THE PARADE.

"Nig't wanes-the vapors round the mountain Melt into morn, and Light awakes the world.

Man has another day to swell the past.

The hum-the bustle-the glitter-and the gorgeousness-are silent and hidden, and the history of the Pageant has only to be written. It needs not however, to be chronicled to preserve it from Oblivion : for not one of the vast crowd that came from all parts to witness the magnificent scene, can over forget it. We feel a rush of glad feelings to heart even now, and the pulsation of high and honest pride has induced it. but those who were more lucky, will say that we have a wide latitude still unvisited, and that we have said but imperfect praise.

On Tuesday the sky was fair-at least fair enough to strengthen the fond anticipation for goodly weather on Thursday: But on Wednesday the heavens were shrouded in one unbroken robe of cl uds-the rain descended-the wind blew strongly and steadily unpropitious-and Hope began to totter on her before unshaken and expecting seat. Still she failed not altogether, albeit her anxiety partook, not a little, of the pale and sickly hue of Despair. Every eye was an almacanter's staff, as well in the morning as in the less-promising evening; but no sun-not a ray-nay, not "even a sunbeam which had lost its way,"-came out to gladden and enliven: All was cheerless-all was gloom. We never will forget with how much rapture the first little streak in the North was greeted: The mariner never hailed the coast of his native land with more heartfelt joy, than did our citizens that scarce perceptible sign of a clear day. How many hearts beat happily !-- how many budded hones burst out in the full fruition of maturity !

THE PRESENTATIONS.

THE PRESENTATIONS.

Anterior to the Parade, the Union Fire Engine and Hose Company marched to the house of Mr. Adam Reigart, in East King Street, where a splendid Banner, painted by Mr. Jacob Eicholtz, and presented by a Lady of Mr. Keigart's family, to the company, was received by John L. Thompson, Esq., with an address, of which the following is the substance, taken down from recollection:

LADY:—In behalf of the Union Engine and Hose Company, I tender you their most succers acknowledgments. These banners, rich and gorgeous as they may be, woren, as it were, by your own hand and decorated with all the purity and chasteness of a Lady's taste—these banners, magnificent as they may be, we know are but faint expressions of the deep solicitude you have ever manifested in our weldeep solicitude you have ever manifested in our wel-fare and prosperity. The public good, the preserva-tion of the public from the devastation of its most relentless enemy,— the protection of your habitations and yourselves in the dead hour of midnight—public and yourselves in the dead hour of midnight—public security, salety and repose, are the objects which have nerved and animated us,—the motives which have influenced us in the institution of this company. These objects could not have been nobler, more elevated, or patriotic; but they are rendered doubly captivating, when they are interwoven with these beautinal offerings—the approbation and the gladsome samiles of the Ladies. Can you then for a moment suppose that anything will relax our efforts or lesson our animat on in pressing forward to the goal of the public salety? Nothing—for my company and myself—I ropeat, nothing.

tesson our animat on in pressing forward to the goal of the public satety? Nothing—for my company and myself—I repeat, nothing.

Then, Lady, again I thank you. Long will we preserve these banners, and when, in after years, the freshness of thought and of feeling are gone, we will still cherish them as proud mementoes of your kindness, your liberality, your public spirit, and your pure and chaste handiwork.

This banner is a splendid piece of Art. It was painted by Mr. Jacob Etcholtz. Three females, hand in-hand, are observed in the fore-ground; one bearing a Hamboau, and the rest with faces wreathed in santes. They are intended to illustrate Union. The motto, 'In Unit at there is Mengith, Security, and Safety.'' Mesers. Foltz and Shroder bore this banner attern tely, having two Turkish tassel-bearers.

The banner noticed in the account of the Parade below, painted by Mr. Eicholtz, for the Sun Company, was presented from the house of Mr. David Long necker, and received by the bearers. Mr. A. N. Breneman then played "Hail Columbia" on the Kent Bugte, with fine effect.

THE LINE.

THE MARCH. The several Companies having taken their allotted stations in the line, the Chief Marshall, John Math-

10T, Esq., Mayor of the City, with his aids, Major CHARLES NAUMAN, and Captain John K. FINDLAY, assumed the command. The whole moved off in the following order:— THE UNION.

