DELIVERED IN THE U. S. SENATE BY SENATOR POWELL, of Ky., In Reply to some Remarks made by Mr. Sumner, of Massachusetts.

Mr. Powell. I tell you, Senators, that your only hope is to strike down free speech, a free press, and free ballot, in is that, although we hope, we do not much expect that you will do anything in the right direction. Your past action does not convince, us that you will. Give us canvass your administration of public afmen, the Democracy, the old Whigs, the ple throughout the length and breadth of wherever we can find it. usurpers to the ground. of a free people. The Senator from New Hampshire will have to see that free speech and free press and free ballot are destroyed before he can kill the Democracy. They are not destructible articles. Strike down one by cruel and bloody tyranny, and a thousand will spring up. You may cause some of the timid to be silent; you may cause them to be afraid to go to the polls and vote; but the love of truth and of constitutional liberty is in their breast; the bold will speak it, and they will strike for it; they will vindicate it with their blood, not in seceding, but in fighting at their ties given them by their fathers; and we Mr. President, I had intended to notice

I have heard that Senator, ever since I have been in the Senate Chamber, reading his long, illogical rhapsodies upon slavery. They are all of them much alike; all speak of the barbarism and cruelty of slavery. They are filled with a good deal of encyclopedia learning, with scraps of quotations here and there. Without meaning any disrespect to the Senator, I must say that they emind me of the rhapsodies of a man who has a nightmare. They remind me of an expression of Shakespeare:
