Lowering their Flag.—Mr. Fessenden, of Maine, in his speech in reply to Mr. Douglas, in his speech in hi Maine, in his speech in reply to Mr. Douglas,

"That we were opposed to the extension of slavery over free territory, that we call it a relic of barbarism, I admit; but I do deny that the republican party, or the Republicans generally, have ever exhibited a desire or made a movement towards interfering with the rights of Southern men, in the States, or any constitutional rights that they have anywhere.

SPECIAL ELECTION FOR ALDER-MAN.—Notice is hereby given to the qualified voters of the South-West Ward of the City of Lancaster, that, under the Act of Assembly of the 13th of June, 1840, (providing for cases where an equal number of legal votes have been polled for candidates,) an election will be held for one Alderman in said Ward, in place of John C. Van Camp, of Southern men, in the States, or any constitutional rights that they have anywhere.

That is the charge I made " tutional rights that they have anywhere. That is the charge I made."

Mr. Douglas replied: "For what purpose does the republican party appeal to Northern passions and North-ern prejudices against Southern institutions and the Southern people, unless it is to operate upon those institutions? They represent Southern institutions as no better than polygamy—the slaveholder as no better than a polygamist-and complain that we should intimate that they did not like to associate with the slaveholder any better than with the polygamist. I can see a monstrous lowering of the flag. I would respect the concessi f the fact was acknowledged."

The Louisville Journal, one of the Southern allies of the black republicans, speaking of that party, says:

"The mission of the party is fulfilled. 1t has no longer a decent pretext for existing. Disbandment has in every point of view become a paramount duty.

It would seem that this advice is about to be followed, for their representatives in Congress have gone out of their ranks for all the officers of the House, and it is stated that "it is arranged" that their candidate and platform for the Presidential election are to be of the "silver grey" stripe!

EF Prepared Glue.—Little conveniences for general samily use, are often of more value than what are called "great inventions." There is no housekeeper that has not been often annoyed by squeaky, rickety chairs, sofas, tables, etc., which have become so by the joints where they are put together becoming shrunken and loose, and so long as furniture is left in this condition, there is constant danger of a general smash-up. And again, such accidents as 'breakage of furniture do orcasionally occur in the best regulated families." To remedy the annoyance and perplexity occasioned by these troubles, we keen

A TAILOR'S APPEAL TO A MAIDEN. [A PRACTION'S APPEAL TO A UNIT.]

Dear pattern for all woman kind, I bleed by Cupid's dart; Oh! may it prove a needle, love, To stitch us heart to heart!

The tape of all the world would not.
In length sufficient be
To take the measure of the love
Within my heart for thee. A suitor, I, to press my suit,
Will now my thougts unloose—
Don't say my suit, like suits of clothes,
Is pressed, and by a goose.

A single shear is worthless quite, Though with a sharpness rare; But, to another riveted, Most useful are the pair. They work together as we would,
If we were man and wife—
We'd "cut according to our cloth,"
And work our way through life.

Then let a pastor rivet us,
And, for all future years,
As steel we will be true, and one,
As is a pair of shears. A perfect love, unclipped by Fate, I give, and ask of thee-

To fit me in my suit, thy heart Must not a remnant be. Perhaps you'il think, but do not say, When you this matter scan, Thou art, thyself, a remnant, sir— The ninth part of a man :

And if I were your better half, ... Then he who runs might see That I, a vulgar fraction made, Could but an eighteenth be." Oh! don't say that! let no such thought
Defeat Affection's plan—
With nine ninths in his honest heart,
A tailor is a man!

I'll build you, dear, a pretty cot, With garden all around, And in my shop will cabbage raise, And flowers upon my ground.

Thus profit will with pleasure come
To bless us day by day;
For we shall have the scents of flowers,
And make the cabbage pay! I'll wear the garments which must ee'r For admiration call— The styles they make, and cheaply sell At Bennett's Tower Hall!

Oh! then, my dear, let Cupid sew
To thine my loving heart;
And naught but death shall rend the seam,
Or cause a stitch to start: And we will ask in fervent prayer,
...Within our blest abode,
That stitches ne'er may break in heart
Like ours together sewed!

EATON'S INFANTILE CORDIAL, we desire to state its superiority over every nostrum that nurse or quack has heretofore offered you.

First—It is the preparation of a regular physician, who is well qualified from much experience in infantile complaints to prescribe for them. Secondly—It is entirely free from parogoric or opiate of any kind, and consequently relieves by removing the suffering of your child, instead of deadening its sensibilities. Thirdly—It is put up with great care, as a comparison of it with any other article for infantile complaints will show; the very costs from which it is distilled being dug from the forests under the direction of Dr. Eaton, many of them by his own hands—Fourthly—It is perfectly harmless and cannot injure the most delicate infant, and is a certain cure and relief in all the following cases, which is its chief merit over every other preparation, viz:
