

INTELLIGENCE & LANCASTERIAN.

With the commencement of the New Year we have associated with us in the publication of the Intelligence and Lancasterian, our son, ALFRED SANDERSON, Esq.

The County Convention will assemble at Shober's Hotel, North Queen street, to-morrow, at 11 o'clock, A. M.

These pure "American" patriots, who were so fond of denouncing the Government for its unpopularity, and its failure to suppress the rebellion...

How different the position of the Democratic members—the seventy-five true-hearted, indomitable men who have presented an unbroken front to the enemy.

What a contrast is here presented. On the one hand is confusion, with bickering, contention, and dismay in the teeming party...

The Meadville (Crawford Co.) Sentinel, has raised the name of Mr. Buchanan to its masthead, and announces the act with a strong and well-written article...

The Dixon (Illinois) Transcript indicates a preference for Mr. Buchanan.

The Harborsburg State Paper has raised the name of President Pierce, and urges his re-nomination.

The Know-Nothings of Bardonia, Ky., have nominated Mr. FILLMORE for the Presidency.

The Fort Madison (Iowa) Plaindealer is in favor of Mr. BUCHANAN for the next Presidency.

The Gettysburg Compiler indicates a preference for Mr. BUCHANAN.

Teachers' Convention.

The Convention of the Teachers of Common Schools of Pennsylvania, held their third annual meeting, at the Hall of the Philadelphia Institute, on Wednesday and Thursday last.

The Chairman of the Executive Committee, A. M. Gow, read the report. It began by stating that this was the third annual meeting of the Association of Teachers, and he congratulated the members upon the vast improvement made in the educational system since the establishment of this Association.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year, viz: President—J. P. Wickersham, of Lancaster Co.

Secretary—B. M. Carr, A. K. Brown, R. C. Barry, J. B. Barrett.

The Meadville (Crawford Co.) Sentinel, has raised the name of Mr. Buchanan to its masthead, and announces the act with a strong and well-written article...

The Harborsburg State Paper has raised the name of President Pierce, and urges his re-nomination.

The Know-Nothings of Bardonia, Ky., have nominated Mr. FILLMORE for the Presidency.

The Fort Madison (Iowa) Plaindealer is in favor of Mr. BUCHANAN for the next Presidency.

The Gettysburg Compiler indicates a preference for Mr. BUCHANAN.

The Lebanon (Ohio) Citizen, speaking of the Presidency, says: "We are satisfied that never was so much unanimity in favor of Mr. BUCHANAN for the Presidency as exists at this time."

The Jefferson County Democratic Convention has appointed Hon. David Barclay Representative Delegate to the 4th of March Convention, with instructions to support Mr. BUCHANAN for the Presidency.

ISRAELI AGRICULTURE.—A correspondent of the London Times, in commenting upon the progress of Irish Agriculture, states that during the past fourteen years the value of farm stock in Ireland has increased from £22,000,000 to £35,000,000 sterling, and that the number of horned cattle has risen from 2,000,000 to 3,000,000, while the quality has correspondingly improved.

DEMOCRATIC STATE CONVENTIONS.—Democratic State Conventions have been called in the States and at the times following, for the purpose of appointing Delegates to the National Convention at Cincinnati: Alabama, Mississippi, Missouri, Ohio, Iowa, and Tennessee, January 8; Florida, March 4; Pennsylvania, March 4; Georgia, January 10; Illinois, May 1.

PROPERTY OF THE FRENCH EMPEROR FROZEN.—It is estimated that 150,000 barrels, loaded with flour and grain, consigned to Louis Napoleon, are frozen in between Schenectady and Little Falls, N. Y. The amount of grain cannot be valued less than $1,000,000, and ten freight cars are engaged to carry it to the water.

The Amoskeag Veterans.

The "Interiors" of the "Amoskeag Veterans" Hampshire citizen soldier (composed mainly of the soldiers of 1812-14) with the President of the U. S., which took place at the Amoskeag Veterans' Association, on Wednesday and Thursday last.

Mr. President.—Coming as we do from New Hampshire—the country of Hillsborough, glorious "Old Hillsborough," your home—we present ourselves before you as your old and true friends, calling for friendly salutations and greetings on our pilgrimages to the tomb of your "Father of his Country." We call to remembrance for what we call "the Mother of the Nation" those who fell from the land of Blanchard, Goffe, Rodgers, Stark, the Pierces, father and sons, Miller and McNeil—men whose deeds, whose names, shall be remembered as long as the sun shall shine.

