From the Country Gentleman. SONG-MARY'S GARDEN.

AIH-Long, tailed Blue. Mary,---Mary,---pretty Mary, How does your garden gree For spring has come and warmer suns Have banished frost and snow. O sir, I've violets hlue, Jonquils and tulips too, And pansies rare and lilies fair And daises not a few And now full soon. Vill pleasant June Bring forth my roses sweet : And lities white and pinks so bright, And larkspurs, trim and neat, Petunias in their pride Will open their blossoms wide, Spireas here and foxgloves there Stand suiling, side by side When July comes With burning suns And earth is rich and warm Then glowing stocks and hollyhocks The bright parterre will charm; And phloxes rich and raro, Carnations bright and fair : Ipomoas too of every hue Are climbing every where Suspiragons too or varied hue, And baisams white and red; While o'er them all, Erect and tall, The dahlia lifts her head : While here and there a ros In grace perpetual blows, And asters, purple, white and red. And thus my garden grows.

THE RUNAWAY'S. RETURN. Well, here am I, after my night's walk, once more in the village where I was born. The sun is up now, and shining brightly. Things appear the same, and yet different. How is it? There was a big tree used of his situation. to stand at that corner; and where is

A REMINISCENCE IN THE LIFE OF WASHINGTON. One pleasant evening in the month of June, in the year 17-, a man was observed entering the borders of a wood, near the Hudson river, his appearance that of a person above the common rank. The inhabitants of a country village would have dignified him with the title of "squire," and from his manners pronounced him proud; but those more accustomed to his society, would inform you that there was something like a military air about him. before he had told me how wrong I was. He spoke kindly, and in sorrow; but my pride would not bear it. I thought I would leave home. What is it that makes me tremble so now? My father coughed as I crept along by his door, and I thought I heard my mother speak to him ; so I stood a moment, with my bundle in my hand, holding my breath. He coughed again. I have seemed to hear that cough in every quarter of the world. When I had unlocked the door, my heart failed me; for my sister had blessed : me the night before, and told me she had something to tell me in the morning. I turned back, opened the door of her little. room, and looked at her ; but my tears fell on the bed-clothes, and I was afraid it would wake her. Half blinded, I groped down stairs. As I hurried away, I felt I suppose, as Cain felt when he had murdered his brother. My father, my mother, and my sister, had been kind to me ; but I had been unkind to them, and, in leaving them thus, I felt as if I was murdering them all.

Had I been a robber, I could not have felt more guilty. But what do I say that for ? I was robbing them of their peace. I for? I was robbing them of their peace. I make it necessary to give you, so much was stealing that from them that the whole trouble with the care of him; but I have to world could not make up to them; but on went. The hills look as purple as they did when I used to climb up them. The rooks are cawing among the high elm-trees by ful look, "why have you not given the gen the church. I wonder whether they are tleman something to eat ?" the same rooks ! There is a shivering comes over me as I get nearer home. Home! I feel there is no home for me.

Here is the corner of the hedge, and the old seat; but father is not sitting there. There is the patch of ground that my sister called her garden ; but she is not walking in it. And yonder is the bed room window; my mother is not looking out of it now.

I see how it is. They are none of them here, or things would not look as they do. Father would not let the weeds grow in this fashion, nor the thatch fall in; and my mother and my sister never stuffed that straw through the broken panes. But I will rap at the door. How hollow it sounds! Nobody stirs. All is as silent as the grave. I will peep in at the window. It's an empty house, that is clear. Ten long years! How could I expect it to be otherwise ? I can bear hard-work, and hunger, and thirst; but I cannot bear this,

The elderberry is in blossom as it was fresh as ever, running up to the window that my mother opened to call after me. I could call after her now, loud enough to be heard a mile, if I thought she would hear me.

It's of no use stopping here! 1 will cross the church-yard, and see if the clerk lives where he did; but he will not know me. My cheek was like the rose when I went away; but the sun has made it another color. How narrow the path is between the grass! it used to be wider, at least] thought so: no matter. The old sun-dial I see, is standing there yet.

To such scenes, and to such solemnities, the city was devoted. Those of our citizens who remembered and sought to honor the day as the Christian Sabbath, were either restrained by the confusion from leaving their dwellings, or if they succeeded in gaining their respective places of worship, found their devotions disturbed and the services of the Church well nigh impracticable, because of the noise from without. Among the visitors at Washington is Judge Williamson, of Texas, commonly known as "Judge Willy." Judge Willy was once presiding in St Augustine county, when a legal bully attempted to intimidate him. Thompson, having succeeded in "picking a jury suit his purpose, turned his attention to the court, and remarked : "If your honor please, here is the law which governs this case," at the same time drawing a bowie knife of unusual size, and laying it across an open book before him. Fore-warned, fore-armed, was Judge Willy, and drawing from beneath his hunting shirt, not a Colt, but a horse pistol very calmly rejoined— "This, sir, is the constitution, and paramount to the las." Mr. Thompson peaceably acquiesced.

HOW TO APPLY GUANO TO CORN .- Dr Reynolds, in an article on this subject, in the New England Farmer, says :--- One of the best fields of corn which I saw in this town the past season, was raised with guano in the following manner: After the ground had been properly prepared, a furrow was made for the row, of the common depth.
