TREATMENT OF FRUIT TREES .---- Mr

VOL. LVI.

I YEARN FOR THE SPRING. I yearn for the Spring, when the birds shall sing,

And each morning awake fresh flowers: We have waited long for the lark's blithe works And the lengthening evening hours. A shroud of snow had lain on the earth,

An icy hand on each stream. The sun in the sky opened its languid eye, And sent but a sickly gleam : And the frosty breeze moaned among the trees And the rattling hail and rain Come sweeping past in the angry blast, And dash'd 'gainst the window name : And never a flower, in the stormy hour, Dared cause un its head---For all gentle things fiel on Summer's wings,

Or elso in the snow lay dead ! I yearn for the Spring, when the birds shall sing, h morn shall awake fresh flowers : We have listened long for the woodlark's song, and the thrush at the evening hours. 'Tis a beauteous time when the bud first bursts, And child-like the young leaf stands And catches the drops of the gentle show-In its small and velvety hauds!

When the tender grass feels the south wind pass In its charlot unseen. And old Mother Earth, at the new Spring's birth Arrays her in robes of green-When the bounding stream, as if in a dream, Mormars on to its unknown. And tells the tail reeds, as it onward speeds. That the fair Lady Spring hath come' 0, I yearn for the Spring-for the balmy Spring-Who floats like a fairy autom.

And toucheth the land with a magic wand. Till all beauteous things are seen. I long to be out at earladawn, When the eastern light is now

Mong the odors borne from the scented thorn, And the showers of silver dew Oh, i cannot tell how my soul doth swell, With an inward happiness: For the which my God I bless

From an unknown source comes a nameles a Which pervades my being through-A joy and a love, and a strength from above, And I seem to be made anew Oh, come then, Spring,--let the woodlark sing--

Let the floweret one its eve: Like the lark i'd sour to the heaven's blue floor-Like the flower, gaze up to the sky.

Damon was borne to jail, was too much at a time; that he must tell them what he had done with the money, or placed in due time upon trial and acquitted they would whip him to death.

This short, but comprehensive declaration was followed by the display of their whips, four horrible instruments, tribly thonged, enough to wear welts into the hide of an alligator.

But the gambler had been schooled in a profession from which all fear is banished. His trade had led him too often within the crackling shot of pistols and the cut of steel, and his reply was thundered out as bold as Auvergne's : "Whip away, and be d—d; but if you don't kill me, I'll kill four of you !" vnchers, to counsel with each other. poor chance to be felt, or even heard.

Among the ungodly reprobates that infested the land, living by no honest labor, and to no useful end, was one Eugene Damon, a gambler by profession, a bully by practice, the terror of the more peaceful portion of the citizens. Damon was a married man, and, what is stranger, his wife was as much of the rowdy as he was, traveling with him in all his excursions, assisting him in time of need by counsel and, unless common report scandalized her. lending a strong hand occasionally, when do? it was needed.

For several years this couple resided ricane of 1837. There they occupied a neat, one-story dwelling of their own, and when not absent every man," as their's was.

they make up the deprivation by enjoying to get across barely in time to escape the themselves very fast when they get at it.

This accounted for the uproarious singing and shouting that invariably accompanied their orgies at Damon's dwelling, and returned to his senses. It had been the pokeberry scarlet of their noses observable on days subsequent.

Nobody ever fought there, however, for with the avowal "that he had a character to sustain," and made every one of his guests surrender his knife and pistols into his keeping until the end of the spree.

Thus, while every public meeting at Wilder produced this fisticuffing, shooting and stabbing, there never was a difficulty of the sort at Damon's, thus corroborating Milton's "Devils, with the damned hold concord; men only disagree!" I question whether Milton was ever more aptly quoted in his life.

In the town of Wilder traded the substantial firm of Fahnestock, Beverly & Co., produce merchants. I say the substantial firm, for, while other houses smashed without assets of any sort, this establishment paid fifteen cents on the dollar; and so remarkable was this event considered at the 'time that it was proposed in New York to present them with a service of plate. The house had just received a remittance of funds, on account of some shipments of cotton, to the very handsome duly locked up in the iron safe in the they were in their own solvency. But when the store was unlocked the next morning, the safe, sad misnomer, was found low the town. to be wrenched open, the money drawer empty and the valuable packages ab-

Vain would be any attempt to describe the scene. Fahnestock collared Beverly and demanded the money. Beverly chased the Company into the street, the Company screaming fire, murder, thieves, all in a breath to know who left the store last. People crowded in from all parts to find Fahnestock gasping in his chair, Beverly cutting up most extravagant pantomimes and the company dissolved in uncontrollable anguish. It was a painful sight that affair was. The danger of a man falling from grace never excited half so much distress in the heart of the actors as the loss of that money.

Among the lookers on, and by far the least concerned of any, appeared Eugene Damon, who examined the pick-lock with a shrewd smile, and vouchsafed it as his opinion "that it was a juicy thing !" language that certainly meant something, al-though none of the bystanders knew what.

Great rewards were offered to induce the Valuable Invention.—A rare chance is now of fred to business men to realize a fortune. A new fasture has been gopened up in the manufacture of Flour, which must worthink at once revolutionize the old process, and go into use all over the land. By the in-genuity and skill of Edwin & Jane s M. Chark, they have brought about a complete Merchant Flouring Mill which is adspled to the waits of the whole world, and which is applicable to overy locality. By this invention, the monop-edy of milling heretoforce carried up beavy cupitalists is, completely broken up, and a complete Merchant Flouring Mill is brought within the reach of any person having a flow hundred dollars. The consequence of which will be-nuadreds and thousands of these Flouring Mills while be put in operation in all parts of the Union; it keing appli-cable to any power, from a four-horse up to any other de-signed. It can be placed in a room with other machinery, and the small space it occupies not to be unised—being on-ly 21 feet long by 4 fact wide, embracing within this small compass all the machinery, and turning out two barrels of superfine flour per hour. It is perfectly portable, a horse and dray, at a single load, being cipable of hauling it from one location to another, thus making it truly the most val-uable discovery of the present age. It can be seen in full operation at the Barrel Factory, on Buke street, a few steps north of the Railroad, in the city of Lancaster, Pan'a. Dising street, Lancaster, Pa.  a LANGASTER, 1st month, 20th, 1855.

 Having scen in operation Edwin & Jannes M. Clark's enewly patented combined Grinding and Boling or Merchant Floaring Mill, on the 17th inst, I sun free to state, that I observe to be a valuable improvement in the conversion of wheat into Flour, for several reasons:

 Ist. In the operation referred to, the Mill ground and bolied d'inding the work.
 Ist. In the operation referred to, the Mill ground and bolied d'observe to state, which I held in my hand, and making Flour of a superior quality, and cleaning the bran about as well as is usually done by the common mills when doing grist work.
 2d. The small space it couplies, and the comparatively small expense requisite to put up a Mill of that kind, after the power to propel it is obtained, strongly recommends it to the atcention of these stout to orect a Flouring Mill.
 3d. To these angrade in the milling business, I would respectfully say, that the improvement is well worthy their attention, from the fact that the mill referred to is expable of performing double or treble the work usually now use in their mills—and lastly, on a close inspection of the mills—and lastly, on a close inspection of the mills—and lastly on a close inspection of a spable of doing more work in the same time than that it was an pable of doing more work in the same time than which is an work and instruction.