The President replied in substance, as follows: Colonel—I recognize in your corps members who were companions of my boyhood, and who have been the constant and cherished friends of my mature years, and notwithstanding the material equipment and bearing of your uniform, you bear the same soldierly and manly air as the men of my own generation.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

THE MASONIC GRAND LODGE OF THE STATE.

The Masonic Grand Lodge of the State met last week at their Hall in Philadelphia, and elected their officers for the ensuing year.

Mr. President.—Coming as we do from New Hampshire—the country of Hillsborough, glorious "Old Hillsborough," your home—we present ourselves before you as your old and true friends, calling for friendly salutations and greetings on our pilgrimages to the tomb of your "Father of his Country." We call to remembrance for what we call "the Mother of the Nation" those who fell from the land of Blanchard, Goffe, Rodgers, Stark, the Pierces, father and sons, Miller and McNeil—men whose deeds, whose names, shall be remembered as long as the sun shall shine.

The President replied in substance, as follows: Colonel—I recognize in your corps members who were companions of my boyhood, and who have been the constant and cherished friends of my mature years, and notwithstanding the material equipment and bearing of your uniform, you bear the same soldierly and manly air as the men of my own generation.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

CITY AND COUNTY NEWS.

CHARLES M. HOWELL, Esq., the newly elected County Treasurer, will enter upon the duties of his office to-day. The public will find him to be a most able, intelligent and competent officer.

Mr. President.—Coming as we do from New Hampshire—the country of Hillsborough, glorious "Old Hillsborough," your home—we present ourselves before you as your old and true friends, calling for friendly salutations and greetings on our pilgrimages to the tomb of your "Father of his Country." We call to remembrance for what we call "the Mother of the Nation" those who fell from the land of Blanchard, Goffe, Rodgers, Stark, the Pierces, father and sons, Miller and McNeil—men whose deeds, whose names, shall be remembered as long as the sun shall shine.

The President replied in substance, as follows: Colonel—I recognize in your corps members who were companions of my boyhood, and who have been the constant and cherished friends of my mature years, and notwithstanding the material equipment and bearing of your uniform, you bear the same soldierly and manly air as the men of my own generation.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

NEWS ATTEMPT.

New York, Dec. 24.—Shortly after 2 o'clock this afternoon, the U. S. Marshal received a dispatch from Washington, which contained the news of the capture of the steamship Northern Light, and officers were sent on board to detain her.

Mr. President.—Coming as we do from New Hampshire—the country of Hillsborough, glorious "Old Hillsborough," your home—we present ourselves before you as your old and true friends, calling for friendly salutations and greetings on our pilgrimages to the tomb of your "Father of his Country." We call to remembrance for what we call "the Mother of the Nation" those who fell from the land of Blanchard, Goffe, Rodgers, Stark, the Pierces, father and sons, Miller and McNeil—men whose deeds, whose names, shall be remembered as long as the sun shall shine.

The President replied in substance, as follows: Colonel—I recognize in your corps members who were companions of my boyhood, and who have been the constant and cherished friends of my mature years, and notwithstanding the material equipment and bearing of your uniform, you bear the same soldierly and manly air as the men of my own generation.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENCE.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 23, 1855. Yesterday was quite a quiet day in the Senate Chamber. The only business transacted was the reading of a report from the Committee on Education and Labor, which was reported by Mr. Blair.

Mr. President.—Coming as we do from New Hampshire—the country of Hillsborough, glorious "Old Hillsborough," your home—we present ourselves before you as your old and true friends, calling for friendly salutations and greetings on our pilgrimages to the tomb of your "Father of his Country." We call to remembrance for what we call "the Mother of the Nation" those who fell from the land of Blanchard, Goffe, Rodgers, Stark, the Pierces, father and sons, Miller and McNeil—men whose deeds, whose names, shall be remembered as long as the sun shall shine.

The President replied in substance, as follows: Colonel—I recognize in your corps members who were companions of my boyhood, and who have been the constant and cherished friends of my mature years, and notwithstanding the material equipment and bearing of your uniform, you bear the same soldierly and manly air as the men of my own generation.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.

There are doubtless, says the North Carolina Standard, some Democrats who linger in the Know-Nothing ranks—Democrats who, in an unguarded hour, were induced to connect themselves with the order, and who regret it, and would be glad to be once more in full communion with their former party associates.