A Pretty Foot. There's magic in a pretty foot. And well the ladies know it-And she who has a pretty one Is pretty sure to show it: At times, too, you are martyred by The nicest little ankle, That shoot an arrow through the eyes, Within your heart to rankle. Of course you turn your gaze aside, And all your blushes stiffe For well you know she's not aware Her skirts are raised a triffe But should you think she might perchance Have on a loosened gaiter, Your fingers itch to play the part Of honest lady's waiter Though tantalized till he is cruzed-Stark mad with wild romancing. That witching foot along his brain A thomsand waltzes dancing, The while it merely lightly pats, is thoughtless she may move it-No modest man would dare to dream There was a leg above it. But when it tips across the street, Through winds, and mud, and vapor By sheerest accident you see How beautiful the taper: And as it steps upon the walk, Amid the crowd to mingle, Two roguish eye look up and say, I wonder if he's single!" But I would have no indy think I fancy her a schemer. And beg her to remember that The poet is a dreamer: He sees what others do not see, And seeks for hidden beauty-No pretty face can lure him from The path of moral duty.

MISS TODD, M. D.; OR DISEASE OF THE HEART.

The days of my clerkship were ended my examination was over; I was admitted; wrote myself. "Nehemiah Hubbs, Attorney," put up my new bright little sign, and in my native village began my professional career. No, I did not, either; I am mistaken; I intended to pursue the honorable practice of the noble profession to which I had dedictated my talents and learning, in the place of my birth, but never was truer word penned than the time-honored proverb, "A prophet has no honor in his own country." I believe if I had remained in the village of Green Briar till my head was white, they would have thought of me as nothing but a boy, and would have feared to trust me. Even after my sign was put up, nobody called on Mr. Hubbs ; I

"She !" said I to myself, "the boy sure ly has Welsh blood in his veins, they always she everything."

The boy soon returned, saying, "the Doctor wasn't at home sir, but I left your name on the slate." In the course of the afternoon, as I lay upon the sofa, with my hand pressed upon my head, to still its irregular pulsations, there was a soft tap at my door. "Come in," I called out, and to my surprise in came the neatest, brightest, and most cheerful looking little woman, it had ever been my lot to meet. "You sent for me, I believe, sir ?" she said in a quick, brisk, pleasant way.

"I; No, madam: you are laboring under i mistake. "Ah! I beg pardon," said the little voman, "I found on my slate the name of Mr. Hubbs, number fourteen, Mrs. Gray's boarding house, with request that I would call and see him." "Your slate, madam," I exclaimed, my astonishment increasing every moment. "you surely are not a---"

"Physician ! yes, sir," she interrupted quickly, "I'm a physician, Dr. Todd." "Extraordinary!" was all that I could say, for though I had heard at a distance of the existence of such beings, this was my first introduction to a female practiioner of the Esculapian art. It was rather awkward, but since she had come, I determined to make the best of it, and acquaint the lady doctor with my case. She felt my pulse, and asked numerous questions as to my symptoms, and then in her quick bright way exclaimed-"Nervous! nervous! that's all, depend upon it! Excuse me, sir, but by the air of our room, I presume you are much given o smoking.

I pleaded guilty. "And how many eigars do you usually smoke a dav?" "I could not tell; I never counted; as oon as I threw one away, I took another, usually." "Hum! cigar in your mouth pretty much all the time, ch? Chew, too?"

Again a reluctant confession was wrung rom me.

"I presume you sit up late, smoking all the time?"

"Yes ma'am, smoking and reading." "That's it! ".Ne" I would have been to this day had I remained in Green Briar. Only one case claimed my attention during the three months of my patient continuance in Green Briar, after being admitted to the bar, and that was the case of an unjstly impounded big "feloniously abstracted, your honor, from the small but secure spot which my client had trustingly deposited him in, and maliciously driven to the public enclosure called a pound, for the vile purpose, doubtless, of compelling my client in his poverty and destitution, to pay the enormous fee which has been demanded of him, in order to extricate the animal from his unpleasant position, and restore him to the bosom of his family!" By this I meant the client's family, the pig having none of his own; it was a figure of speech undoubtedly not inhabiting an Irish cabon, but still it rounded off the period, and sounded well to me, as I repeated over and over again my maiden speech, *pacing up and down the floor of my little office. In this, my first case, I was successful so far as to rescue the impounded animal and save my client from the payment of an unjust demand; but it brought no silver to my pocket, neither, to my surprise, did it seem to bring honor to my name. The cloquence of my speech did not form the theme, as I fondly hoped it would, of paragraphs in the village papers, or of discussion at the corners of the streets, neither did it , bring to my office the rush of clients, for which each day I and so I came to a sudden determination to remove from that pleasant spot, and settle had ever heard of me, where, above all, there was not a soul to call me ".NE"

