popular clergyman. the envy which the prosperous are always sure of experiencing, raised up enemies against him Nor was he much surprised one Monday morning to re-ceive a visit from a consequential Sheriff, with a summings to appear immediately before the Honor-able Justice Bylaw, and the honorable court then and there assembled, at the grocery of 'Squire By where the court had gravely assembled.

Farmer Plainland made no remonstrance, and after placing a well-filled money pouch in his pocket proceeded with the sheriff to the place atoresaid,

The reader may question the propriety of using the word sheriff in this instance, but I would reply that every constable, in those days, either dubber himself with the title, which he considered honor able, or was so called by his conciliatory townsmen A country court of olden times was a curiosity which has not been preserved for us of the younge generation. It is only occasionally to be found in he wilds of the west, and even there in a modern assembled together, with witnesses and mischievous boys, who performed sundry teats of sleight-of-hand

His Honor was seated on the head of a huge mo lasses cask, being the most elevated place he could obtain, while between his pendant legs was a small painted keg; resting upon the cask; which served the purpose of a writing desk, and bore on its rounded front not precisely the emblem of Justice, but the portentous word, 'Gin.' The defendant was allowed to seat himself upon a vineger barrel, directly opposite, while the spec-tators arranged themselves upon the counters, boxes, bags, &c , which occupied the room. Thus the court opened. Although the case was one of the plainest character, still many witnesses were summoned, all of whom were anxious to distinguish themselves; but they were destined to be appointed, for, when the Justice asked the ques-

Guilty or not guilty ?

Farmer Plainland auswered-

This plain avowal astonished the worthy Justice, and somewhat disconcerted him, for he did not and somewhat disconcerted him, for he did not much like the idea of him of his importance; in short, it became a farce without a play. He therefore coughed several times, and said—

'Mr. Plainland, the important occasion upon which we have met is justice. Painful as the effort may be it becomes my data to see the laws.

fort may be it becomes my duty to see the laws carried clean through as regilar as sealed balances. You are brought here as an offender, and if found guilty, must suffer the penalty of the law; but, just let me tell you, no man is obleeged to criminate himself. Nor is any man accountable for what he may say in law, unless he be a witness; then of course, it is a case of perjury, if he don't tell the truth, the hull truth and nuthin' but the truth. low I shall ask the question ag'in, and, remember,

I do not want you to criminate yourself.'

Notwithstanding this eloquent speech, which electrified his audience, the larmer firmly adhered to his former assertion, which left no other course for the disappointed Justice than to pronounce sentence at once, which was one dollar and costs; which he immediately paid and departed. But as he left the store, the people noticed a meaning smile which played upon his leatures. Depend upon it, said one, Farmer Plainland will be even with them yet. He has got some idea into his head, I know, by that smile of his. He then look out for fun or thunder, that's all I can then fook out for fun or thunder, that's all I can say.'

The next Sabbath morning most of the people remained upon the steps and in the porch of the meeting-house, contrary to the usual custom. The fact was, they were anxious to see if the late retribution of the law would cause the appearance of the long absent Farmer Plainlaind. The female portion of the outside assembly expressed their deportion of the outside assembly approximately what is earth? schoolboy—A place for my play; what is earth? schoolboy—A place for a battle; what is earth? schoolboy—A place for a battle; what is earth? schoolboy—A place for a battle; what is earth? schoolboy—A place for my play; wh sion of those days, When an exclamation from the the Apostles!" what a profanation, what a view was presented to his astonished vision. Upon the ascending road, which led to the church, Farmer Plainland was seen, with his family, in rather a novel mode of conveyance.

A nonderous wagon, drawn by two pair of strong. sturdy oxen, driven by the farmer, who appeared in excellent humor, and in a blue frock, such as he wore about his farm. His wife and daughters were arrayed in their best silks and their happiest smiles. His son a young city merchant, with a young man, his friend, who had arrived the day before, were also there, and considering the affair rare port, had also donned short, light trocks, which but partially concealed their light clothes.

When near the steps of the church, the party were about leaving their rural car promiscuou which Mr. Plainland would not allow. He was de which Mr. Plainand would not allow. The was de-termined to have everything done decently and in order. Hence, after sundry conversations, inter-spersed with gentle hints of his whip to his oxen. in a language which they readily understood, al-though perfectly unintelligible to us, the vehicle was backed up to the steps upon which its valuable freight immediately landed.

In those days it was also the custom to carry collation to church, where they remained until af-ter the afternoon service. The farmer, who was fond of good living, came prepared in this respect.

