Description of one of their Temples singular Mixture of Business and Surroughthion—Josh in his Sanctum Sanctum, Ac. From the San Francisco Bulletin, Aug. 26.] Timey not be known to all our read-ers that othere are in California six in-fluential and wealthy Chinese com-panies, which are partly commercial associations and partly benevolent or-ders, and with which all the Chinese who come hither are in some sort con-merced. These companies are known nected. These companies are known as the Sam Yep, Yeong Wo, See Yep, Ning Yeong, Hop Wo and Yen Wo. They all have their headquarters in this y. Every Mongolian who comes to is coast is either consigned or indentured to the service of one of these com panies. They have a complete registry of the names and whereabouts of their countrymen, are bound to look after them in health and sickness, so long as their connection with the company is preserved, and, if they die here, to return their bodies to China. They are not unlike, in their character and objects, those great commercial and colonizing companies that sprang up in Europe after the discovery and that furnished emigrants and slaves to the New World, which they visited in search of gold and furs, for the purpose of establishing settlements and trading posts, and sometimes avowedly to convert the heathen.— The system of the Chinese companies is, vever, more thorough, their motives and transactions generally more regular; and they also mix the religious element with their business in a different manner, not seeking to prosely te us "outside barbarians," but to furnish temples wherein the members of their own guilds may worship the wooden gods of the Celestial Empire, and burn Josh sticks and holy paper. The Sam Yep company have long had a temple on pine street in a building which pustic Pine street, in a building which rustic visitors to the city during the small-pox visitation of 1862 used to be waggishly misinformed was a pest house. The Ning Yeong Company have recently built a large establishment on Dupont alley, between Pacific street and Broadway, which has been popularly reported to be a pagan temple, wherein all man-ner of idols are worshipped and mystic rites performed. Popular report is partly right and partly wrong. The Ning Yeong Company, which is said to be the largest and richest in the State, and to have a total membership in California of eighteen thousand, erected a new building for its business headquarters mainly, at a cost of about $16,000, the furniture and outfit costing many thousands more. Its recent completion has been made the occasion of a grand festival, continuing through many days and nights, in which all the Chinese in the city are participating, and to which many Americans have been invited. The ceremonies began with a Chinaman going about throwing water from his mouth upon the furni-ture and into the corners of the room; quently repeated. It is a curious fact that the Chinese do not resent or appaand this queer proceeding was followed by a hideous outburst of barbaric music, rently object to the presence of Americans during these rites. Perhaps they are willing to give us every opportunity he burning of incense, bowings before Josh, visiting and feasting. A great many "outside barbarians" have imto be converted, and desire to set us at proved the opportunity to study (Thinese customs, and to inspect the new temple example of liberality and courtesy which of trade and superstition, which is worth | seen from the above sketch what a queer describing. The main building is of brick, about twenty feet front, forty feet is a recess arch under a square cornice, the windows opening upon fron-railed balconies built within the arch and outer square line of the building. This edifice is approached the property of the building o deep, and three stories high. The front edifice is approached through a square one-story brick, opening into an inner Smoke for Wounds.

Standing in the courtyard and looking up, one sees that the front of the tleman mentioned the case of a horse fried cakes, or a paper segar, and Chines may be seen reclining on lounges and smoking pipes of wood and metal, which emit a very villainous smell. Back of the reception rooms is a sort of an altar, with gilt and red hanging, the front being open and showing what the front being open and snowing what resembles a succession of small steps or shelves, which are covered with paper and inscribed with Chinese characters. This is the register of the dead. Here are inscribed the names of all the members or Wards of the Ning Yeong Company who have died in California. In bers or Wards of the Ning Yeong Company who have died in California. In front of this ghostly record lamps are kept burning night and day. The furniture of all the apartments on the first floor is of the plainest description. On the second floor is the company's business room, or exchange, where the president or Sing Song whose name is Wing niture of all the apartments on the arst floor is of the plainest description. On the second floor is the company's busi-ness room, or exchange, where the pres-ident or Sing Song whose name is Wing Ga, and his head manager, Ah Wee, sit and smoke and talk, receive visitors, preside over meetings of the company, and direct its ordinary concerns, reliev-ing the tedium of these occupations with Wee assures his American friends will break the edge of a steel implement. The walls are papered and hung in tapestry of crimson and yellow silk or satin elaborately embroidered in gold and high colors, and heavily fringed. Ah Wee says it cost $150 a yard, and was presented to the company by some of its friends. Ah Wee mixes a little English with his native language, and can answer almost any question, except it relates to abstract subjects, such

