domestic sanctum. Character is Power. It is often said that knowledge is power-and this is true. Skill or faculty of any kind carries with it superiority. So, to a certain extent, wealth is power, and genius has a transcendant gift of mastery over men. But higher, purer, better than all, more constant in its influence, more lasting in its sway, is the power of character—that power which emenates from a pure and lofty mind. Take any community, who is the man of most influence? To whom do all look up with reverence? Not the smartest man nor the eleverest politicinn nor the most brilliant talker, but he, who, in a long course of years, tried by the extremes of prosperity and adversi-