There I was more successful, and soon had the opportunity of forming a very advantageous partnership; business increased; money began to come in, slow at first, but after a time more plentifully; and all things seemed prosperous in my outward circumstances. But alas! as we are so often told poetically, there is no sweet without its bitter, no rose without its thorn; and trou-she had removed by an occasional visit, the ble came to me in the shape of disease, insidious and slow in its approaches at first, ing to come and take up her abode with long feared and suspected, but at length betraying itself so plainly, that I could not blind myself any longer to the truth.

I remained at my boarding house, and found no comfort in anything but my cigar, and my dread disease grew worse and worse. As yet I had consulted no physician, partly, I think, from the apprehension of having my fears confirmed; but as I sat by the window one day, smoking as vigorously as ever, gazing abstractly across the street, my attention was attract. ing whether or not it would be best to make trial of a physician's skill, a sudden twinge and flutter decided me; yes, I would send for Dr. Todd, and know the acter of the 19th Century. Victoria is a blond, too, but able conclusion that agriculture is the great transcendant interest of our country, and the mother of eight children, with an upupon which all other interests depend. per lip too short for even queenly beauty, The amount of its registered and enrolled onnage is 4,407,010 tons. The amount of and legs suffering from the same infirmity capital invested in manufactures is $600,-Eugenie is a belle femme; Victoria a model 000,000. The amount of its foreign immother. Eugenie is a sylph; Victoria, (I say it "more in sorrow than in anger',) pigmy still, though perched upon the Alps." However reasonable the world ought to be, it is nevertheless feeble on the side of female charms; and the little English queen, charming as she may be, would be far from being thought a rival to the beautiful Eugenie-especially in France, where graces of its farms and live stock is $5,000,000. of person are so fully appreciated. But England abounds in beautiful women.

beautiful as, and better than, Aspasia; and if there be any national feeling about unpleasant comparisons, I would suggest to the Government to dress up the Mistress of the Robes, perhaps the Duchess of Sutherland, or some yonnger beautiful woman, to play the queen-and thus allow her Majesty to come and see Paris quietly and comfortably. But, doubtless, her government consider that divine 'rights' will amply compensate for lack of stature, and I m half of their opinion. Eugenie was simply Mademoiselle Somebody, and is now Empress only in name; and her husband is Emperor of the French only by the "Grace of God and the National will?" Victoria is the quintessence of all royalty since the time of William the Conquerer; she is queen because she cannot help it, and her usband is only the father of her children and, all in all, the Prince Consort. Victoria is idol of the proudest nation of the earth, who adore a petticoat government and find mystic sublimity in all its tinsel and embroidery. Eugenie is petted by her husband's subjects, who adore beauty as they adore the Salic Law. Victoria is a solid queen, just as she should be for solid Enlishmen. But nothing like a woman would serve the French as sovereign. Nothing short of a real Lord of Creation car serve their "turns." Try to imagine Victoria on the throne of France. The idea is as ludicrous as that of the Reverend Miss Brown at the Yankee nation, and as droll as it woould have been to see Adam in Eden, simply the father of Cain and Abel, raising large chickens:

"Putting the cakes down to the fire, Some a little further off and some a little nigher. meanwhile her majesty Eve sat in state giving names to the animals that passed before her.

THEODORE PARKER.

Fanny Fern went recently to hear Theodore Parker, (the Abolitionist,) who entertains an audience every Sabbath day at. New Music Hall, Her impressions derived from the occasions are thus stated : "Many persons complain of being pes-tered by bed-bugs-it is easy to avoid the heard a great singer here a few nights ago, waren inconvenience. On going to bed, strip off and bright eyes sparkled, and waving your shirt, and cover yourself from head to plumes kept time to moving fans-and opera glasses, and ogling, and fashion and folly reigned for this once triumphant. I can't got up any devotion here, under these latticed balconies, with their fashion-able freight. If it was a good old church, with a cracked bell and unhewn rafters, a pine pulpit, with the honest sun staring these in the sum staring oot with boiled molasses. Let every part era glasses, and ogling, and fashion and of the body be thickly covered with it. On folly reigned for this once triumphant. I of the body be thickly covered with it. On coming to bite you, the bugs will stick fast in the molasses, and you can kill them in the morning."