The wagon was drawn beneath the spreading branches of several large oak trees, and a table formed of boards was made, which was spread by neat white cloth, and a quanity of viands sufficie for a moderate pic-nic party. The young men had procured green boughs, with which they ornament-ed the rough vehicle, while the fair girls made beautitul wreathes of oak leaves for the young men and themselves. Several of their neighbors were invited to join them, who very eagerly accepted, and the time passed by most pleasantly The sermons of that day were entirely lost upon the congregation, who were too busy gazing at the prominent pew of Farmer Plainland and its singular inmates to heed anything else. His triumph was complete, while his enemies were most completely non-plussed and out-generaled.

After services were ended, some of the elders of the church and their pastor signified to him that he might remain at home as often as he pleased, and he would never again be subject to a fine. They added, that his sentiments being of a peculiar nature, perhaps, on the whole, it would be better for him to do as he history had deep him to do as he hitherto had done.

Or, in other words, said the farmer, smiling as he took leave of them, 'I can now be allowed to worship my Creator according to the dictates of my

THE MAINE LIQUOR LAW .- Gov. Seymour, of Connecticut, in his late Message to the Legislature of that State, thus expresses himself on the sub-

form. In vain may we look for any lasting good from laws, however they may be enforced for a time, which are not clearly based upon correct principles. An act for the suppression of the entire trade in spirituous liquors, known by the name of the State where it originated, and which is com-mended as a model for legislation here, has lost none of its objectionable features during the discussion it has elicited. On the contrary it is seen more plainly than ever that it strikes at the foun-dation of rights which, if once overthrown, will leave the door open for any arbitrary exercise of power which a majority, however obtained, may choose to inflict. An original inherent conviction of the injustice of the proposed law has been strengthened and confirmed in my own mind by subsequent reflection, to which the recent decisions of the courts have lent the weight of high legal authority. Without any means of indeping to what authority. Without any means of judging to what extent further efforts, if any, may be made to en-graft such a law upon our statutes, and not consid-ering that it would become me to go into any inof any course of action upon the subject which an honest preference of opinion may suggest, I shall hold myself prepared for any emer-gency. The subject of temperance, separated from politics, and calmly addressing itself to reason and udgment, has my warmest sympathies. That it an yet be promoted in any other way has not been ne different means which have been em

Public dinners are public nuisances-flagrantly to ... They are a relic of outgrown barbarism which esteems eating and drinking the chief ends of life. and would show affection as Joseph did to his broth-er Benjamin—by giving him three times as great a mess as was apportioned to his half-brothers. It is every way unworthy of our age to attempt to honor, reward, or show admiration for a public benby feasting him, even when (as at Bosto yesterday) intoxicating liquors are excluded. But an ordinary public dinner. "with a stick in it," is essentially a bestial performance. Two or three hundred people are assembled to eat an inordinate meal, at an unusal and unseasonable hour, paying for it a sum that of them cannot really afford washing it down with incessant libations of vil-lainously drugged cider and cockroach Madeira, which gets steadily worse as the company get more and more enthusiastically and obviously drunk—

THE WAY THEY KEEP SUNDAY IN LONDON

A correspondent of the New Haven Register says that the violation of the Sabbath in London is not has not much to boast of in that respect. All the lines of omnibuses are in full activity on Sunday, conveying to the towns and villages around the me-tropolis thousands and tens of thousands of city workers of both sexes, who are not able to tast fresh air except on that day. The little iron steamers of the Thames are loaded full of a Sunday, to carry up and down the river the votaries of pleasure who crowd upon the decks. And then all the railroads of the metropolis are in full blast on Sunday, carrying passengers at a very cheap rate to the various points and localities most interesting to various points and others. Windsor Castle is thronged with visitors on Sundays, the Queen's band discoursing the most delightful music in the garden of the palace, commencing immediately after divine service. This band, composed of about forty well instructed performers, attract vast multitudes to the parks and grounds around Windsor Castle, on th strumental performers cannot be found in all Europe It is the favorite of the coast and the people. Eat-ing houses, drinking shops, confectionaries, &c., &c., are allowed to accommodate their customers with out let or hindrance. In a word, Sunday is a holiday to the masses in London, as it is to the masses in almost every city in Europe, either Cotholic or Protestant.

The True Digestive Fluid or Gastric Juice

The True Digestive Fluid or Gastric Juice

PREPARED from Rennet, or the fourth Stomach of the Ox, after directions of Baron Libbe;
the great Physiological Chemist, by J. S. Hough; ton, M. D., Philadelphia, Pa.

