Carrier's Address to the Patrons of the Lancastor Intelligencer-January 1,-1854. Roll on the Charlot wheels, old Time;

What care we for thy rapid flight? Grow longer, save One, and His sublime Decree has long since passed, that all must die.
Why should we grieve that months and years: Have gone their course, and events, some ir day, and gathered are among the Ruins of the past. The tears we shed will will never bring them back. The throbs Will never bring them bear. I have been of grief that struggle at our hearts.

Can only make ourselves more miserable; Then why should we repine that years are Rolling round? Soon the last will come. Rolling round? Soon the last will come.
And go for us. And taking in the list
Of human sorrows, to many who now seem
To enjoy the things of life; the grave
Would be most welcome.

See the stars are going out, and the Red streaks of day are dawning
In the East. All night-long the Sounds of guns and cannons
Have disturbed the ear of sleep, And now, as though weary of the Cheerful sport, but a solitary shot At intervals is heard. The shadows of At inervals hearts in a law and morning comes
To light the earth, and crowds, impatient
For the dawn of day, are waiting for The approach of better cheer. But few tears are shed at the decease Of the old year. The sad events that filled The sages of its history, are now forgotten; r, it remembered, only as the incidents 1 Time, against which man has got no Right to murmur. Joy or sorror Atl must share alike, and bow in ion to the will of

The New YEAR is a gala day... The New Year is a gaia day,
Not unlike the Carnivals of old,
When lads and lasses met in busy throngs
To feast on love, or sugar plums at pleasure.
A motley crowd indeed is seen at every Corner. The wrinkled face of age turns rou Corner. The wrinkled lace of age, turns ro-laugh at boyish glee or maiden folly. Each one dressed in holliday apparel, Tippets fine and Cuffs, and crossed-barred bresses, and Muffs resembling bear-skins, Or hide torn from the Prairie 2011alo, or nide torn from the Prairie Bullalo, The Beaver and the Otter and the Seal, Contribute to make up the outward show Of those who fill our crowded streets. The lines of care are written on low faces; Here and there a squalid beggar with his Tattered clothes, moves slewly by, and Pausing asks for alms: some pale ckeeked Pausing asks for alms; some pal Paulsing asks for aims; some pairs case the Wife, wn pase wayward husband on the New Year Morn, piedged his last shilling for the delights Of zum, and on whose board no signs of Cheer are seen, and in whose home sits Cheer are seen, and the whose home size Chilling want and pinching powerty, Her tale of misery finds few ears to listen And few eyes to weep; and as the cold Wind sweeps the streets along, she waps. Her scanty cloak around her, and returning To her dreary home, with tearful eye watche The squalid babe whose food that morn

The squalid babe whose food that morn She vainly sought to beg.
Y. t these belong not to the busy crowd.
Every thing with them is joy and hope And promise. They little dragm that Buried in the future, there may yet remain, Some shadow darker than the dragary tomb, To rest on them, to quench the fire of their Eye, and dampen energies now strong and vigore And o'er the soul hang like a gloomy pall, Crushing the drops of life from out the heart And rendering every moment sad and serrowful.

The gloom of night will hush the loud festivity, And, save the few who linger far behind To join the later revelry, each one will return Unto his quiet home, prepared to wait another New Year's advent, e'er they renew their Fostive joy. The cares of life; its profitable Purauits and labors will absorb their minds, And all forgettul of the Old Year's grave, Or New Year's birth, they'll still press on The rounds of life, and toil for wealth, For honor and a name to leave For honor and a name to leave hind them when they're dead.

'Twas said by one whose wisdom is high Held in estimation, that the social Gatherings of a people, tend to improve The State, and strengthen the strong sinews Of the country. The interchange of soul, And thought and sentiment, found At the leative board, will make life dearer, And more sweet, and turnish zeal And energy to liberty's defendants If this be so, then let them all continue And as the year comes round to greet Us with its new born hopes, let the loud Music ing and echo, and every cloth
Be spread, and the bright wine and
Banquet knit the chord that binds The hearts of freemen all together.

Our Country now is safe, united by Our Country now is saic, united by The golden chords of love and patriousm, The nation turns its hopeful eye on him Who guides the ship of state; And conscious of its safety in his hands, Looks gialdy to the future and disdains curls on Tyrant's lips: What care we for the gaudy show, and Vaunted pride, that come o'er the Lingering ghost of royalt y! The sweat, And groans, and tears of slaves, that Purchased them, e'er long will change To molten fire, to consume their life, And rear upon their princely ruins The stars and emblems of the free.

Our own free State sits proudly in the number Our own free state sits product in the number, ler iron hills resound with the loud hammer, That bears in bars, her still unbounded wealth. Her princely cities stand as monuments of the Untiring industry and genius of her sons. The stars and stripes of liberty wave over Her unequalled soil. Her fruitful farms B sk in the summer's sun, and scarcely
H; de their bosom in the suns of winter;
Her railroads run like rivers on their course,
Bearing the tide of wealth and teeming bearing the tide of wealth and teeming Fortune, down through her valleys and Her mountain gorges, enriching all And rendering all more prosperous.

What care we for the rapid flight of Time! While all the "Eternal years of God" roll round Our country must and will be free. But other actors will supply their place, Learned in the untramheled schools, where Knowledge is not bought and paid for, like Ghattels in the common market; With hearts as brave and dauntless As the gnarled oak, whose giant limbs Defy the storm. These will defond The State, when we are gone, with freedom's Banner waving o'er their heads, and freedom's

From A. Woodward, M. D., of Penn. University, Philadelphia.—It gives me pleasure to add my testimony to the professional ability of the Author of the "Medical Manual." Numerous cases of disease of the Gental Organs, some of them of long standing, have came under my notice, in which his skill has been manifest in restoring to perfect health, in cases where the patient has been considered beyond medical aid. I have been acquainted by self-abuse, or excess of venery, I do not know his superior in the profession rais is without exception, the most comprehensive and intelligent work published on the class of diseases of which it treats. Avoiding all technical terms, it addresses itself to the reason of its readers. It is free from all objectionable matter, and no parent, however fastidious, can object to and no parent, nowders lateralous; can object to placing it into the hands of his sons. The author has devoted many years to the treatment of the various complaints treated of, and, with too, little breath to puff, and too little presumption to impose, he has offered to the world, at the merely nominal price of 25 cents, the fruit of some tweaty years' most successful practice."—Herald.
"No teacher or parent should be without the knowledge imparted in this invaluable work. It would save years of pain, mortification and sorrow to the youth under their charge." — People's Advoof these articles alone, I have known young men. A Presbyterian clergyman in Onio, writing of "Hunter's Medical Manual" says:—" Thousands upon thousands of our youth, by evil example and influence of the passions, have been led into the habit of self-pollution, without realizing the sin and fearful consequences upon themselves and their posterity. The constitution of thousands/who their posterity. The constitution of thousands/who are raising families have been enfeebled, if not broken down, and they do not kcow the cause or the course. Anything that can be done as to calighten ture. Anything that can be done so to enlighter and influence the public mind as to check, and ultimately to remove this wide-spread source of human wretchedness, would confer the greatest blessing next to the religion of Jesus Christ, on the present and coming generations.
