The Army of the Potomac.

A Sharp Fight and a Stampede on Friday Correspondence of the Philadelphia Inquirer. Correspondence of the Philadelphia Inquirer.

UNITED STATES FORD, May 2—10 P. M.—The closing paragraph in my last made mention of the fact that a sudden cessation of hostilities was apparent on the whole line of battle. This sudden change from lively firing to unusual dullness has heretofore resulted in a more brisk engagement than has been before in progress. Nor was the silence now spoken of an exception to the general rule.

Soon after our letter was sealed reports of cannonading were heard on the right, followed immediately by the reports of musketry, and never, during our connection with the army, do we remember to have heard such incessant and rapid discharges of small arms. This was continued for something like half an hour, when the firing became nearer and nearer, unwillingly forcing all to the belief that our right had been turned, and that the rebels were driving us.

Upon going to ascertain the truth of the suspicion and upon reaching the plank road, we had content i upon reaching the plank road, we had ocular noustration that our right had been turned, and it a second Bull Run retreat was promised. The and upon reaching the plank round, we had ochief demoustration that our right had been turned, and that a second Bull Run retreat was promised. The road being blocked up with infantry, artillery, packed mules and transportation wagons, mixed up in inextricable confusion, and all making as rapid progress to the rear as possible, the rebels, with their unearthly yell, in hot pursuit, shot and shell raining down upon the retreating column in perfect torrents. Amid all this confusion was distinctly seen our brave commander Hocker, with his aids, Dickinson, Chandler, Moore, Russell and Lawrence, pistol in hand and endeavoring to rally the cowardly crew who were retreating. In these endeavors they were aided by almost every officer present. Their efforts were finally rewarded with success; partial order was brought out of chaos. They formed in line of battle behind a nicely constructed stockade fortification, which had been proviously erected, and where they, with unflunching bravery, stopped the progress of the rebels and held them at bay for the balance of the night.

While these means to restore order were in progress, our able Provost Marshal General rode down the road to whore the column was retreating, and where some two miles down he established a guard ence to what regiment they may have belonged to, and where they were compelled to remain during the

The getters-up of this panic were two regiments attached to General Howard's Eleventh Corps, and who were frightened because of a desperate charge made upon the line where they were stationed by a body of rebel cavalry, under Stonewall Jackson. The enemy, in their ardor to follow our retreating forces, evidently were unmindful of the fact that they were running by one of the best divisions in our army, General Birney's, the latter holding a position a mile and a half to the south of the plank This forgetfulness was taken advantage of, the rebels, during the night, being made fully aware of This forgetfulness was taken advantage of, the rebels, during the night, being made fully aware of the fact that this division was in their rear, for an earnest and steady fire was dealt out to them the whole of their stay in the position they had taken up. This morning early the battle again commenced, and after some three bours' constant firing the rebels were compelled to retreat back to their original position, nor were they allowed quietly to remain there, for our entire force soon set them running, and where they will be permitted to rest remains to be seen.

Saturday's Operations.

The military situation on Saturday morning, therefore, stands as follows: Our main force holds the position at Chancellorsville, confronting the main rebel army now massed opposite us. Howard's corps, has the extreme right—then a division of Sickles' corps—then Slocum—then Couch—then Meade on the left, Humpfrey's division of Meade's corps holding the extreme of the left. Working parties have been employed during the whole night in throwing up breastworks, and the woods have resounded with the strokes of a thousand axemon felling trees for the purpose of constructing abattis. We hear the rebels, not half a mile distant, at work with the same view, and in the morning both armies are well entrenched. It will now be who will come out and give battle. Hooker is determined to put forth all the resources of the oraft of which he is a consummate master to tempt them out.

It is supendously during; but Hooker is a man who thoroughly understands that, in war, to greatly gain one must greatly dare.

The active operations of Saturday comprise a series of attempts in force, on the part of the robels, to break our line at various points, which were in one case partially successful, in another completely successful, and in all others completely unsuccessful. In the morning, as we stood on the balcony of Chancellor house, the attention was aroused by a sharp rattle of musketry coming from a column of rebeis coming up by the main Fredericksburg plank road, directly in front of us. Knapp's battery, however, which was planted directly in front of the position, opened upon them, and after a few rounds caused them to retire.