He is glad to show his sleeping apartment, where he reclines upon an egantiy émbroidered mat, and to exhibithis fine silken jackets and breeches, and his straight sword. He will even lay aside his dignity to play you a dismally doleful ditty upon the Som Yen, a two-stringed banjo, the small drum of which is made of over school drum of which is made of gay colored snake skin, or upon the Food Kim, a threestringed instrument, which has a larger drum of wood. These instruments with drum of wood. These instruments with several variations of them, larger or smaller, are thrummed upon by nearly every adult Chinese, with smooth bits of bone. business hours. wing Ga, the Fresident, or oning soing of the company, has more dignity and longer nails than Ah Wee. Three of the nails on his left hand are fully three inches long, two of them bent like a bird's claws, one curled like an augur, and all the color of gutter mud. These long nails are a sign of blood—of aristocratic breeding; a proclamation to all whom it may concern that he, the great Sing Song of the Ning Yeong is not obliged to labor. He has fairer skin than the to labor. He has fairer skin than the Chinese canaille, wears silk, smokes a great deal, says little, and keeps up a great deal of thinking. The room occupied by these worthies, like every other one in the house, has hung upon the walls a number of his wooden signs bearing the everlasting and inscrutable bearing the everlasting and inscrutable Chinese characters, which look like a bunch of triangles on a spree.

But the wonder of the whole building the temple in the third story. The first glance at it reveals only a confused heap of gilt, crimson and blue cabinets, A more

A more careful survey extracts something wonderful and systematic from this me-lange of barbaric tinsel and furniture. walls and ceilings are nearly hid with the huge crimson; blue and gilt signs, each bearing four large letters, upposed to be a motto of some sort— and some inscriptions in smaller characters on one end. These are said to be presents from other companies and from their friends here in China. Across the their friends here in China. Across the centre of the room are placed three cabinets, each about ten feet long by two feet wide and four feet high, made of exceedingly dark and heavy wood, and the fronts carved in high relief in the most grotesque and elaborate manner. Some of the carvings represent the interior of houses, with figures of men, beasts, birds and insects in strange juxtaposition, while using of trees, vines and seroll work—all gilded the background being the original dark color of the wood. On top of these massive cabinets are large braziers filled with incense, or containbraziers filled with incense, or containing live coals; in which sticks of sandal wood are slowly burning; fantastic wax tapers; sticks of, punk three feet high and four inches thick, lofty vessels of a metallic like tin, whose use is not apparent; small images, peaked yellow flags, pyramids of fan-shaped bunches of artificial flowers, peacock tails and insects, and mixed with tinsel ornaments; blazing lamps, carved and gilt sticks of sandal wood, &c.—Along the sides of the room, at the end of these cabinets, are banners of embroid-

