AP HENBY INVIGOBATING CORDIAL.-The merits The Loss of the Arctic. Details of The Catastrophe. From the New York papers of Thursday, we glean the following facts in relation to the loss of the Arctic:—On Wednesday, a reporter visited the office of Messrs. E. K. Gollins & Co, No. 56 Wall street. He found it filled by a large number of citizens, some of them men of eminence in their respective callings, be-sides a fair representation from other parts of the Union. Two of the surgiving sons of Mr. Collins were present. In one corner of the apartment behind the railing a numerous group was gathered around a plainly dressed man of about 38 years of age, who though naturally hardy and vigorous, bore evident marks of excessive fatigue by his care worn look. This man was Thomas Brennan, an attache to the enginery department of the Arctic, and one of the few fortunate survivors of the sad catastrophe. A deep feeling of anxiety seemed to pervade the minds of all present, and eager questions were propounded o Mr. Brennan in rapid succession. Some described the personal appearance of absent ones bound to them by affinities and deep inquired if he had seen them enter any of the ats which left the vessel previous to the last one, on which he was saved. His words were anxiously waited for, and in some instances to buoy up an expiring hope, but in others to lead them to dispair of ever meeting the loved ones again on earth. · During the morning the office of Adams &

Co.'s Express was filled with the relatives and triends of the passengers, anxious to see' Mr. Burns. The scene here presented was a most of their friends and relatives.

In Wall street, on Wednesday, was seen Witham B. Reed, Esq., who had come over, on hearing the sad event, to learn some tidings of Prot. II. Reed, who was among the passen est intimation. They are brothers.

Thomas Garland, fireman, one of the per sons saved in the Lebanon, states that one man from the strange steamer swaff to the Arctic, and was hauled up on deck with a rope but he was a Frenchman, and could not speak one word of English. This man, it would apput off from the propeller, Carnogan states, was, with its passengers, literally ground to pieces by the still revolving wheels of the Arc-tic--the shricks of the unfortunate beings rising above the confusion and excitement on board. were rescued saved nothing but their lives; to complain. Snatched from the jaws of death as it by a miracle, diey are but too glad to esyear. oct 17 4t-39 destitute condition. From the statement of Mr. Thompson, who
