stalks-for what earthly good we never could divine!

With hay at present prices, this ques tion of corn cutting is an important one. Hay $20 to $22 per ton in this market at this writing. We pray you, good farmer, have a vigilant eye to the corn fodder. Let it aid your turnip and other root crops, in eking out the hay, in enabling you to dispose of it, if necessary. in order to invest in Government bonds in support of law and order. As soon as the corn is fairly glazed, corn cutting should commence—even though Trost be delayed several weeks in his arrivalthe longer he stays away the better. We are satisfied from experience and much observation, that quite as good, and we have sometimes thought heavier, corn is obtained by cutting it up just as soon as it is faily glazed, as we get by allowing the stalks to stand and dry up where they grow. Of one thing we are positive, that any possible loss in weight or nutrition is more than made up by the enhanced value of the stalks for forage Corn cut up early in September, as we have often done, allowed to stand in the shock or stock until October, husked during those delightful, golden, hazy autumn days, and the stalks stacked when perfectly dry, and before the fall rains come on, is worth nearly double, as a crop, that it would be if left uncut until frost comes. The stalks are worth for forage nearly as much, ton for ton,

When corn is cut up as early as we recommend, the stooks should not be made very large. 'Fifteen hills of good stout eastern corn will make a stook quite large enough-especially to handle-when set up around a standing hill, and the top bound to it. If the corn is caft and laid down, then bound in small bundles and set up in stooks, a greater number of hills may compose a shock. In the West, on the prairies, where there is a great circulation of air, the practice of making much larger shocks obtains-though the objection made to early cutting because the stalks mold, grows out of this practice of packing too many together. Many prairie farmers have much to learn in the way of economical care of this great forage resource with them, If any of our prairie readers have discovered the best way of securing corn fodder we will be glad to hear from them. And urge that, with the present prices of hay and grain and beef, few farmers can afford to let their corn fodder be rained by frost if they can get help or machinery to secure it. It is not too early to be looking out for such help and making preparations for such providence.

At any rate, we do not want any better forage for milch cows.

The Grape Vine in September.

If the vine is allowed to grow on, un checked, there will be, at the end of every shoot, a portion of very immature wood. If the growth is stopped in Sentember, the energies of the plant, which would have been expanded in prolonging the shoot, are directed to maturing the remaining wood, as well as to perfeeting the buds which are to produce that the system is not fully carried out. The success of this method of pruning, in good measure depends upon stopping the upright growth of the canes at three or foac leaves allowe the last bannels of roughly pinched in. Both these operadone its work before the present month, upon a branch they should be removed.

American Agriculturist for September: THE GARDEN IN AUTUMN.-In this country but little is done in autumn to prepare for very early vegetables next spring, except by professional and market gardeners. Cabbages and cauliflowers may be had very early by sowing them this month, and when the plants get about 3 inches high, transplant them to a cold frame to keepthrough the winter. Spinich sowed this month may be kept through the winter by a slight covering of straw and will give early spring the Siberian or German-greens, can be sown now; it is grown in the same Manner as cabbages, and will generally endure the winter without any covering. Seeds of Brown Dutch and Brown Winter-cabbage Lettuce are often sown with the late spinch. The plants will be ready in spring or early transplanting. Radishes and early turnips may be sown early in September, to give a late supply, and winter radish will perfect

Select the ears which best represent the variety, neither very large nor small, but perfect, well tipped out, with small cobs, without vacant streaks, with no strang kernels, well covered with husks, and wherever possible, such as are borne two or more on a stalk. Make the selection by feeling the ears before the corn is cut up if possible, marking them with a dash of paint or tar or other mark, so that in the husking they may be thrown aside for subsequent examin-

Strawberries, transplanted in almost any way, will lice, if heir crowns be not covered with earth; but if it i desired to have them grow and multiply most rapidly some little care will pay. The best method of planting, one we . have often recommended, is to dig the hole, and with the hands make in its centre a mound of earth reaching nearly to the surface. Spread the roots over this, and then fill in around, leaving the ed by the Puritans in 1674 provides that: whole so that on settling, the crown of the plant shall remain about even with the surface of the surrounding soil .-Spread an inch or so of partly rotted ather, or the voice of his mother, strawy manure all around the plant, close up to it, and a foot or more each way. Water well through this manure and leave it on permanently as mulch and nourisher. Shade from the direct rays of the sun for two or three days, by a newspaper held up with sticks, leafy branches, an inverted flower pot, or anything that will break the fiercest rays, but not shut out free access of air and warmth.