of these cabinets, are banners of embroidered silk, round, and square, and fring-ed; drums, brassemblems, military, civic and weapons of war. Much of the furniture and trumpery described was pre-sented to the company. The front cabi-net, which Ah Wee says cost $400 in China, where wages are less than a cent a day in some districts, was a gift from the Chinese employed at Mission Woollen Mills. In the rear of all this splendor stands the altar of Josh, the wooden god of the almond-eyed idolaters. This is a square alcove of carved and gilde is a square acove of carved and glued wood, about one hundred feet high and perhaps as wide, in which sets the awful Josh himself—a bigpaunched Chinaman, with a brick red face, long strips of red cloth flowing from each side of his head, three long tails of black heavy hear a being experting out of his black horse hair sprouting out of his chin and corners of his mouth, and his person bedizened with blue, green, crimson and gilt carvings, studded with bits of glass, to represent his small clothes, and above his head a brass sun as if the celestial superstition had mixed with it a bit of Parseeism. We are asked to believe, while in this awful presence that Josh, when alive on earth, stood fifteen feet in his bare feet, wielded a battle axe that weighed a ton, and one day killed thirty thousand of his foes. In proof of this story we were shown by Ah Wee, in a manner that admit ted of no controversy, a wooden battle axe, highly carved and gilded, which is an exact representation of the one that Josh swung with such fatal fury. Under Josh's august nose blazed several oil lamps; and sticks of burn-ing sandal wood and punk, and braziers of incense powder, sent up wreaths of smoke filling the room with an odor that was rather pleasant after awhile. Before this altar the heads of the com-panies clad in long blue robes and black skull caps, appear daily during the festival, bowing, kissing the floor and chanting, while the Som Yen and Good Kim are twanged, and drums are beat in horrid dissonance. Hither are in horrid dissonance. Hither are brought offerings of baked and raw meat—whole sheep and hogs. A record of these is kept, but with the exception of the left hind quarters of the baked animals, they are taken away again by those who bring them. This is an economical form of sacrifice, and probably does Josh as much good as though his votaries did not saye their bacon so carefully. The resave their bacon so carefully. The re ligious ceremonies are soon over, (and that is another wise economy,) though during the current festival they are fre

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

It is well known to the medical profession that IRON is the vital Principle or Life Element of the blood. This is derived chiefly from the food we eat; but if the food is not properly digested, or if, from any cause whatev r, the necessary quantite of iron is not taken into the circulation, or becomes reduced the whole system suffers. The had blood will irritate the heart, will close up the lungs, will stapefy the brain, will obstruct the liver, and will send its disease producing elements to all parts of the system, and every one will suffer in whatever organ may be predisposed to disease.

IRON AS A MEDICINE

is well known and acknowledged by all medi-cal men. The difficulty has been to obtain such a preparation of it as will enter the circulation and assimilate at once with the blood. This point, says Dr. Hayes, Massachusetts State Chemist, has been attained in the Peruvian 'Syrup, by combination in a way before un-known.

THE PERUVIAN SYRUP

Is a Protected solution of the Protoxide of Iron. A New Discovery in Medicine that strikes at the root of Disease by supplying the blood with its Vital Principle of Life Element—Iron.

THE PERUVIAN SYRUP

Jures Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Fever and Ague, Loss of Energy, Low Spirits.

THE PERUVIAN SYRUP

Infuses strength, vigor, and new life into the system, and builds up an "Iron Constitution."

THE PERUVIAN SYRUP

capecially PROLAPSUS UTERI or falling down of the Uterus, can be permanently cured, and all nervous affections yield to the action of the Galvanie and Electric currents, when properly applied.

One would be led to suppose, from the practical demonstration given of the wonderful healing properties of Galvanism in the above diseases, that its efficacy as a Therapeutic would be doubted by no one, and yet we occasionally come across an individual who will not believe, simply because the Medical Faculty, as a general thing, have not taken hold of it, to them we would say that there is hardly a Braithwait's Retrospect published but what refers to the healing properties of Electricity, and that if the faculty understood more about it they would prefer it to all other remedies, also, that some of the best Physicians in the United States have adopted it. Hereafter, however, in order to gratify all, there will be at the Institute an eminent Physician of FORTY YEARS ACTUAL PRACTICE, and we cordially uvite the diseased of all classes to call and examine into the merits of this system, as consultation and advice, together with pamphlets, will be given Free of Charge.
