Lines to Mary, of Millwood.

I've gazed on Beauty's beaming eye, Bright; sparkling gen of light— More radient than each jewell'd star, That decks the brow of night. That orb has thrown its beams around My spirit's immet shrine,

That orb has thrown its beams around My spirit's inmost shrine, And Hrez has worshipped in the light That Love has made divine.

I've gazed on Beauty's beaming eye.

Of Heaven it seemed a part;

And bid each transient glance to say — Mary! thou idol of my heart!

live seen a form of beauty rare, Which like a vision seem So light, so graceful, and so fair, As mirrored forth in dreams. As mirrored forth in dreams.
But these, the lovely, are not all
The charms the heart to win;
The precious casket, too, contains
A mind—a soul within.
These lovely attributes art thine,
And thine cash winning art.

And thine each winning art;
That bids me worship at thy shrine,
Thou idol of my heart!

The Mechanic's Refusal. BY RALPH RINGWOOD

Russel C. was a young mechanic of promising expectations. He had accquired a complete knowledge of his trade, and at the time of which I write had just attained his majority, having "graduated from his employer's shop with the highest encomiand commenced his career with bright anticipa tions of future success. He possessed but little capital, though his credit was good for any amount. His word could be relied upon, and his credit once pledged was always redeemed at the stipulated time. He had acquired the habit of rigid punctuality, and would never suffer others to keep him waiting, nor would be inconvenience them to wait for him.

good reputation among business men, and such a reputation is invaluable to a young man entering upon a life of business with a samll capital on which to rest his hopes.

Rusel C. had been at work during the week in Russel C. had been at work during the week in his little shop, and had scarcely taken time to breathe. Saturday night had slowly come around again, and as he closed his shutters, preparatory to leaving for his boarding house, a half formed resolution to attend the singing school came up in his mind, and while he was reflecting upon it he passed the residence of a wealthy merchant, and glancing at the parlor window, he observed the pretty face of Ellen May, a slight acquaintance of his—which circumstance decided the question.

He well knew that Ellen May would be present;

as she was in the habit of punctual attendance up on the evening meetings of the choir, of which she was a member.

Reader, remember that this happened in "our village," and fashion here allows the wealthy as well as the poor, the privilege of singing in the church choir, and as that wonderful body was composed of men less talented than Paginini—why of course rehearsals became necessary, or else the con down stairs would be ed by the discord of some voice not " attuned to harmony divine."

Russel bastily despatched his landlady's provisions, and made his toilette in the most approved

The new bell of the steeple of the village church began to ring in the modern "fire alarm fashion," as a signal for the singing school, and away went our hero, attired in his best "bib and tucker." The Chorister, a noted character of our village arrived in due season, and after an indefinite amount of scraping, squeaking, screwing, and re-screwing of a certain old black fiddle of his, the singing commenced. Three hours of incessant screechin rendered all parties interested sufficiently fatigued

As the girls crowded together in the entry, prep aratory to pushing their way through the door, one could see a constellation of bright eyes, and hear a combination of the sweet sounds that set our chorater's highest and most sublime musical attempt very far in the back ground; and then such lips as could be seen in that crowd sometimes—ah! it makes my heart beat stangely fast to think o those kinses we used to steal when we were young, and waited upon the sweet little Hatty, and she, the ugly thing, afterwards jilted us. But my mem-

At length I made up my mind to return home

Then came the thought, how I should be received by my old acquaintances. Many of them, doubtless, were married—and few, perhaps, would remember their old companion of the "village choir." On my return I found Russel C. a member of e Legislature, and a wealthy man. He lives in the large mansion house near the church, and has in his family a tutoress of his children, around whom lingers the traces of early beauty. Her name is Miss Ellen May.

Let the young ladies take warning and despise not the honest because they are poor mechanics, for of such is the nobility of the earth, and she who "mittens" a worthy mechanic almost alway

A SICK BACHELOR .- The New York Times thu heads a long article on this subject:

"A sick Bachelor! A dying camel in the desert! A sallor on a hen coop in the middle of the Atlantic! All the same. The same incident from different points of view. The same subject with varied accessories. It there is a preponderance of misery on any side it is on the side of the sick backelor. The camel, however intelligent it may be, is still scarcely as sensitive as the human suf-ferer, and the sailor, floating on a hen-coop a thousand miles from shore is at least spared the misery of knowing that there is help within call.