Immediately afterwards a battery opened from the height which I have mentioned as having been gained by Sykes, yesterday, and then abandoned by us. The position was rather upward of a mile distant from the cleared space, and its object was to damage our amunition train, which was visible to the rebels from the tops of trees on the height. One of our batteries was, however, immediately opened in reply. The third shot blew up one of the caissons, and a subsequent shot blew up another, and this settled their accounts.

Subsequently a reconnoissance was sent, on our subsequent shot blew up another, and this settled their accounts.

Subsequently a reconnoissance was sent, on our part, cousisting of the 26th Pennsylvania volunteers, (Carr's brigade, Berry's division, Sickles' corps.) on the same road by which the rebels had approached in the morning, for the purpose of feeling their strength. They went out on the plank road, deployed on both sides in the form of a letter V, chased the rebel skirmishers a couple of miles, till they came to a heavy double line of battle, with artillery in position, when they retired, bringing us that piece of intelligence.

Another reconnoissance was next sent out on our right, consisting of Bordan's sharpshooters. They met the enemy's pickets, drove them handsomely, and at 4 o'clock returned with fifty prisoners of the 22d Georgia.

At 4 the rebels are moving down in force on the plank road, where we had a little before made the reconnoiseance. Geary's division of Slocum's corps is sent in on the double-quick into the woods—their bayonets flashing in the sunlight. A sharp contest ensues, and in a few minutes they come back in disjorder. A portion of Kane's brigade, composed of raw troops, had broken, and thrown the column into confusion.

General Hooker has, however, already sent Sykes' regulars after them. As to the loss sustained by this corps, either in killed or captured, it could not have been great—they ran too fast for that. Correspondence of the New York Times. HEADQUAPTERS IN THE FIELD, NEAR CHANCEL-LOSSVILLE, Vs., May 3-6 P. M.—Another bloody day has been added to the calendar of this rebellion. Another terrible battle has been fought, and more fields crimsoned with human blood. Few more such days as this will find no armies on either side to fight days as this will find no armies on either side to fight battles.

My last letter brought up the situation to Saturday morning. It was then certainly expected that the enemy would begin the attack as soon as it was day, and our dispositions were made accordingly. But the attack did not begin. Events proved that the enemy did design to attack, but he chose to make that attack in a manner and from a point different from what was generally anticipated by us on Saturday morning. Daylight grew broader and yet no guns. Finally, about 6 o'clock, a brass Napoleon, looking down the plank road in front of the Chancoling down the plank road in front of the Chancoling down the plank road in front of the Chancoling down the plank road in front of the Chancoling down the plank road in front of the Chancoling down the plank road in front of the Chancoling down the plank road in front of the Chancoling down the plank road in front of the Chancoling down the plank road in front of the Chancoling down the plank road in front of the occasion of the coloning and attempt to deploy. One or two dozes of samister caused them to deploy rather irregularly, and more like skirmishers on the retreat.

Soon after, General Hooker and staff began an inspection of our lines, which eccupied full two hours. Every portion was visited, and the work of the night was closely inspected. On the extreme left new lines were chosen, and the engineer officers soon marked out the line and character of the defences to be created. When the inspection closed the entire trendments were pronounced to be of the very best character, especially those on the right, where the columns of Slocum and Howard were posted.

There had been only slight disturbances during the night, as both forces had been busy with their ares rather than their muskets. From General Howard's front came a report that the enemy was engaged all night in cutting a road past his picket into the right. How much attention was paid to this fact at the time I do not know, but subsequent the read of About 3 o'clock the pickets on the right of Gen. Slocum's front reported that from a certain position wagons had been seen moving in a westerly direction nearly all day. It was at once surmised that this might be a retreat, but subsequent events proved that it was a part of an affair altogether of another nature. To ascertain, however, what it really was, General Sickles, who was still in reserve, was ordered to make a reconnoissance in heavy force and give battle. Hooker is determined to put forth all the resources of the oraft of which he is a consummate master to tempt them out.