The Union is an old Company, and was established in the year 1763. The enterprise of its members has already been evidenced in the very neat Engine and Hose House, erected in the rear of the Market House, and fronting Centre Square. The arrangements which were made for the Parade, partook of great taste, and betrayed a landable suit. The members which were made for the Phrade, partook of great taste, and betrayed a laudable spirit. The members were dressed in white pantaloons, green hats and capes, each having inscribed upon it the word "Union," in git letters. They made a handsome appearance, and numbered, in all, 98 men. Immediately preceding the spleudid banner, of which a full description is given above, came twenty members of the Engine Company, axemen, torch-bearers, &c., and about an equal number behind. Then came the Engine, drawn by eight prancing greys, and led by four grooms attival in green frock-coats, white pantaloons, and having each a gidded beit around the waist. Our friend, Mr. Wm. C. Hull, drove the horses, and displayed his skill as an old "stager" in the ease with which he managed them. The Engine was decorated with a degree of taste which could in the ease with which he managed them. The Engine was decorated with a degree of taste which could only have been conceived by the fair ladies, to which it owed so much of its chaste and elegant appearance Wreaths of evergreens and flowers were hung in graceful festoons from front to rear, and immediately over the top, arose a slight but graceful bower, supported by the standard like elegant appearance of the standard standard with the standard worth to be standard. ported by four stender gilt columns, and worthy, every way, of its beautiful inmates—two "pretty dimpled boys, little smiling Cupids." They were habited in vestments adapted to their happy vocation of playing little pieces of juvenile gallantry to the ladies, and of winning the smiles of others, in return for their own shadowy laughter— They sat upon a splend d crimson velvet cushion, and contributed, in a great degree, to the intense interest of the occasion. In the rear of the Engine followed a portion of the members. Immediate oven now, and the pulsation of high and honest pride has not yet been stilled, as we reflect upon that seene, its unequalled accompaniments, and its still happler termination. Lancaster will grow older, she may grow richer, fuller of enterprise, of spirit, and of generosity, but she can never excel the inimitable and the indescribable splonder of Thursday last. It was witnessed by us—who live among its authors, and who had a right, perhaps, to expect something groat—with a kind of wild and dream-like astonishment—a bewildering amazement. Where we expected beauty, we discovered surpassing loveliness peoted beauty, we discovered surpassing loveliness—where loveliness, matchless and incogenizable grandeur. We can scarcely convince ourself now, when all is hushed, that what we did see was the consequence of the efforts and preparations of our own citizens. This may seem extravagant rhapsody to those who were unfortunate enough not to have seen that which has induced it, but those who were more lucky will

FRIENDSHIP. This is a Hose Company, and is not excelled, for the during energy of its members by any other in the City 1 tis composed, principally, of young men, although longer established than either of the rest. although longer established than error or they deserve, when it is remembered how they labored under a want of means, extraordinary credit that their originality of arrangement and appearance. bred under a want of means, extraordinary credit for their originality of arrangement and appearance. Their very Banner, painted and presented, as it was, by two members of the Company—Messrs John Somers and Patrick Ferry—is indicative of their characteristic spirit. It reflects credit on the artists, and honor on the donors. One side represents a house in flames, while the over-useful hose is observed showering the watery element upon the bunning tenement; the other, three beautiful females. The motto—'Wr arm to be usefut,' is appropriate.—This banner was borne by Mr. William Weidler. Then followed members of the Hose, bearing the various implements of the fireman, and distinguished rious implements of the fireman, and distinguished by black capes and hats. The number on parade and every heart yearned for a "goodly day to-morrow." We remember how droopingly, how mutteringly, and how despondingly. We crept to bed, as the rain came rattling against the window and the hollow gust mourned in the street: And well it might: For how beautiful was the spirit that seemed hastening to its grave! We can't deny, either, how, an hour after this, we peeped out to seelf we could trace a star or observe a moonbeam. It was useless; we sunk to sleep as cloudy as the sky.

The morning of Thursday came; and, (it seems like an interposition of Providence) with it came a word of main-glittering in the sunlight; Asia in the pale and half clad attive; Africa, in the darker Nubian, with his ebony countenance, bare arms and body, and America, in the free and fearless red man, whose native dignity won approbation from every whose native dignity won approbation from every observer. They all rode on horseback, and present-ed one of the most interesting features in the whole brilliant line.

Then came a portion of the members; and then a miniature Gilt Hose Carriage and Hose, borne aloft by a member. The architect, A:r. Samuel Benedict, by a member. The architect, Nr. Samuel Benedict, whose ingenuity is established by this masterpiece, used a common knife as his only tool.

After these again, came a section of the company, and then the banner of last year, borne by Mr. Philip Deightler. The design of this is characteristic, and represents two members, one of the Friendship and the other of the Union, standing with clasped hands. The other side has the pthy sentiment, "We come to the recue."