This is a truly wonderful remedy for Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Jaundice, Liver Complaint, Constipation, and Debility, curing after Nature's own method, by Nature's own Agent, the Gastric Juice.

Hait a teaspoonful of Pepsin, infused in water, will digest or dissolve, Five Pounds of Roast Beef in about two hours, out of the stomach.
Persin is the chief element, or Great Digesting Principle of the Gastric Juice—the solvent of the food, the purifying, preserving and sumulating agent of the stomach and intestines. It is extracted from the digestive stomach of the Ox, thus ferming an Artificial Digestive Fluid, precisely like the

By the aid of this preparation, the pains and criks of Indigestion and Dyspepein are removed, just as they would be by a healthy stomach. It is doing wonders for dyspeptics, curing cases of Debility, Emaciation, Nervous Decline, and Dyspeptic Consumption, supposed to be on the verge of the grave. The scientific evidence upon which it is based, is in the highest degree curious and remarkable.

in the highest degree curious and remarkable.

SCIENTIFIC EVIDENCE:

Baron Lie' ig In his celebrated work on Anima Chemistry, says: "An artificial Digestive Fluid, analogous to the Gastric Juice, may be readily prepared from the mucous membrane of the stomach of the calf, in which various articles of food, as meat and eggs, will be soltened, changed, and digested, just in the same manner as they would be in the human stomach."

Dr. Pereira, in his lamous treatise on "Food and Diet," published by Fowler & Wolls, New York, page 35, states the same great fact, and describes the method of preparation. There are few higher authorities than Dr. Pereira.

Dr. Combe, in his valuable writings on the "Physiology of Digestion," observes that "a diminution of the due quantity of the Gastric Juice is a prominent and all-prevailing cause of Dysepesia," and he states that "a distinguished protossor of medicine in London, who was severely afflicted with this complaint, finding everything elas to fail, had recourse to the Gastric Juice, obtained from the stomach of living animals, which proved completely successfull."

Dr. Graham, author of the famous works on "Vegerable Diet," says: "It is a remarkable fact in physiology, that the stomachs of animals, macerated to water, impart to the fluid the property of dissolving vn. ous articles of food, and of effecting a kind of artificial digestion of them in nowing diffreen time the natural digestive process."

AS A DYSPEPSIA CURER, Dr. HOUGHTON'S PEPSIN has produced the most marvellous effects, in curing cases of Debility, Emaciation, Nervons Declino, and Dyspeptic Consumption. It is impossible to give the details of cases in the limits of this advertisement; but authenticated certificates have been given of more than Two Hundred Remarkable Cures, in Philadelphia. New York and Boston plans. These delphia, New York and Boston alone. These were nearly all desperate cases, and the cures were not only rapid and wonderful, but permanent.

not only rapid and wonderful, but permanent.

It is a great Nervous Anidote, and particularly useful for tendency to Billious discreter, Liver Complaint; Fever and Ague, or badly trated Fever and Ague, and the evil effects of Quinine, Mercury and other drugs upon the Digestive Organs, after a long sickness. Also, for excess in eating, and the too free use of ardent spirits. It almost reconciles health with intemprance.

OLD STOMACH COMPLAINTS.

There is no form of Old Stomach Complaints which it does not seem to reach and remove at once. No matter how bad they may be, it gives instant relief! A single doso removes all the unpleasant symptoms; and it only needs to be repeated instant relief! A single dose removes all the unpleasant symptoms; and it only needs to be repeated short for a time to make these good effects permanent. Purity of Blood and Vigor of Body follow at once. It is particularly excellent in cases of Nausea, Vomiting, Crampe, Sorenees of the pit of the Stoniach, distress after cating, low, cold state of the Blood. Heaviness, Lowness of Spirits, Despondency, Emsciation, Weakness, elendency to Insanity, Suicide &c.

Dr HOUGHTON'S PEPSIN is sold by nearly all the dealers in fine drugs and Popular Vedicines, throughout the United States. It is prepared in Powder and in Fluid form—and in prescription vials for the use of Physicians.

rower and in Pittal form—and in prescription vials for the use of Physicians.

PRIVATE CIRCULARS for the use of Physicians, may be obtained of Dr. Houghton or his cagents, describing the whole process of preparation, and giving the authorities upon which the claim of this new remedy are based. As it is not a secret remedy, no objection can be raised against its use by Physicians in respectable standing and regular practice. Price One Dollar per buttle.