The sick bachelor is the ne plus ultra of human

We overheard one poor weather-bound individual, who was caught in the rain, humming to himself in a door way: 'Twas ever thus from childhood's hour,

That chilling fate has on me fell; There always comes a soaking shower, When I haint got no umberell.

Desperate Fight.

The Arkansas Shield contains an account of desperate fight between a man and two women on one side, and a panther on the other. The fight took place on Beaver Bayou, Philips county, Arkansas, on the 10th ult. The Shield says:

On the 10th, Mr. Grimes hed left his house during the deep snow that then lay on the ground to procure some firewood in the adjoining forest—leaving in the house a sick child, his wife and her Goths nother. Attracted by the crying of the child, it is supposed, a large and fierce panther approached the door of the house. The imitative note of a child crying drew to the door Mrs. Grimes, most fortunately, for already was the nose of the fierce intruder thrust within the door. By an effort she succeeded in closing the door and shutting out the pantner.

An alarm was then given by the ladies, which drew to the house Mr. Grimes, supposing his child to be ill, and little dreaming by how fierce an enemy his cabin was besieged. Judge of his surprise upon seeing coolly seated upon the step of his door a huge panther. Mr. Grimes advanced and atupon seeing coolly seated upon the step of his door a huge panther. Mr. Grimes advanced and attempted to get possession of hie gun, which Mrs. G. had, opening the back door, brought around to him; crouching, with his tail switching and eyes glaring, the panther watched every movement of M. G. At the very moment that Mr. G. grasped his gun, and before he could use it, the panther made a spring at his throat. With great presence of mind Mr. G. grasped at the monster and caught him by the throat, and victory seemed to be with him. Every muscle of Mr. G. was now strained to the utmost: and a long sruggle ensued; the panto the utmost; and a long sruggle ensued; the par ther was thrown, and by placing his knee on his neck and retainingg the grasp he had on his throat, Mr. G. succeeded in releasing from the jaws of the panther his left arm.

They again rose from the ground; Mr. G. never

They again rose from the ground; in G. never abandoning his vice-like hold of its throat, and both of its forelegs grasped in his left—he thus kept it at arms length, and prevented it from tearing him with its claws. Victory was not yet with Mr. G. and he still might have met with a Waterloodefeat, had not the ladies, Blucher like, come with re nforcements. A pair of tongs and a "battling stick" were brought to bear upon the panther. On blow of the tongs sent down his throat several teeth; for so tight was the grasp of Mr. G. that the animal's jaws were wide open. The heroines in this fight, Mrs. G. and her mother, continued belaboring the panther until a blow broke it down in the loins. Mr. G. kept his hold until it breather its last, and firmly believes that he choked the pan er to death, notwithstanding the aid given by the ladies. When captured, it measured eight and a half-leet from the tip of his nose to the end of his ail. Its skin now haugs on the outer side of his cabin, a trophy of a hard and bloody fight.

The Siamese Twins.

CHANG and Eng have started on an exhibition our through the United States, and were in New York some time since on their way to Boston.-They were exhibited very generally a dozen years ago, made a handsome fortune, and then settled as planters in North Carolina. They married sisters, and as the twins were bound together by indisso luble bonds, they became heads of a double household. In noticing the recent visit of Chann and Eng to the New York Herald establishment, that naper says:

They purchased a plantation of some five hundred acres in the native State of their better halves (North Carolina,) where they have been since in-creasing and multiplying in family, man-servants and maid-servants and all material wealth. They now pt seess an establishment of some thirty slaves and a family of eleven children, of whom six are referable to Chang and the other five to Eng. They attended very industriously to the business of their lantation-kent the negroes to their work-were always ready and willing to turn their own hands to something useful, and would plow, and reap, and grind, and chop wood, and do all sorts of farm work devote their time to field sports, and were amon the keenest bunters, fowlers and fishermen of their district. In fact, they lived as real country gentle men, ready to drink a glass or fight a round, as oc casion required.

The Mesdames Chang and Eng seconded their lords right well in the management of the concern and have remained behind to take charge of the household during the absence of their distingui consorts. Madame Chang devotes her time to the general supervision of the slaves and the direction of the work to be performed on the plantation, while Madame Eng charges herself with the care of the Madame Eng charges nersell with the case of the young masters and misses, and keeps a school for their tuition and that of the negroes. We should not say all the children, for two of them accompany their sires in their tour, and will, doubtless, contribute much to the interest with which they will be regared wherever they go.