- Old Father Bushnell, of Vermont, used to say that the best criticism he ever received on his preaching, was from a little boy who sat at his feet, looking up into his face, as he was fellow spoke out, "You said that afore!" if this isn't later than I ever knew it."

A Proposed Plan for Prolonging Life. M. Robin, an eminent French chemist, in a memoir recently presented to the French Academy, expresses a belief that the period of human life may be greatly prolonged, and enters into an argument to show that his opinion is based upon sound reasoning. He also gives the result of his personal observations on this subject, and proposes to demonstrate the truthfulness of his posision by actual experiments upon animals whose lives are of short duration. His argument is, that the mineral matter which constitutes an ingredient in most of our food after the combustion, is in our system to incrust and stiffen the different parts of the body and to render imperfect many of the vital pro-

He compares human beings to furnaces which are always kindled; life exists only in combustion, but the combustion which occurs in our bodies, like that which takes place in our chimneys, leaves a detritus or residuum which is fatal to life. To remove this, he would administer lactic acid with ordinary food. This acid is known to possess the power of removing or dissolving the incrustations which form on the arteries, artilages and valves of the heart. As buttermilk abounds in this acid, and is, noreover, an agreeable kind of food, its habitual use, it is urged, will free the system from tese causes, which inevitably cause death between the seventyfifth and one hundredth year. - Annual practical joke on a person by pretendng to appoint him chaplain to the players, which led to some unseemly equivoques. The person happened to have a son, a member of the thesonical family, talking bully, and, of course, a great roward; but he vowed publicly to avenge the trick put upon his father. Accordingly, he watched Joe from rehearsal one day, and swaggering up, desired him to draw. Joe demanded to know why, and they adjourned to a tavern that he might be told. Joe, receiving the information, consented at once, but said, 'I am a religious man, and must have five minutes to say my prayers." He then retired to the next room, and in a loud tone, distinctly heard by his challenger, expressed his repentance for killing seventeen persons in duels, and concluded by asking forgiveness for being obliged to add this unhappy gentleman to the list. The other looking on his fee-simple of life as not worth a moment's purchase, ran down stairs, and left Joe to pay the reckoning.

Consequences.--The local reporter of the Chicago Herald perpetrated the following, after his return from a summer vacation, probably: "As a gentleman was passing along Fifth street he passed a place where some boys were playing marbles. One of them, in shooting his marble, eleverly put it under the gentleman's foot. The gentleman slipped and stumbled against a lady, also passing precipitating her, along with himself, upon a large hog, who was examining the gutter geologically for debris. The hog, frightened out of his propriety bolted off and ran between the legs of another gentleman, who, in falling, drew the string of a kite from the hands of a boy. The kite of course fell, and in falling frightened a pair of horses attached to a wagon in an alley. A man who was building a fire in a carpenter shop by which they passed, started up the fruit the following year. The state-the shavings. When rot appears, it has usually eyelashes of the under lids with a pair of seissors, and the ability or disposition but if any defective berries are seen to jump is as effectually destroyed as locks. The animal will not attempt to jump a fence until the eyelashes are grown again. Of this we are informer by Samuel Thorne, the great breeder of Dutchees county, who assured us that he had tested it upon a pair of very breachy oxen. As it was of great value to him, he hopes it will be tried by

- A man who had brutally assaulted his wife, was brought before Justice Cole, of Albany, lately, and had a good deal to say about "getting justice." "Justice," replied Cole, "you can't get it here. This court has no power to hang you."

