Postponement.

In consequence of the disturbed condition of the public mind growing out of the recent invasion of the State, together with the draft now going on, and the lateness of the harvest, it is thought best to postpone the Democratic County Mass Meeting (which was to have been held on the 25th inst.,) for a few weeks.-The time will be designated hereafter.

By this plan it is hoped that a very large proportion of the two years and nine months men ust discharged may be induced to re-enlist for the war. These veterans are to be offered, for the war. n addition to the one hundred dollars bounty and pay which all the national soldiers receive, a bounty of three hundred dollars, and are to form a special corps, distinguished both from conscripts and from other three years men. THE CAPTURE OF VICKSBURG.

This event, which has been so long wished for and about which there have been so many disappointments, has at length become a fixed fact, having occurred on the 4th inst., and in proportion to the long desired realization, has been the occasion of much rejoicing throughout the loyal States. It is an important point gained, and if followed by the capture of Port Hudson, which is now more than likely, will be a severe blow to the rebellion which it virtually cuts in two. The opening of the Missisippi will be a great relief to the Northwestern States which have had, in addition to the losses occasioned by the war, to suffer great inconvenience and detriment from their inability to transport their vast products to the seaboard. The customary trade with New Orleans will now be resumed by those States, and, excepting occasional interruptions from guerillas on the west bank of the river, will be of great advantage to them. Still it will be necessary to have the captured fortresses well garisoned and to keep an efficient naval force on the river to protect the boats navigating it. The lapse of a week or two will more clearly develop the extent of the advantages gained by this victory, and may show how far it will tend toward the ultimate subjugation of the rebellion. Meanwhile, let us be happy that it is a step in advance towards that most desired end.

----HOW TO SECURE PEACE.

On the subject of securing an honorable neace, the New York Journal of Commerce. of Friday last, contains the following :

" It is by no means certain that the present to foment differences of opinion there, we have no doubt that this moment we should hear a loud call for peace from within the revolted States. The same individual sufferings and pains which we have spoken of as operating here, are felt there with equal intensity. We know that in various parts of the South are mutterings of discontent, prophecies of failure, and secret longings for peace and union. We know that in Georgia it is not uncommon in private circles to hear the Southern Confederacy spoken of as a very dubious affair, and the return of Georgia to the Union as a possiing him to be still sleeping, proceeded to the bility in the future. We hear similar reports. from North Carolina, and we have reason to believe that in other portions of the Southern States there are more or less of the people who entertain grave thoughts of the terrible error into which they have been plunged by their political leaders. It is probable that the present state of affairs will increase the holdness and strengthen the influence of these pered which is calculated to increase the number of such persons, and to hold open to all the people of the South the manifest advantages of union and peace over disunion and war .--There are sensible people in the Southern States. They are not all gone mad. Government of the United States has in its hands a tremendous power over these persons, and by using and aiding them, a vast power over the unity of the Southern States and people. A wise course on the part of the Government now, might be productive of the most glorious consequences. " If such a course could be adopted as would restore union, and peace, is it not the duty of the Administration to pursue it? Can any man, except one who has become insane on a one idea plan, hesitate as to the propriety, the visdom, the duty in such a case ? "The radical men are surely crazed who propose to change the object of the war and osecute it until their ends are accomplished. They may not like the old Union, but they will never effect a new Union. It cannot be done their way. They have no right to attempt it. The living army of American soldiers are not fighting for it. It is treason to the dead, who lie on so many hard-fought fields to attempt it.

"The instant that there is an opening for peace and union, that instant must be seized, and the opening enlarged. Until it comes the soldiers are ready for battle, the people are ready with sacrifices as heretofore. But those soldiers must not be wasted. Those sacrifices are sacred, and must not be profaned."

THE BATTLE FIELD.

Hundreds of our citizens, says the York Press, visited the battle field, at Gettysburg, during the past week, to witness the destruction and desolation committed by the missiles of death. No tongue can tell the miseries and sufferings experienced by the on the field of battle, many-of whom were in the last agonies of death Winner W thousands of our brave troops lying wounded L Banmgardne chonsands of our brave troops fying wounded on the field of battle, many of whom were in the last agonies of death. Visitors all give the most doleful accounts of the scene, and we have heard many of them declare that they never wish to witness the like again.--The slaughter was fearful to behold. The cries and moanings of the dying and wounded were indeed most heartrending, and caused many a stout and brave heart to drop a tear and reflect upon the miseries this cruel war hay brought upon us. When will the end to this infinite wisdom have mercy on us.