Fanny Fern after the Women. FARRY was musing one Sunday after the follow ing style, which she has been candid enough to talk out about. She's a funny boy!

I've been reading the Bible to-day, and it strikes me that our foremothers were not very correct old ladies. Who flirted with the old serpent? How ladies. Who flirted with the old serpent? How came Sampson's hair cut off and his peepers extinguished. Who perforated Jæl's head with ten-peen yn ails? How came Jonah sent on a whaling voyage? Who helped Ananias tell fibs? Who put Job up to swearing? Who raised a hurricane in good old Abram's house? Who danced John the Baptist's head off, his shoulders, hey? I'd like to have you notice (that's all) what a stock we all spread among the angels, and finally result in my Hatty's changing her mind in reserved.

didn't seem to have the least consideration for future didn't seem to have the least consideration for future generations "long since unborn." Now I don't calculate, myself, to feel responsible for their capers. I've read somewhere in Byron, I believe, that every wash-tub must stand on its own pedestal! (or something like that) I don't believe in saddling my shoulders with their old fashioned transgressions. Curious, though isn't it? the mischief women make in the world? Great pity Noah hadn't set Mrs. Noah adrift when he "took one of each kind I should rather have stood my chance for a ducking than to have been shut up with such a "promiskus men-agerie. Noah was a worthy old gentleman. No mention made of his getting tipsy but once I believe CURE FOR ROSE-BUGS .-- A subscriber wishes t know if any one can suggest a method of prevent ing the yearly incursions of the rose-bug, and hear ing considerable complaint among our neighbors a having their cucumbers, grapes, and other fruit de-stroyed by these insects, I will suggest a remedy. Plant in the centre of your garden a few damask rose-bushes, and they will never light on anything else. We have a large garden with almost every kind of fruit, vines, shrubbery, and flowers, with several kinds of roses, and in the centre we have four hunches of damask rose-bushes, and I neve saw in the whole garden a rose-bug on anything but the Damask rose. When they are in blossom, I go into the garden once a day with a pan of hot water, and shake the bugs from these roses into the water, and get about a pint at one time; this I practice for a few days, and then they will disap-

"Ghosts be hanged!" said Tom Hood. " No uch things in nature. All laid long before the wood pavement. What should they come for ?—
The colliers may rise for higher wages, and the Christian may rise for his health, and bread may rise; and the rising generation may rise; but that the dead should rise only to make one's hair rise, is more than I can believe. And if grave to it's an enemy, what's the use of appearing to him if you can't pitch into him?"

Fashionable Churches.

There is more truth than fancy in what is said in the article which we have clipped from a New York letter to the Philadelphia Argus. It will do for "Sunday Reading," even hereabouts, and if none of it will apply here, then should we congratulate our city on its freedom from such religious flunkey-

Sunday is by no means an uninteresting day in Gotham. The characteristics of New Yorkers—at least some of them—may be seen in the churches as well as in the busy streets, and the preachers form no exception to the rule. There is very little republican-like to be seen in any of our "fashionable churches," the aristocratic mania increases able churches;" the aristocratic mains increases fearfully. Some time ago a decent suit would have secured a seat at least for a day. Now a carriage is necessary; and much depends on the kind of horses with which this vehicle is drawn. A gentlehorses with which this vehicle is drawn. A gentleman who comes drawn by four greys is sure to have the sexton "dancing attendance" on him at once. A two-horse customer gets a seat with a tolerable good grace; but with the one-horse man, he that comes in a vulgar buggy, may consider himself very safe if he is accomodated in the gallery. As for mere pedestrians, they may either samuggle themselves into one of the obscure back seats behind the door, or stand or go just as they are disposed. True, sometimes a member of "upper tendom," who lives within a block of the church, condescends to come without any retinue. But it is known he has ten horses, &c., at home, and this does as well. The sexton has his pew-door in realoss as well. The sexton has his pew-door in rea diness, brientot, and if the preacher has not ascended the deck, gives him a nod and a smile.

As for poor folks, if they get a seat at all, in the modern gate-houses of heaven, it must be in a dark corner where the passengers, who are able to pay, would not sit: Perhaps, however, these quant aristocrats are not so much to blame for the airs they assume and the parade they make of their livery servants, their heraldic devices, &c., as the self styled ministers of God, who allow their churche to become the theatre of such topperies.

THE PASSION OF ENVY .-- Of all the spies, huma or animal, Envy is the most persevering, prying, observant and indefatigable in its serpent-like at-

When the great Frederick of Prussia put the question severally to each of his courtiers, request-ing their opinion as to the best remedy to sharpen the eye-sight, some recommended fennel, some glasses, some one thing and some another, till it came to Actias, who very gravely advised his sovereign to try envy.

Whatever we do or say, is straightway snapped

Whatever we do or say, is straightway snapped up by this lurking, sinister meddler, distorted and disarranged by this eldest born of Malice, and then given to the crew of semi-demons, ever lurking long the hedge-row of vice, as a by-word and matter of ridicule.

Whatever we do ill, is magnified by this imp of Hate, to absolute wickedness, and even our best actions and motives are distorted to very hideous ness of aspect. All our failings are watched an blazoned torth to the gaping crowd, ever ready to grasp at a fault in a fellow being, and for that fault rucify him without mercy.

Envy is the lowest, vilest, meanest of all the pas

ions that ever swaved the human heart. And while Faith, Love, Hope, Justice and all their siswhile raits, Love, Mope, better virtues, combine to ennoble and elevate humanity; and while Hate, Revenge, and blear-eyed Malice, are but semi-active qualities, dependent upon other circumstances foreign to their influence, for on the alert, ever in action, playing the insiduo

Dependent upon no circumstances, indigenous to no clime or country, it leaps into instant being, full fledged like Minerva from the brain of Olympus Thunderer, and the first act of the young fiend is mischief.

Envy is so cowardly and contemptible an attri-bute that it exults in wretchedness, and laughs and makes it more wretched still. He that would avoid Envy in himself, must pos andrew Jackson's epitaph on his wife. It is known to have been his own composition, yet although i has been read by hundreds on her tomb in Ten see, it has never appeared in print before. This singular inscription reads, thus:

"Here lie the remains of Mrs. Rachael Jackson, wife of President Jackson, who died on the 22nd wile of Freshelm Jacks, and of the of the of December, 1828, aged 61. Her face was fair, her person pleasing, her temper amiable, and her heart kind. She delighted in relieving the wants of her fellow oreatures, and cultivated that divine pleasure by the most liberal and unpretending methods. To the poor she was a benefactress; rich she was an example; to the wretched a com-forter; to the prosperous an ornament; her pity went hand in hand with her benevolence; and she thanked her Creator for being permitted good. A being so gentle, and yet so virtuous, slan-der might wound but could not dishonor—even death, when he tore her from the arms of her husband, could but transplant her to the bosom of her

The following is too good to be lost. We copy it from the Columbia (Texas) Democrat. It is worthy of an extensive circulation:

A good deal has been said, and well said, about me speaking of other men's wives as their ladies. I would sound very ridiculous to hear a lady call her husband my gentleman, or ask another lady when her gentleman was, when enquiring about her hus her gentleman was, when enquiring about her dus-band. Well one is just as bad as the other; to give up plain husband and plain wife, and a plain way of calling people by their right names. We should not be at all surprised if that class of soci-ety who hunt for roundabout ways to express their ideas, did not in a little while, when enquiring about one's sons and daughters, adopt such mode about one's sons and daughters, adopt stern invoices of expression as these: "How is your oldest masculine offspring?" or, "How is your little feminine darling, who addresses you as parent?" Or, when speaking of our negroes, allude to them as our Ethiopian bondsmen. We can imagine one of these individuals entering a complaint in the fo these individuals entering a companion in the lowing language:—"My dear gentleman, our specimen of the canine species was by your youngest masculine offspring set upon my lady's feline pet; and had it not been for your oldest feminine Ethiopian bondswoman, it would by compulsion have been forced to depart this life."

THE LONDON POST OFFICE .- The St. Louis In-

elligencer.says: The London General Post-office occupies, v lieve, an area of five acres. The building is 400 feet long, and 64 feet high, and contains twelve distinct departments. The communication between the departments is maintained by the tunnel beneath the great hall of the building, in which let-ters, &c., from one department to the other are conveyed by machinery propelled by steam power.— The number of persons employed in the various departments is 2,900, and the annual revenue is at resent unwards of £2,200,000. The number of letters that passed through London Post-office in 1838 was only seventy-six millions; now it is nearly four hundred millions.