A section of the Company succeeded this, and then came the Hose Carriage, drawn by four ebony horses, two of which were rode by young sailor postillions, and led by members. The Carriage was tastefully decorated with evergreens, and four star-spangled banners waved in the wind, one at each corner. An Indian Chief, sat in the back of the Carriage, while hundreds poured in from the country, and the towns and villages, for many miles around, were numerously represented:

"The old, the young, the matron and the maid, Rolled in full tide along."

Never was there a more happy people—the happier, for the contrast created by the despair of the day before—than the citizens of Lancaster on Thursday last. Not a countenance but was wreathed with smiles. Not a voice but welcomed the beautiful morning.

About 9 o'clock the "York Band" arrived, a company of gentlemen from the capital of our sister county. Their Music was heard with "greedy ear," and received the warmest praise from all. They proved themselves, at once, amateurs and proficients.

And we question much, whether the perfect and un-

AMERICAN.

This is the most numerous company in Lancaster, and has been established only three years. The adopted uniform is red caps and capes. The energy of the members has been tested more than once, and no fire takes place at which the Am.rican is not found doing a full and earnest share of the labor.—Their arrangements for the Parade were admired by all, and the novelty of their accompaniments created universally a pleasing surprise.

Directly in the rear of the axe-men, torch-bearers, and guards, came the most unique features in the line. It was a boat-load of Indians, drawn by four curretting greys, and driven by that admirable and guards, came the most unique features in the line. It was a boat-load of Indians, drawn by four curvetting greys, and driven by that admirable chariotter, Mr. Kalph Jackson. The number of the pseudo red men was seven. Their gestures were distinguished by all the grace and diguity characteristic of the aboriginess. Whether in the fierce war-whoop, the singular conversation, or the use of bow and arrow, they were equally happy. One Romeo of a fellow might be seen practicing politeness to a Squaw, while a little papoose gave evidence that love had been already generous of its pledges. Anon, you would see the pipe, with its long tube, sending aloft thick volumes of smoke, then the careless repose, the unconscious stare, and the savage vacancy. Attogether these characters were sustained with the happiest effect. In the prow of the boat stood the figure of the banner bearer, attired in all the singular neatness of the wild warrior. His dress was peculiarly fine, and his attitude at once appropriate and dignified. The dresses were furnished principally by Col. Samuel C. Stambaugh, who superintended the family during their pleasant voyage, and gave additional zest to the charm of the illusion. The banner, another brilliant emanation from Armstrong's pencil, was all that might have been expected. It was highly appropriate; (indeed, all the arrangements of this company were confined to its name.) The subject—"The landing of Columbus,"—is drawn from that gratifying portion of history, where the boat with the Geonese adventurer, approaches the shore. He is represented standing in the front of the boat, his arms upraised, and his face glowing the shore. He is represented standing in the front of the boat, his arms upraised, and his face glowing with enthusiasm; the rowers seem faint with ratigue with enthusiasm; the rowers seem faint with fatigue and impatient watching. On the shore are observed the wondering natives, awaiting the arrival of the wholy stranger." The whole is finily executed.—The decorations of the banner were also superb. Motto—"The undatanted spirit of Columbia—is our's." Under the boat walked a black bear. He became fractious and they were compelled to confine him.

After the Indians came "The Lancaster Band," THE LINE.

After the Indians came "The Lancaster Band," whose music was quite creditable. Then followed the Engine Street, the place which had been selected by the Chief Marshall, was fill d with a densely-packed crowd, extending from Prince to Plum—nearly naff a mile long. It was only with great difficulty that a passage, sufficiently wide for the Line, was madethes side-walks and the Street being monopolized by the living mass. Every window was adorned with "boyacts" of blooming daughters of Eve, and the roots of the houses were occupied with spectators.—Labor seemed to have thrown by his hammer, and the world around our good city, to have suspended every thing but the business of curiosity.

After the Indians came "The Lancaster Band," whose music was quite creditable. Then followed the Engine stood as allor-boy, with neat tarpaulin. white pantaloons and blue round-jacket, while a cluster of beautiful curls adorned the brow of each young mariner. Minature stars and stripes floated from the same points. This was an interesting sight. The Engine, like the boat, was protected by guards. Martin Shreiner, an ingenious mechanic of this city, is the maker. After the Manner. Mr. Samuel Humes, bearer. The motto, "Always reagy," in Euglish and German, was inscribed upon it. ay," in Euglish and German, was inscribed upon it. The members of the Hose followed after and then the Carriage itself. The honorary members rode in two carriages, each grawn by two fine horses. One hundred and five members paraded. Dr. Geo. B.

