whether any law to authorize the con-finement of any citizens on the judg-ment of a military commission. Mr. Cox, (opp.) of Ohio, said he, with the gentleman from Maryland, would enlarge the scope of the resolution. He would like to know whether the require-ments of the law ware recorded and ments of the law were regarded, and whether lists of persons had been fur-nished to courts, or whether the law was a dead letter, or whether even the legal department had endeavored to set aside the law for their own purposes. He had cases in his own eye-not only that of Vallandigham—to which the gentleman from Maryland had alluded, but others, where the Secretary of the Treasury, under some peculiar higher law un-known to the statute, had caused to be arrested, men suspected of counterfeit-ing greenbacks or shinplasters, and held them in the Old Capitol prison month after month on the sole order of the Solicitor of the Treasury, without giving them the right of trial. Was there no remedy for the nullification of our own laws? or shall we not have an inquiry into these abuses " Mr. Coffroth, opp.) of Pa., said that in his district a brave officer, who was wounded and his limb amputated, was confined in prison without charges having been preferred against him.

Mr. Cox said he had not submitted his remarks with any partisan view or to find fault. The law authorizing a suspension of the writ of habeas corpus was not passed with the concurrence of the democratic members, but by the votes of republicans. It was their law, They took the liberty of suspending the writ, but they qualified it in such a way as to guard against undue and irresponas to guard against undue and irrespon-sible arrests. Heappealed togentlemen on the other side to sustain their own law, and and not let it be a dead letter. It was their duty to find out in what respect and by whom the law had been broken broken, Mr. Ganson said he had been credibly informed of several other cases than those which he had already mentioned. where civilians, as well as army officers, were illegally held in prison. He felt it to be his duty to offer the resolution, especially when these prisons are with-in speaking distance of this hall. The House should have all the facts in order House should have all the facts in order to determine whether any further legisbatton is required on the subject. He would not undertake to criticize the acts of any of the officers of the goveanment, his desire being to discover whether there are abuses, and if so to rectify them. Mr. Eden, (opp.) of Ill., said the gen-tleman had assumed as a fact that the persons so confined were illegally arrest-ed and kept there for a long time contrary to law. If the department deserved censure, he was willing it should be censured. There might be some things in the cases not for the courts to pass on. The resolution, as it now read, was a direct censure, although not so intended. Hence he had suggested an amendment. amendment. Mr. Kasson, (rep.) of Iowa, added his testimony to the propriety of the in-vestigation proposed. The time has arrived when it was due to the people of this country that Congress should ex-amine into the extent of the power ex-oreised by the Scarotory of Wer gene-

He argued the adoption of the resolution for the reason that by a general order no information whatever could be obtained from the War Department excepting from the Secretary himself or by his order. If some poor woman has had a son killed, and desires information concerning him it could not be obtained save in the way justmentioned The committee should inquire how far the arbitrary habits ex-tend. He would be the first to vote for the exculpation of the Secretary if he the excurption of the Secretary if he should be found innocent. The army may tremble under his power as absolute dictator; but Congress has a right to in-vestigate where the liberties of the peo-ple are concerned. If, in June last, when prisoners of war were exchanged, from to tweater thousand of the from ten to twenty thousand of them were left to perish in rebel pens, he found another reason why the transac-

near the Tennessee line, there lived a merchant who also kept a Post-office, and of an evening his store would be full of his customers, eager to hear him read the news. While reading the paper to them one evening, he came to a paragraph as follows: "Owing to the large number of emigrants traveling westward, corn will probably command a very high price." One old gentleman at this point interrupted him, and wanted to know what emigrant meant. The merchant stopped reading, and after studying for some time answered, "Well, my friend, to tell you the truth, I don't know, but I believe they are an animal between a possum and a coon-anyhow they're leath on corn !''

Who are the Happy ? Lord Byron said : " The mechanics and workingmen who can maintain their families are, in my opinion, the happiest body of men. Poverty is wretchedness, but even poverty is pre-ferable to the heartless, unmeaning dissipation of the high orders." Another author says : "I have no propensity to envy any one, least of all the rich and great; but if I were disposed to this weakness, the subject of my envy would be a healthy young man, in full possession of his strength and faculties, going forth in the morning to work for his wife and children, or bringing home his wages at night." ------

A clergyman was once sent for in the middle of the night by one of the ladies of his congregation. "Well, my good woman," said he, so you are very ill, and require the consolations of religion? What can I do for you?" "No," replied the old lady: "I am only nervous and can't sleep." "How can I help that?" asked the parson. "O, sir, you always put me to sleep so nicely when I go to church, that I late one night, a little more than "half seas over," feeling thirsty, procured a glass of water and drank it. In doing so he swallowed a small ball of silk that lay in the bottom of a tumbler, the end lay in the bottom of a tumbler, the end catching in his teeth. Feeling some-thing in his mouth and not knowing what it was, he began pulling at the end, and the little ball unrolling he, soon had several feet in his hands, and still no end, apparently. Terrified, he shouted at the top of his voice, "Wife! wife! I say, wife, come down here'! I am all unravelling!"