FEMALE SOCIETY .- By all means mix as of as you can with refined society. A dignified, social intercourse with intelligent female society has a happy effect upon the character. It tends to soften down asperities, promote cheerfulness, refine the feelings, and to save a young man from vicious company. It should be more reserved than we appearably allow with our own ser, but never more generally allow with our own sex, but never mor

MERVOUS DEBILITY.

Weakness of the system, Nervous Debility and premature decay generally arises from the destructive haby of youth, that solitary practice so fatal to the healthful existence of man, and it is the young who are the most apt to become its Victims from an ignerance of the dangers to which they subject themselves. Parents and Guardians are often misled with respect to the cause or source of disease in their sons and wards. Alas! how often do they ascribe to other causes the wasting of the frame, Palpitation of the Heart, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Derangement of the Nervous System, Cough and Symptoms of Consumption, also those serious Mental effects, such as loss of Memory, Depression of Spirits or peculiar fits of Melancholy, when the truth is they have been caused by indulging Pernécious but alluring practices, destructive to both Body and Mind. The True Digestive Fluid or Gastric Juice

The True Digestive Fluid or Gastrie Juice

PREPARED from Rennet, or the fourth Stomach of the Ox, after directions of Baron Liesie; the great Physiological Chemist, by J. S. Hough; ton, M. D., Philadelphia, Pa.

This is a truly wonderful remedy for Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Jaundice, Igiver Complsint, Constipation, and Debility, curing after Nature's own method, by Nature's own Agent, the Gastric Juice.

Half a teaspoonful of Pepsin, infused in water, will digest or dissolve, Five Pounds of Roast Beef in about two hours, out of the stomach.

Principle of the Gastric Juice—the solvent of the areas as me emer element, or Great Digesting includes the solvent of the food, the purifying, preserving and sumulating agent of the stomach and intestines. It is extracted from the directive according to the stomach of the stomach agent of the stomach and intestines. It is extracted from the digestive stomach of the Ox, thus iseming an Artificial Digestive Fluid, precisely like the natural Gastric Juice in its chemical powers, and furnishing a complete and perfect substitute for it. By the aid of this preparation, the pains and evils of Indigestion and Dyspepsia are removed, just as they would be by a healthy stomach. It is doing wonders for dyspeptics, curing cases of Debility, Emaciation, Nervous Decline, and Dyspeptic Consumption, supposed to be on the verge of the grave. The scientific evidence upon which it is based, is in the highest degree curious and remarkable.

SCIENTIFIC EVIDENCE!

SCIENTIFIC EVIDENCE!

Baron Liebig in his celebrated work on Anima
Chemistry, says: "An artificial Digestive Fluid, analogous to the Gastric Juice, may be readily prepared from the mucous membrane of the stomach of the calf, in which various articles of food, as meat and eggs, will be softened, changed, and digested, just in the same manner as they would be in the human stomach."

be in the human stomach."
Dr. Pereira, in his tamous treatise on "Food and Diet," published by Fowler & Wells, New York, page 35, states the same great fact, and describes the method of preparation. There are few higher authorities than Dr. Pereira.
Dr. Combe, in his valuable writings on the "Physiology of Digestion," observes that "a diminution of the due quantity of the Gastric Juice is a prominent and all-prevailing cause of Dyspepsia," and he states that "a distinguished professor of medicine in London, who was severely afflicted and he states that "a distinguished professor of medicine in London, who was severely afflicted with this complaint, finding everything else to fail, and recourse to the Gastric Juice, obtained from

Thus are swept from existence thousands who might have been of use to their country, a pleasure to their friends, an ornament to society.

WEAKNESS OF THE ORGANS immediately cured and full vigor restored.
Oh, how happy have hundreds of misguided youths been made, who have been suddenly restored to health from the devastations of those terrific maladies which result from indiscretion. Such persons, before contemplating MARRIAGE, should reflect that a sound mind and body are the most necessary requisites to promote connubtal happiness. Indeed, without this, the journey throitife becomes a weary pilgrimage; the prospect hourly darkens to the view; the mind becomes shadowed with despair, and filled with the melanscholy reflection that the happiness of another becomes blighted with our own.
