DOMINE, QUO VADIS?

Jameson's Sacred and Legendary Art, pp. 200-0. A Church bearing these words as its name stands upon the spot which tradition points out as the place where the "mysterious meeting" occurred.

There stands in the old Appine wuy,
Two miles without the Roman wall,
A little ancient church, and gray;
Long may it moulder not, nor fall!
There hangs a legend on the name, One reverential thought may claim.

'Tis written of that fiery time,
When all the angered evil powers
Leagued against Christ for wrath and crime,
How Peter left the accursed towers,
Passing from out the guilty street,
And shook the red dust from his feet. Sole pilgrim else in that lone road,

Sole pligrim else in that fone road, Suddenly he was 'ware of one Who toiled beneath a weary load, Barcheaded in the beating sun, Pale with long watches, and forespent With harm and evil accident. Under a cross His weak limbs bow,

Scarcely His sinking strength avails, A crown of thorns is on His brow, And in His hands the print of nails, So friendless and alone in shame, One like the Man of Sorrows came. Read in her eyes who gave thee birth,
That loving, tender, sad rebuke;
Then learn no mother on this earth,
How dear soever, shaped a look
So sweet, so sad, so pure as now
Came from beneath that holy brow.

And deeply Peter's heart it pierced, And even now, as at the first,
It touched, it smote him to the core. Bowing his head, no word save three He spoke—"Quo vadis, Domine?"

Then as he looked up from the ground,
His Saviour made him answer due—
"My son, to Rome I go thorn-crowned,
There to be crucified anew; Since he to whom I gave my sheep Leaves them for other men to keep."

Then the saint's eyes grew dim with tears,
He knelt his Master's feet to kiss—
"I vexed my hear with faithless fears, Pardon thy servant, Lord, for this."
Then right up-hards was there. Then rising up—but none was there— No voice, no sound, in earth or air. Straightway his footsteps he retraced,

Back through the gates he passed with haste, Silent, alone, and full in view; And lay forsaken, save of One, In dungeon deep ere set of sun.

Then he, who once, apart from ill,
Nor taught the depth of human tears,
Girded himself and walked at will, As one rejoicing in the years, Girded of others, scorned and slain, Passed heavenward through the gates of pain. If any bear a heart within. Fight, conquer, grasp thy crown of life.

She whispered to Robert to beg-he did so 'Take it,' said the major.
Robert led his deuce, which the major took with his three spot, and followed by playing the king. Robert put his queen upon it. The major, supposing it was the young man's last trump, leaned over the table, and tapping his last trick with his finger, said: 'That's good as wheat.' 'Is it?' asked Robert, as he displayed to the astonished major the ace and jack, yet in his hands. ' High, low, jack, gift and game,' shouted Robert.

'Out!' ejaculated Fanny. 'Good as wheat,' added Robert, as he lung his arms around her neck and kissed her.

In due time they were married, and ever after that, when anything occurred of a pleasing nature to the happy couple, they would express their emphatic approbation of it by the phrase, 'good as wheat.'

ORIGIN OF THE TERM "TIGER."-A correspondent, signing himself "An Old Tiger," gives the following interesting account of the "Tiger," in a recent number of the California Spirit of the Times. It is worth reading:

In the summer of 1833, or thereabouts. the Boston Light Infantry made a campaign to the neighboring city of Salem .-The corps being divided into four sections, each section took to itself a name. The members of one section called themselves Lions; another section took the name of Tigers, and as this last section contained not only the best soldiers, but also the greatest wits and wags, originated all the fun and deviltry, giving life and tone to the camp. The corps, on the breaking up of the encampment, adopted that name, and have ever since been known as the Tigers, now termed, by way of distinction, the Old Tigers. The Tiger groan originated in this wise: At a dinner given to the corps during that visit, a trial took place between the two rival sections, the Lions and Tigers, to determine which could be rendered the most natural, the Lion's roar or the Tiger's growl. With the aid of that admirable auxiliary, the Boston Brigade Band, headed by the famous Bartlett, the Tiger growl was given with such effect and truth as almost to lead one to believe that a veritable four-footed tiger was being stirred up. This last test established the supremacy of the Tigers; and ever since, at th sumptuous dinners of that dashing corps, whenever a toast is drank which is remark ably brilliant, patriotic, or from any cause peculiarly acceptable, it is followed by three cheers and a tiger—the addition of the tiger being expressive of extreme delight. In extraordinary cases, three tigers are given; this, however, is a rare and distinguished compliment. Here, sirs, you have the origin and history of the term "Tiger," which has now become so well known throughout the Union. And if you could hear this thrilling tiger rendered by the B. L. I.'s, accompanied by the Boston Brigade Band, at one of their thrilling set-downs, it would indeed make your blood dance briskly through your veins, and you would no longer be at a loss to account for its popularity and universality.