But at 5 o'clock a terrific orash of musketry on our extreme right, announced that Jackson had commenced his operations. This had been anticipated, but it was supposed that after his column was out, the corps of General Howard (formerly General Sickles) with its supports would be sufficient to resist his approach; and inding that he was himself assailed in the rear, he would turn about and retreat to escape capture.

sailed in the rear, he would turn about and reaces to escape capture.

But to the disgrace of the Eleventh Corps be it said, that the division of General Schurz, which was the first assailed, almost instantly gave way.—

Threats, entreaties and orders of commanders were of no avail. Thousands of these cowards threw down their guns and soon streamed down the road toward headquarters. The enemy pressed his advantage.—
General Devens' division, disaffected by the demoralization of the forces in front of him, followed suit, and the brave general was for the second time severely wounded in the foot, while endeavoring to rally his men. General Howard, with all his daring and resolution and vigor, could not stem the tide of the resolution and vigor, could not stem the tide of the retreating and cowardly poltroons. The brigades of Colonels Bushbeck and McLean only remained fight orders busineed and Marietin only remained inguing, and maintained themselves nobly as long as possible. But they, too, gave way, though in good order, before vastly superior numbers.

General Hooker now sent to the aid of General
Howard the choicest division of his army, theoreation of his own hand—the famous second division of the Third Corps, commanded by Major General Berry.
Captain Best soon moved his batteries on a ridge running across the road, and after a short but san guinary contest the further advance of the enemy was stayed.

Of course, this disaster compelled the recall of Sickles and Slocum, who had been pursuing their work with remarkable vigor. General Williams' division returned only to find a portion of their works filled with the enemy. Sickles' division could not communicate with the rest of the army at all by the way they advanced, and only at great risk by any other route.

This was the position at dark, and it did not look very promising. But our energetic commander was more than equal to the emergency. New dispositions to repair this disaster were at once resolved. sitions to repair this disaster were at once resolved upon. Communication was at once had with Gens. Birney and Whipple, and a night attack ordered, to restore the connection of the lines. General Ward's brigade, of General Birney's division, made the attack at 12 at night, aided by Captain Best's guns, massed on the ridge in front of the enemy. Birney's division was on the extreme left of this new line of battle, but Ward's terrific attack was entirely successful, communication was restored, and in a charge made by the brigade, a portion of the artillery lost by Howard was gallantly retaken by General Hobart Ward.

This night attack was the most grand and terrific safe to withdraw all our forces on that front, which was accordingly done, and at 11.20 a. M. the musket firing ceased.

The engagement Issted six hours, but had been the most terrific of the war. Our artillery had literally slaughtered the enemy, and many of the companies had lost heavily themselves, but the guns were all saved.

The enemy was now no longer in our rear, but had been showed down directly in our front, and is now directly between us and our forces in Fredericksburg: and we are again in an entrenched and formidably fortified poetion.—The enemy has gained some ground, it is true, but at the sacrifice of the flower of his force—five of his saven divisions having been cut to pleces in the effort, and over 2,000 of them have fallen into our hands.

Our right wing, under Generals Baynolds and Meade, were not engaged, save the division of General Humphreys, which went into the woods on the enemy's left flank, and fought valiantly under their brilliant leader, until their ammunition was exhausted.

During the afternoon the enemy has made several attempts to force our lines, particularly at the apix of our position, near the Chaucellor House, but Captain Weed has massed a large quantity of artillery in such a position as to repulse with great loss everything placed within its range. The enemy tried several batteries and regiments at that point at different times during the afternoon, and they were literally destroved by the fire of our terrible guns. Nothing can live within their range.

Our present position is impregnable if our troops continue to fight as they have to day. Gen. Lee, the prisoners say, has issued an order that our lines must be broken at all hazards. Let them try it again, with what they have left. They can, and perhaps will destroy themselves by attacks upon this position.

Our troops are perfectly cool and condident. They have left. They can, and perhaps will destroy themselves by attacks upon this position.

