BY A. HAIGHT CHARE Come, beauteous Spring, with the birds that sing: And beauteous flowers that bloom-With balmy air and blossoms fair Dispel old Winter's gloom. Come with thy sheen of living green, And gentle zephyrs soft-Thy green-leaved trees and light-winged bees That wing the air aloft : Beneath thy shield the heath and field Bud forth with life anew-The murmuring stream so brightly gleams

'Mid sunset's golden hue. Thy balmy breath dissolves in death Ste-n Winter's chilling power-The leaf expands beneath thy wand. And blooms the beauteous flower. Thy genial glow makes streamlets flow In gladness through the vale; The grass so green is plainly seen, And beauty decks the vale. The songster sweet his song repeats, A song so full of glee; Tis sweet and clear-the Spring is here, The Spring has charms for me. Oh! Spring most fair, with charms so rare We ever love thy sway— And while we live we'll ever give To thee our sweetest lay.

THE OCEAN DEPTHS.

The life of one who explores the mysteries of the sea, is not more perilous than fascinating. The charm of terror hangs around it, and the interminable succession of exciting events renders it dear to its were in a dangerous condition. A storm professor. Not to the common-diver of the East, who can remain but for a fraction of time beneath the wave, and grope fearfully among rugged ocean mounds, but to the adept in the civilized mode of diving, who, in his protective armor, may remain submerged for hours, and wander with impunity, for miles along those unknown regions far below the sea. To him are laid open the horrors of the watery creation, and he may gaze upon such scenes as Arabian story tells us were presented and nameless ocean vegetation. We passed to the fearful eyes of Abdallah. the most thrilling occurrences of the upper jutted from the cliff, and there lay the world seem frivolous; for, in his memory, steamer. he retains thoughts that may well chill the and had been seen going suddenly down, without an instant's warning, by some fishermen near by. She had, undoubtedly, my heart throbbed wildly; for it was a struck a hidden rock, and had thus been in one moment destroyed.

I spoke to my associates of the plan, and they approved of it. No time was lost in making the necessary preparations, and a short time beheld us embarked in our small schooner for the sunken ship. There were six of us, and we anticipated extraordinary success.

I was the leader, and generally ventured upon any exploit in which there was uncommon danger. Not that the others were cowards, for they were all brave men; but I was gifted with a coolness and presence of mind of which the others were destitute. As two persons were needed, in order to explore the Marmion, I had selected as my companion a young fellow, whose steadiness and dauntless courage had several times before been fearfully tested.

It was a calm and pleasant day, but the southern and eastern wind looked deceitful. Small suspicious clouds were gathered there, ill of aspect, and "sneaking fellows, regular hang dog fellows," as my comrade, Rimmer, remarked to me. Nevertheless, we were not to be put off by a little cloudiness in the sky, but boldly prepared to venture.

So deep was the water, that no vestige of a ship's mast remained above the surface to point out the resting-place of the tised diver? I will see for myself, Marmion. We were compelled, therefore, to the best of our ability. Down went the saw nothing. A feeling of contempt came sails of our schooner, and Rimmer and I over me. Rimmer shall not come with me helmets tightly, and screwed on our hose. One by one each clumsy article was adjusted. The weights were hung and we saloon, which had echoed with the shrieks tle mist,-all right!' "Ah?" He uttered a low exclamation, which sounded hollow from his cavernous helmet.

"All ready," I cried in a loud voice, which they, however, could not easily distinguish. Then making a proper sign, I was swung over the side.

Down we went, I first, and Rimmer close behind me. It did not take a long time ourselves upon what seemed a broad plain ing forward then, a dim black object arose, which our experienced eyes knew to be a lofty rock.

It was Rimmer. He stepped forward and clutched my arm. He pressed it with a convulsive

We found death had found them. Each one had sprung from his chair at the shock of the sloping downward toward the south, and sinking ship, and with one emotion, all had rising slightly towards the north. Look-started for the door. But the waves of the sea had been too swift for them. Lo! then-some wildly grasping the table, others the side of the cabin—there they stood. I looked around and found some blocks; with these I raised the heavy door a title, placing a block in to keep what I had gained. But the work was slow, and laborious, and I had worked a long while before I had raised it four

I returned to the fallen door: I sat down in despair and waited for death. I saw no hope of escape.

This, then was to be my end. But the steamer gave a sudden lurch, again acted upon by the power of the new waves. She had been balancing upon a rock, in such a way that a slight action of the water would trip her over.

She cracked and groaned, and labored, and then turned upon her side. I rose; I clung to the ladder; I pressed the trap door open while the steamer lay with her deck perpendicular to the ground. I sprang out, and touched the bottom of the sea. It was in good time; for a moment after, the mass went over back again. CENTRAL RAILROAD COMPANY is now prepared to sell over TWO MILLION of ACRES OF FARMING LANDS, in Tracts of 40 AORES and and at low rates of interest.

These lands were granted by the dovernment, to aid in the construction of this Railroad, and include some of the richest and most fertile Prairies in the State, interspersed here and there with magnificent groves of oak and other timber. The Road extends from Chicago, on the North East, to Cairo at the South, and from thence to Galena and Dunleith in the North West extreme of the State, and as all the lands lie within fifteen unites on each wide of this Road, ready and cheap means are afforded by it for transporting the products of the lands to any of those points and from thence to Eastern and Southern markets. Moreover, the rapid growth of flourishing towns and villages along the line, and the great increase in population by immigration, etc., afford a substantial and growing home demand for farm produce.

The soil is a dark, rich mould, from one to five feet in depth, is gently rolling and peculiarly litted for grazing cattle and sheep, or the cultivation of wheat, indian corn, etc.

The soil is a dark, rich mould, from one to five feet in depth, is gently rolling and peculiarly fitted for grazing cattle and sheep, or the cultivation of wheat, Indian corn, etc.

Economy in cultivating and great productiveness are the well known characteristics of Illinois land. Trees are not required to be cut down, stumple grubbed, or stones picked off, as is generally the case in cultivating new land in the older States. The first crop of Indian corn, planted on the newly broken soil, usually repays the cost of plowing and fenelig.

Wheat sown on the new turned soil is sure to yield very will break one and a half to two lacres per day. Contracts can be made for breaking, ready for corn or wheat, at from any be plowed and feneed the hist, and under a high state of cultivation the second year.

Corn, grain, cattle, etc., will be forwarded at reasonable rates to Chicago, for the Eastern market, and to Cairo for the Southern. The larger yield but the cheap lands of Illinois over the high priced lands in the Eastern market.

Bit minions coal is mined at several points along the Road, and is a cheap and desirable fuel. It can be delivered at several points along the Road, as several points along the Road, and states are also per cord.

These who think of settling ind lowe or Minuscota, should bear in mind, that lands there, of any value, along the water courses and for many miles inland, have been uispected of,—that for those located in the Interior, there are no conveniences for transporting the produce of market, Raifroad-not having been introduced their.