and forty of its members, fully equiped. Uniform, black capes and hats. In the centre of the company a splendid banner was borne by Dr. Francis Burrowes and Messrs. Fordney and King, (emblem of the Sun,) painted by Mr. Eicholtz. Motto—"When duty calls obey." The Engine, made by our fellowcitizen, Mr. Martin Shreiner, was drawn by four dark brown horses, decorated with beautiful head bands and white estrich feathers. The horses were attended by two grooms, two riders and a driver, all appropriately dressed. The Engine was tastefully decorated, and on its top was represented a marble fountain, with an octagon base, surmounted by a harp and swan, which spouted water during the whole parade, caused by means of apparatus within the engine, and which, for its novelty, excited the admiration of all.

Next, in procession, came the Sun Hose Carriage, followed by fity of its members, in the centre of whom was a truly magnificent white satin banner, borne by Mr. Youngman and others, executed by Mr. Eichottz, expressly for the occasion, and which, we hesitate not to say, is a masterpiece. The design, a blazing gilt sun, and in relief are painted three beautiful fomale figures, one of which is seated on a fire plug, holding in one hand the banner of the company, and which, we suppose, with the "Journal," is the Goddess Vesta—the second figure is in the act of presenting to the former, emblems of the different fire companies—the third, with wings and a trumpet, is raised above the rest, and is supposed to represent Fame. The Hose Carriage was drawn by three dark horses abreast, with white harness, their heads decorated with beautiful bands and white ostrich leathers. The attendants on the horses were heir heads decorated with beautiful bands and white ostrich feathers. The attendants on the horses were two grooms, two riders and a driver, all very taste two grooms, two raters and a driver, all very tastefully dressed. The Carriage was decorated in the Gothic style and adorned with flowers and bouquets. In front, on the belfry, was a beautiful gilt scroll, (the sun in the centre.) carved by Mr. A. Danner, surmounted by a carved figure representing Aurora, bearing in her hand a wreath.

THE BALL. The Ball, in the evening, in Mr. Cooper's Salcon, was, beyond all description, a splendid affair. The banners of the different Fire Companies, which decorated the walls, gave a chaste character to the festivities. The music, was delightful, the company agreeable, and the evening satisfactorily spent by all.

The lamps shone over fair women and brave men: A thousand bearts beat happily, and when Music arose with its voluptuous swell, Soft eyes looked love to eyes which spake again, And all went merry as a marriage bell."

CAPS AND STRAW HATS.

Our assortment of Caps and Straw Hats is the largest, best and most fashionable in the city.

We are also manufacturing the PATENT FLEXIBLE SHLK HAT, which to be aut to finish cannot be surpassed. The improvement consists of a combination of principle to reader the Sik Hat Band, after a slight wear, as soft and pleasant to the head as a soft Hat. The "Flexible Band" combines the softness of the Felt Hat, with the beauty and dressy appearance of the Filt Hat, and from its yielding nature, readily conforms to the shape of the head, thus avoiding in a very great measure, the trouble and inconvenience of conforming and shaping, as the principle of the conformate is embedded in the improvement.

All Hats sold at this establishment are made under our own supervision, and we warrant them to be what they are sold for. We respectfully invite the public to give us a call, as we keep the largest and most complete assortment of all articles in our line in the city of Lancaster.

down the constitution, but will renovate the system from all injuries it has sustained from mineral medicines.— Chronic and difficult diseases must b-treated upon analytical principles; which is to know and ascertain what disease is. Its nature and character require a knowledge of the chemical constituent of every solid and fluid of the human body—the changes those solids and fluids are capable of undergoing. To know what medicines to employ to ture diseases, requires a knowledge of the chemical constituents of all agents employed in medicines, and if we are in possession of this knowledge, it is possible to cure any disease—no matter of how long standing—and leave the patient in a bealthy and perfectly cured condition!

DYSPEPSIA, that distressing disease and fell destroyer of health and happiness, undermining the constitution, and yearly carrying thousands to untilmely graves, can most emphatically be cured.

RHEUMATISM, in any form or condition, chronic or acute, yearly carrying thousands to untimely graves, can most emphatically be cured.

RHEUMATISM, in any form or condition, chronic or acute, warranted curable; Epilepsy, or falling sickness, all chronic and stubborn cases of Fernale Diseases radically removed; salt Rheum, and every description of allocations; Piles and Scrofulous Diseases, which have baffled all previous medical skill can be cured by my treatment, when the constitution is not exhausted.

I do say all diseases, (yes. CONSUMPTION) can be cured.
