ELIAS BARR & CO., respectfully announce that they have in preparation a listory of the Pennsylvania Re-serves from their organization to the expiration of their term of service.

seven from their organization to the expression of ener-term of service. This History will contain the names of all the Officers and Privates of the Corps-their promotions, casualities and discharges—also, graphic descriptions of their camp life and their gallant achievements in the many battles in which they have taken part—all derived from official and environments.

In which they have taken part—all derived from official soft auth-abits sources. The History of the Pennsylvania Roserves will be in USA VoLUXA to foUD pages, octave Size, neaty printed on good paper, and substant-ally bound in black cloth, con-taining a stell eigraving of the lamented Roynolds, and one of Governor Curtin, (who first recommended the for-mation of the Pennsylvania keeverve Corps,) and will be sold only 5, subscription. It will be ready in August next.

The Publishers fiel confident that the just pride which every Pennes Ivanian must entertain for the brave me whose gallaut achievements and patriotic self-devotion i records, will secure for "The flistory" a generous and ar records, will sociate to preliative reception. The preservation on the latter issif of the POST-MARE and POSTAGE-STAMP, generally destroyed with the de tached cover, has long been desined a matter of the first importance. This desideratum is now triumphandy secured by this ingealous invention. Many obvious advantages must arise from the general use of this envelope. First-Increased Batchy by additional scaling; the stamp counceting the suvelops and letter securely together; and Prish-Increased Satety by additional sealing; the stamp connecting the envelope and letter securely together; and this is never liable to be omitted, though the sticking of the day is requestly successful or imperiodly done. Second-rescurity against imperiment intrusion; the additional envelope being firmily attached by the stamps, and inclosure exampts interpeted even if the flap be clar-destinely opened. Third-realety against Abstraction of Valuable Inclo-ances. If the flap be left unscaled, or opened with foon-ous intent, it will be impossible to observe the flat and the rand take sures. If the Hap be left unscaled, or opened with folon-ous lutent, it will be impossible to open the lefter and take thence bank notes and draits without so mutilating the envelops as to insure detection. Fourth—zecurity for the tree payment of the Postage; as the stamp, when once properly placed in this window, cannot be removed without its destruction. Fifth—ddvantage therefore to the Government; by the effectual destruction or every stamp in its first use. Sizth—Facility to the Post Office Dperations; by a uni-form location of the stamp in the first underpreorm location of the stamp in the upper right hand cor hich is the most convenient position for the Post O which is the most convenient poerton not and mark. Securit-Verification of the Mailing; by securing on the inter itself the bigal endence of the time and place of it being mailed. This has long been estecued and desirable, that many prudent persons are constrained to dispense with the use of unrelopes, that they may have the poet mark on the letter; and others take the precaution to pin the envelope again on the letter for identification. the envelope again on the letter for identification. Eighth—Usrtainty of the late and Place on the Letter, huch are so frequently omitted by writers in carelessness which are so trequently omitted by writers in calescales or harry. Ninth-Urnamentation; which, though some may think of simul importance, certainly meets the approval of all persons of taste. Trath-Cost. Notwithstanding the many and unrivalled advantages of the "statup scaling Envelopes," they will be turnished at a very small advance upon the prices of these not having the bonefit of this patont. PAT AND THE YANKEE. Atter a ride of eleven miles on a small passage boat from Northumberland to Danville, on the north branch of the Susquehanna, where I went up a few weeks ago to visit some old friends in Montour county, I had just stepped on shore at the sign of the Swau Hotel, formerly kept by Mr. Joseph Durnellison. who was the first male child born in Dinville, the name given the place after us founder, Dau McMuiton, an Irishman, who settled there in the latter part of the last century. The Swan Hotel being kept by the only son of its former owner, a gentleman in every sense of the word, who received me warmly by exclaiming, " in the name of all that is wild and wonderful, what wind has blown you to this quarter of the world ?" when I was startled by the rich Irish brogue, as General Scott would say, issuing from the throat of a stour, rosy-cheeked son of Erin, whom I supposed to be an ostler, as he held up : bucket of water to a thirsty animal at the pump, exclaiming, " By yarrah, masther, it wasn't the wind that brought him here at all, at all, but that long-legged, shapeless piece of creation, wid its cars as long as its tail," pointing to the mule which was attached to the boat from which I had just debarked.

There were a number of gentlemen standing about, and, after the landlord and myself had exchauged courtesies, supper was announced. The gentlemen referred to sat up to the table, whose stout oaken knees fairly trembled under its heavy load of sumptuous cookery. From the speedy disappearance of the good things on hand, it was evident to an observer that there were other eraving appetites besides that of your humble servant, which I must confess never was in better trim, and for fifteen minutes there was nothing observed but hauling forward and stowing away. Ours was not that kind of a company that doats on grace saying, and therefore we were soon enveloped in smoke, passing away the time in merry conversation. Some were describing their different kinds of timber, others telling what prices they had received, whilst others were comparing the present sales with those of former years, and some more were wendering if they would ever live to come on the same errand again. I satisfied myself of their being from Yankee town, or of that class of persons who come down the river every spring with rafts, and after disposing of their lumber at Havre de Grace, Peach Bottom, Port Deposit or Columbia, they make their way home by the easiest and best means of conveyance within their reach, which obliges many of them to call

one thing I have never known, and I would snakes than be called a coward, but it is the name of a liar, for it was a lie being told to poor Adam and Eve by the reptile, which caused them to eat the apple we read about. Now if one lie produced so much harm in Paradise as we are told it did, what amount of evil may we expect to see visiting our unfortunate country from the effects of that filthy tide of lies and blasphemous perjury which is issuing daily from that overflowing cauldron of pollution, our Capital, prompted by the nocturnal father of lies.