The Fighting in Rear of Fredericksburg on Monday--Interesting Details.

From the Washington Star of Tuesday evening] Sedgwick, after getting possession of the rebel batteries at Fredericksburg, on Sunday, moved out on the plank road towards Chancellorsville some four miles: but encountering a scattering force of the enemy, did not push farther in that direction.

On the same day (Sunday) Gibbon's division, of the Second Corps, occupied Fredericksburg and most of the heights.

donly appeared on the extreme heights, on the telegraph road southeast of the plank road, and came forward without much resistance, our force at that point not being of very great strength. This force of the enemy, which rum or announced to be reinforcements, under Longstreet, hasteving up from the Blackwater, is believed now to have been only a body of the enemy left down the river to pose our crossing below Fredericksburg. Some assistance was afforded to our troops over the river by the well-known heavy battery called the "Seven Sisters," planted on the heights on the north side of the Rap pahannock, about a quarter of a mile below the Fredericks burg and Acquia Creek ralinoad.

The enemy, however, succeeded in advancing until they occupied all the positions southeast of the plank road, well-down to the famous stone wall, which is the first line of battery in the rear of Fredericksburg. Sedge wick is further out on the plank road, and sandwiched, as it were, between Lee (who is in turn sandwiched, between Sedgwick and Hooker) and the rebel force that retook the lower fortifications at Fredericksburg. Sedgwick, however who is one of the best officers in the service, knows fully what he is about, and has, it is reported, already opened communication with Hooker.

The loss on both sides has been heavy, some estimating it as high as twenty thousand to each army. But experienced army mon hold that the rebels have suffered materially the most, as they have been fought in masses.

It will occur to the reader at once, from the position of the two armies, that a reverse on either side will be no half way affair, but overwhelming, and hence we may expect the most sangulary fighting of the war before the contest is settled.

1. THERE WAS NO TIME FROM FRIDAY MORNING TO MONDAY NIGHT BUT WHAT HOOKER COULD HAVE ATTACKED AND DEFEATED LEE'S ARMY. HE LACKED THE ABILITY TO GIVE THE ORDER.

Washindorn, May 7.—The following appears in the National Intelligencer of this morning:

Official information received at the War Department last evening authorizes us to state that Gen. Hooker, after waiting in vain near Chancellorville on Tuesday for a renewal of the battle by the enemy, re-crossed the Rappahannock on the evening of that day, induned by prudental motives, springing doubtless in part from the great and sudden rise of the Virginia livers, in consequence of the recent heavy rains.

We do not learn that Gen Hooker was apprised, before making this movement, of the success which is alleged to have attended the operations of Gen. Floneman, in breaking the rebel communication with Richmond. If this fact had been known to him, assuming it to be a fact, it may be doubted whether Gen. Hooker would have deemed it necessary to take a step which must tend to deprive him of some at least of the advantages resulting from General Stoneman's co-operative expedition.

New York, May 7.—The World has issued an extra with rebels shelled our trains at United States Ford, which served to increase General Hooker's fears, and the longer served to increase General Hoter's tears, and the longer be delayed the less was he able to advance. The correspondent closes thus: "The army is safe, with 10,000 fewer men in its ranks and a much larger number untit for duty. The heavy rains have seriously impaired the health of the men, who were without shelter. The tents were left behind, and many had lost their knapsacks."

To Mojor-General Halleck, General to-Chief:

We landed at Boulingsburg on April Soth, and moved immediately on Port Gibson; mat the enemy eleven thousand strong four miles south of Port Gibson at 2, A. M. On the first we engaged him all day, entirely routing him with the loss of many killed, and about five hundred prisoners, besides the wounded. Our loss is about one hundred (100) killed and 500 wounded. The enemy retreated towards Vicksburg, destroying the bridges over the two forks of the Bayou Pierre.

These were rebuilt, and purenit continued until the present time. Besides the heavy artillery at this place, four field pieces were captured, some stores, and the enemy driven to destroy many more. The country is the most broken and difficult to operate in I ever saw. Our viccory has been most complete, and the enemy thoroughly demoralized.

