Even a captured and guilty criminal who knew that his crime would be proved, and that the law would assuredly visit upon him condign punishment, might with propriety plead these rights and demand of the Chief se rights and demand of the Chief agistrate to throw over him these shields Assaulted by the bayonets of a military commander, he might protest and assert his inalienable right to the orderly processes, the proofs, and the punishment of the law. But as the Saxon tongue any terms left for him to use who, being the victim of crime, has been made also the victim of lawless power? It is the theory of the law that after the ission of any crime, all proceedings their presence and labor is most needed taken before trial shall be merely preventative; but the proceedings taken against the World were of the nature of a summary ex ecution of judgment. Would trial by have been denied, would the law itself have been set aside for the bayonet, would a process as summary as a drum-head court martial of support whatever, and who must live off the charity of their neighbors. And all this have been resorted to by you in a peaceful city, far from the boundaries of military ocis for what? To satisfy an overweening desire on the part of Governor Brough to his authorcupation, had the presses which consistently applaud your course been, as we were, the victims of this forger? naner inflation : they have all been heedless the misery to poor men which such inflations breed; they have all rejoiced at the speculation thus fostered, and by speculation they had hoped to thrive. r twenty-four hours something was pardoned to your presumed natural trepidation, since our blamelessness having been alleged to you by those here whom it was your duty elieve, it seemed only prudent to await your recovery.

For the next twenty four hours, from moment to moment, it was expected that you would hasten to confess and repair your mis take. But the mistake thus prolonged grew to the proportions of a crime; and till the discovery of the forger stripped its mask off and discl used the inspiring cause of the act, it grew monstrous hourly in men's eyes. We were patient that the immeasurable

infamy of the act might swell to its full proportions, and stand complete

By the recall of your arbitrary order, you have not made reparation for the wrong have done. The injury and the insult yet reman. The violation of the Constitution stands recorded, and unless adequately atoned, becomes a fatal precedent. For the purpose of gratifying an ignoble partisan atment you have struck down the rights of the press, you have violated personal liberty, subjected property to unjust seizure. ostentatiously placed force above law, setting dangerous example to those who love force more than they respect law; and thus, and by attempting to crush the organs of free dis-oussion, have made free elections impossible, and broken down all the safeguards of representative government.

It is you that in this transaction stand accused before the people. It is you who are conspicuously guilty. It is upon you that recording these events, will affix the crime of a disregard of your duty. oblivion of your oath, and a pitiable subserviency of party prejudice and to personal ambition, when the country demanded in the presidential office elevated character, devotion duty, and entire self-abnegation.

But you are not to be left to the judgment of history alone. Thank God, by the provisions the people are soon to pass upon your claims to re-election, and the right of impeachment yet remains to their representatives. The the Bastile, once broken down on the other side of the Atlantic by the reverberation of our Revolution, is reconstructed here.

In stormy times like these, amid dangers with which an unsuppressed rebellion environs us, his would have been a rash hand which had hastily set in motion for another purpose than the suppression of rebellion, the machinery of justice; who had invoked against the disloyalty of rulers the retribution and redress of the law. The danger of such a conflict of laws is so far passed, that not masses, in the name of the party they have even a President could now plead national safety as an excuse for refusing to do justice or submit to judgment.

Yet no citizen who regards his duties should ever besitate at the last to oppose lawless deeds with legal remedies. The law may break down. It will then disclose to a watchful people the point of greatest danger. Courts may fail; judges may be intimidated by threats or bribed by the allurements of power, and those who have sworn to execute the laws may shrink from the fulfilment of their oaths. A craven Congress may sit silent and idly watch the perishing liberties of the bills. people whom they represent, but this cannot

Re A lady in Ohio thinks the piedge proposed by some of the Mrs. Officials at Washngton for the women of the country to sign, is not so good a one as she offers in the following words: "We, the ladies of the United States, pledge ourselves to buy imported articles of dress, &c., whenever by so doing we can pay by duties into the United States Treasury, which would otherwise go, as extra profits into the pockets of our own manufacturers." She says "it is nonsense for the rich to hoard up riches, instead of spending them, through fear of setting an example for poor folks, which is the reason assigned for aking the above pledge." The best way is for every lady to do what patriotic duty and sound judgment shall dictate, and leave her neighbor the same privilege. CROPS IN THE WEST .- We are gratified to learn, says an exchange, from all sections of the country that the wheat crop has improved so much in the last few weeks that it now promises to be a full crop, if not an extra large one. Early in the spring the wheat prospects were gloomy enough, and a good many talked of plowing up their wheat and planting the ground in corn. All who talked in this way now smile as they look at the rich color and heavy stand of their wheat, and think will let it stand until about the middle o

Jnne. -----Ceneral HUNTER says the freed negroes in Louisians are badly provided for and awfully cheated by their new friends. They are defrauded of at least one half of their wages by selling them brass trinkets as jewelry, upon which the rascally trader realzes at the rate of five thousand per cent -

Exchange paper. These new friends of the freed negroes are our Constitution, not yet wholly abrogated, chiefly from New England. They are the proteges of Generals BUTLER and BANKS. Their operations are truly Puritan, and after the . people and their representatives have the right fashion of the early Puritans in their dealings to speak when the pen is struck from the with the Indiuns. They are missionaries of hands of a freeman by the hayonet, when the party "founded on a great moral idea" and "engaged in the interests of God and : humanity."

CAN'T BE DONE - Wilkes's Spirit asserts that " the nation cannot live with Abraham ! Lincoln and Seward at its head during the next terrible four years. Even if honest, they are unequal to the task; and that they are not too honest, is evident in the arts they have devised to subjugate the expression of the loyal labored to destroy."