-The other day a lady fell from off the Brooklyn boat into the East River; a poor Irishman sprang-overboard and rescued her. When she was safe on deck again, her husband, who had been a calm spectator of the accident, handed the brave fellow a shilling. Upon some of the bystanders expressing indignation, Pat said, as he pocketed the money: "Arrah, don't blame the jintleman--he knows best; maybe if I hadn't saved her, he'd have give me a THIRST WORSE THAN HUNGER. That disturbance of the general system known as raging thirst is far more terrible that that of starvation, and for this reason: During abstinence from food the organism can still exist upon its own substance; but during abstinence from liquid the organism has no source of supply within itself. Men have been known to endure absolute privation of food for some weeks, but three days o absolute privation of drink (unless in a moist atmosphere) is, perhaps, the limit of endurance. Thirst is the most atrocious torture ever invented. It is that which most effectually tames animals. Mr. Astley, when he had a refractory horse, always used thirst as the effective power of coercion, giving a little water is the reward of every act of obedience.

The cures they have effected for years past has induced the proprietor to bring them more particularly before the people. They are not a new remedy, the recipe for making the "Bitters" having been in the possession of the proprietor for many years. The ingredients are composed of the following medicinal herbs and roots, all possessing well known curative powers, and are warranted not to contain any other article: Elecampane, Burdock, Spikenard, Soapwort, Peruvian Bark, Buchu, Spicewood, Mullein, Slippery Elm, Sassafras, Sarsaparilla, Gentian Hoot, Juniper, Spirits Nitre, Balsam Copavia, Cubebs, Dandelien, Pure Spirits and Barberry. The Bitters have been used by persons afflicted with various diseases for some years past, and such has been their success in curing the most obstinate diseases, that the proprietor is now induced for the first time to offer them to the public, with the full confidence and a willingness to guarantee that if properly used they will effect permanent cures in the most obstinate cases of diseases, They are a certain remedy for Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, Loss of Appetite, Norvous affections, Intermittent Fever, Fever and Agne, General Debility, or Weakness caused by exposure, imprudence or excess, Coughs and Colds, Diarrhoea, Headache, Cholera Morbus, Rheumatism or pains in the limbs, Cramp in the Stomach, Neuralgia, Diseases of the Skin, such as Serofula, Ulcers, etc. Also, Piles, Worms, especially Seat Worms, and all other diseases arising from a disorganized or diseased stomach or impurity of Blood. As a Blood Purifier and Tonic or general Appetizer those Bitters are warranted to cure all veneral diseases, no matter of how long standing. The manufacturer recommends it for this class of diseases particularly, and can produce certificates of the most remarkable cures. Those who are suffering with any of these unpleasant complaints, should at once give this medicine at t

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

It is well known to the medical profession that IRON is the vital Principle or Life Element of the blood. This is derived chiefly from the food we cat; but if the food is not properly digested, or if, from any cause whatev r, the necessary quantity of iron is not taken into he circulation, or becomes reduced, the whole system suffers. The bad blood will irritate the heart, will clog up the lungs, will stupery the brain, will obstruct the liver, and will send its disease producing elements to nit parts of the system, and every one will suffer in whatever organ may be predisposed to disease.

IRON AS A MEDICINE

is well known and acknowledged by all medical men. The difficulty has been to obtain such a preparation of it as will enter the circulation and assimilate at once with the blood. This point, says Dr. Hayes, Massachusatts Stackhemist, has been attained in the Perusian Syrup, by combination in a way before auknown.

One would be led to suppose, from the practical demonstration given of the wonderful healing properties of todivanism in the above discases, that its efficacy as a Therapeutic would be doubted by no one, and yet we occasionally come across an individual who will not behave, simply because the Medical Faculty, as a general thing, have not taken hold of it, to them we would say that there is hardly a Braithwait's Retrospect published but what refers to the healing properties of Electricity, and that if the faculty understood more about it they would prefer it old lother remedies, also, that some of the best Physicians in the United States have adopted it.