Very respectfully,

U. S. GRANT,

Major-General Commanding.

A man named James Brooks was murdered several weeks ago, in Burlington county, N. J., and the case promises to be one of the most remarkable in all the annals of crime, as his son, son-in-law, and his wife, are implicated in the murder. According to one account, the wife met her husband at night when he was on his way home. While talking with his wife, the son stepped behind his father and knocked him down. The wife then handed the son a knife with which he cut his father's throat. Both mother and son dragged the body to a ditch, where they attempted to hide it.

BUDY Y. SHIBK. THE PATENT STAMP-SEALING AND POST-MARK PRESERVING ENVELOPE.

The preservation on the letter itself of the POST-MARK and POSTAGE-STAMP, generally destroyed with the detached cover, has long been deemed a matter of the first importance. This desideratum is now triumphantily secured by this ingenious invention. Many obvious advantages must arise from the general use of this envelope.

First—Increased Safety by additional sealing; the stamp connecting the envelope and letter securely together; and this is never liable to be omitted, though the sticking of the flap is frequently neglected or imperactly done.

Second-Security against Impertinent Intrusion; the letter and envelope being firmly attached by the stamps, and incleave cannot be inspected even if the flap be clanification!

and inclosure cannot be impected even if the flap be clandlestinely opened.

Third—Safety against Abstraction of Valuable Inclosures. If the flap be left unsealed, or opened with felonicus intent, it will be impossible to open the letter and take thence bank notes and drafts without so mutilating the envelope as to insure detection.

Fourth—Security for the free payment of the Postage; as the stamp, when once properly placed in this window, cannot be removed without its destruction.

Fifth—Advantage therefore to the Government; by the effectual destruction of every stamp in its first use.

Saich—Radility to the Post Office Deparations; by a uniform location of the stamp in the upper right hand corner, which is the most convenient position for the Post Office mark.

Securit.—Varification of the Mailing: by sacuring on the nark.
Seventh—Verification of the Mailing; by securing on the Scientific Verification of the manne; by securing we are letter itself the logal evidence of the time and place of it being mailed. This has long been exteemed so desirable, that many prudent persons are constrained to dispense with the use of envelopes, that they may have the poet mark on the letter; and others take the precaution to pin the envelopes are not he letter for identification.

the envelope again on the letter for identification.

Eighlia—Certainty of the Date and Place on the Letter which are so frequently omitted by writers in carelessness which are so frequently omitted by which in cases.

The property of the property of the provided and the provided and persons of taste.

Tenth—Cost. Notwithstanding the many and unrivalled advantages of the "Stamp Scaling Envelopes," they will be furnished at a very small advance upon the prices of these not having the benefit of this patent.

"THE AGE" will advocate the principles and policy of the Democratic party, and will, therefore, necessarily favor the restoration of the Union as it was, and defend the constitution of the United States, and that of this Comnonwealth. It will freely and fairly discuss all legitimate subjects of It will freely and fairly discuss all regulmate subjects or newspaper comment, including, of course, and pre-emi-nently at this time, all questions connected with the existing unhappy condition of our country. It will fearlessly criticise the public acts of public ser-vants, and defend the legal and constitutional rights of in-dividual citizens of sovereign States, against assaults from divious currents of several any quarter.

It will seek to awaken the minds of the people to a proper sense of the actual condition of the Republic—to present to them, truthfully, the fearful perils in which we stand as a nation—to exhibit the magnitude of the task that is before them, if they would check our downward progress—and to inspire them with patriotic determination progress—and to inspire them with patriotic determination to apply THE REMEDT for our national ills.

In brief, it will, in all things, sim to be the faithful exponent of Democratic principles, and to render itself worthy to be an organ of the Democratic party, under whose anspices our country prospered so long and so well. The restoration of that party—the party of the Constitution and the Union—to power, in the legislative and executive governmental branches of the States and of the Union, we believe to be necessary to avert anarchy, and the utter ruin of the Republic. To contribute to that restoration will be our highest alm. will be our highest aim.
