Sr. Louis, March 7, 1859.

Spring has set in and more delightful weather we have never experienced-in most part we can do without fire .-On Wednesday night a very heavy storm of wind visited this locality, and weak walls and tottering chimneys sufferiderably, but no serious damage was sustained. In the early part of the week a great deal of rain fell, which the early part of the week a great deal of rain full, which caused a fine rise in all the rivers, and they are now in good mayigable condition; the ice having all rou out and disap peared, boats are stemming the current of ever navigable the Arabia's departure the decline had been navigable condition ; the ice having all run out and disap-peared, boats are stemming the current of ever navigable stream with heavy cargoes.

The Missouri river is now and will continue throughout the season, to be the great avenue for trade and travel. brought mainly about by the Pike's Peak excitement. Several parties from this place, Illinois and Indiana, have already started-laying in their outfits at this point-and by the way of gratuitous advice, would remark that outfit can be obtained here as cheap as in the east, and the freight from thence to St. Louis can be saved, which is a consider Several other companies in this vicinity will soon be ready to leave, and in a week or two we may expect to learn of the movement of the column from the Eastern and Northern States, and to what extent that tide of emigration will amount, is yet to be known, but it is variously estimated at from 80,000 to 150.000 souls! We have received here later and additional intelligence from the Eldorado, and the accounts are very conflicting. There is no doubt gold in great abundance in that section of guarantee of eight per cent. on £600,000 upon country, but as yet the discoveries will not pay. Those who take goods out this spring will make more money than those engaged in the minus.

We have no change to report in the Produce Marketprices remain about as last quoted. Since navigation has been resumed, receipts have been quite liberal. We have the most flattering accounts from all sections concerning the crops. The p-ach trees in most instances will produce little or no fruit the coming season-having been killed by

There is nothing locally worth reporting. The usual petty robberles and knork downs fill the local columns of the daily papers.

We have to record another terrible steamboat phe. On Sunday morning week, the steamer Princess. bound from Vickeburg to New Orleans, exploded her boil ars with tremendous force and burnt to the water's edge, when near Baton Rouge, on the Mississippi river. There were about 400 passengers on hoard at the time, and it is ascertained that about 200 have been lost and missingthey were mostly residents of Louisiana and Mississippi large number of ladies were aboard. There are no Northern or Eastern names reported among the lost and missing. The boat was one of the finest on the Western saters, and with her cargo is a total loss. The cause of the explosion is not known

The Governor's voto was a straight forward constitutional document, and all those having law and good order a beart, could not, after reading the veto, cutertain any other sentiment, that it was not only just, and strictly in accordance with the constitution, which he was sworr support and uphold, but Democratic.

The friends of the bill called a mass meeting to sustain the St. Louis delegation, in the Legislature, who voted for it-notwithstanding its unconstitutionality-and to denounce the Governor for his veto-notwithstanding the easons given were so plain that all could understand it as unconstitutional. The friends of the Governor and those who stand by the constitution under all circumstan es, determined not to stand idly by and see that structure trampled under foot by a few men-who have no the thin personal cellings in this whole matter-railled in their might. At the appointed time, the frinks of the Constitution called the meeting to order, chose a Chairman and the other necessary officers, and virtually took possesion of the meeting-offered and sustained resolutions en dorsing the Governor and censuring those of the SL. Loui delogation who voted for this unconstitutional measure. After this was done-the meeting doing just the reverse of what it was expected to do-the grand ball opened for the night. others were denrived of a hearing. At last Col. Armstrong after shaking his head, and waving his hand for some 20 minutes, succeeded in quieting down the boiling cauldron He entered into figures and statistics, dug up the decayed oones of George the IV .--- reviewed the original "Thirteen." and did a good many other things to prove to this commu-nity that they were the most outraged and abused people the world had ever known-no people were ever taxed as those of St. Louis, and all this was occasioned by a cor-rupt County Court, although the bill was not just what he wanted, but it "wiped out" the County Court, and therefore he would accept it. This remark put a stopper 'to any more of his speech being heard, and at this period o the farce, the lights all of a sudden went out (!) and Col. A. ramosed the ranch, amid cries of go on, hisses and shouts most deafening.

Next on the stage appeared Mr. Geo. R. Taylor, who aid he had been invited there, and would speak-he was the Champion of the bill abolishing the County Court, and hoped the good sense and patriotism of the people would sustain him in the measure-some said "in a horn." Mr. T. went on, notwithstanding the noise, excitement and confusion, and finally wound up by saying the Governor's veto did not meet the sanction of the people of this city .--Which was the last we heard of Mr. Taylor's speech. Mr. Mc Bride was loudly called for (Constitutionalist) and after several ineffectual attempts to be heard, backed down, but rallied again with renewed energy, and after buffetting with the turbulent waters, succeeded in sustaining the Goy ernor in a few remarks, but before he had fairly eed, he, like the others, was forced to retreat. Mr. Shands claiming a 19 years residence, thought he ought to b heard. In less than ten minutes he had taken the bull by both horns, and no one knew which side he was ononly that he was opposed to censuring the Governor his veto. His time on the stand was extremely short, and like the others was forced in the back ground.

Mr. Mitchell, the endless talker of the Evening New mounted the stand, first taking off his hat, and then his coat, and from his many gestures, we thought the balance of his clothing would be thrown across the man holding his hat-he hesitated, and concluded to keep them on .-Every body here knows Mitchell-he goes to all independ-ent meetings and never fails to make a speech when an opportunity presents itself. He is the most tiresome speaker any community ever listen to, and when he does not disperse a crowd, it must be an exasperated one, indeed With raised hands and a frowning countenance, he stood motionless, like Hamlet's ghost, for some twenty minutes, before the crowd ceased yelling-many thinking his appearance was the cue to disperse, and hundreds left. Be tween him, the Chairman and the crowd, a compromise was struck-that Mitchell should speak 15 minutes without interruption, and Mr. Donavan was to reply. He proceed ed, and undertook to pick to pieces the veto message, and all that sort of thing. He would not give way when they called him to "time," and continued for half an hour, when the crowd had to hiss him down, or we have no doubt he would continue until day break. Mr. Donavan replied, but had to speak amid great noise and confusion, and he raked down in fine style the advocates and measure-legislating men out of office. The meeting was kept up to a late hour, and finally adjourned with three chears for Governor Stewart. This meeting went plainly to show that the Constitution must and shall be respected at all times and under all circumstances—even though personal interests receive a The sustaining of the veto message by the citizens killed by a vote of 19 to 5. Another bill-more in accordance with the wishes of the people-was then offered in the House, and passed by a large majority, and which will no doubt pass the Sanate and receive the signature of the Governor.

All attempts of the opposition to make political capital out of this County Court matter, have proved a failure-it was not a political question, and none but the Black Re publicans looked upon it as such, notwithstanding the present Judges are men of their own party.

The Democratic party is now thoroughly organized, and every member panting for the fight. The Democratic nom. inations will be made on Monday next, when the campaign will open. The skies are bright and every indication of a glorious victory is apparent on every side. If we do not greatly mistake the signs of the times, on the uight of the 4th of April, with lightning speed the news of one of the grandest Democratie victories ever achieved, in this city, will be spread to all parts of the continent. The difficulty commenced at political meeting, was resumed at a subsequent period at Cloverport, and concluded at Hawes-ville. It is stated that Mr. Maxwell was making a speech at the Court House in the last named place. Mr. Lowe appeared at the "champions" of this iniquitons and unconstitutional door, denounced him aloud as a poltroon, and made another remark much more hard to bear. Mr. Maxwell fired at him.
