General Lee Hopeful and Confident.

[From the Richmond Dispatch, Feb. 3,] General Lee is said to have remarked a few days since that he saw and appreciated the difficulties surrounding us, but he was hopeful and confident that any compromise now would prove but a truce or armistice, and would be an unmanly shrinking from present dutie General Lee Commander-in-Chief—Duty of the People—Success with Lee Certain. [From the Richmond Dispatch, Feb. 3]

The appointment of General Lee to the comand-in-chief of thearmies of the confederacy will give universal satisfaction, and inspire fresh confidence in every bosom. The President has shown in this important act a just appreciation of the exigencies of the occasion, and a between the sections; there is too heavy patriotic sympathy with the public sentiment, which pointed with entire unaanimity to such a step. Moreover, we have seen so much of the popular impatience and fickleness, we appreciate so strongly the difficulties of General Lee's position, that we feel constrained to invoke the people to economize their enthusiasm, and invest their surplus of that article in forbearance and charity qualities which may be needed before this war is over. General Lee, great pondent, lay in winter, when old hens do man that he is, is neither infallible not, because fowls will not lay while the new feathers are growing, after moulting, ington often lost battles, and was often and with old hards this period often extends the victim of misconstruction and misinto the winter. We commend the following extract from an editorial in the Newark, New Jersey, Daily Journal, to the careful perusal of our readers :

What, in point of fact, do we mean when we speak of Peace—Peace, as a termination to the civil war now raging? 1. Do we mean a renewal of the relationship, intercourse and unity be-tween sovereign States, North and South, such as existed before Abraham Lincoln came into power? 2. Do we mean a cessation of hostilities, a disbanding of armies reduction of taxes and a restoration the Law to its supremacy coupled with recognition of the revolutionary rights claimed by the Southern people, and for which they have contended so resolutely? 3. Do we mean that condition of incapacity for further organized resistance which would ensue upon the destruction of Lee's, Johnston's, Hardee's and Kirby Smith's armies? 4. Or, do we mean that total prostration of a whole people at the conqueror's feet, which is implied by the word "subjugation?" It is important for each one of us to decide in his own mind which of these conditions of things he understands by the word Peace. For, of these variou conditions, only the second, or the third, and entailing upon our children trials are by any means possible. No man which we should meet and overcome. utterly to subjugate eight millions of free people, because no one can believe it possible completely to exterminate a population so extensive. Nor, while the present state of feeling exists North and South, can the bright and cherished dream of Democracy be realized, of a restoration of the glorious old "Union as it was." There is too much blood a weight of debt and taxes; there i too much bitterness of hatred: there are too many green wounds, too many deer and festering sores. Time may indeed bring our hope to pass; but this generation will not live to rejoice in the con-summation. For a present Peace, then, for a practicable and immediate cessation of this brutal and bloody strife, we have the choice of two alternatives either the recognition of Southern inde pendence, or the annihilation of the

Is there any prospect of an immediate peace in either of these ways? In other words, is our Government ready to let the South go? Or, has it the means now in hand to defeat and destroy the Southern armies? We do not care who the person may be who propounds these ouestions to his secret heart, nor how sanguine he is. He must answer that it will require at least another bloody campaign. The North is not ready to let he South go; the South is not yet weak enough to abandon the contest.

How we will stand, or what will be the condition of things one year hence s a question we do not propose suss or to speculate upon, even if we had the heart to do it. Suffice it to say that we do not see how, in the prese temper of parties, peace can be attained, without the cost and horrors and terrible bloodshed of another ruthless cam paign like the last. Are we ready for Dare wescontemplate the thought of it, even though we' were sure that at the end of it would come such a peace as is capable of hereafter subsisting upon this continent?

For, we must always recollect that, no matter how bright the auspices under which it may come, peace will not bring as back to "the good old times" when we were "brothers still." We may reunite, but it will not be a merry marriage believed to be held by citizens in suffi-cient numbers to supply our wants. of ghastly spectres will come trooping unbidden, to assist at the ceremony, and sit down, Banquo-like, in the vacant places? And the debt-will it not keep vivid the consciousness in our minds that the festival is unpaid for? repudiate will we not call ruin and beg-gary down upon tens of thousands of households now comparatively happy in their faith in the national honor? We may reunite, or we may stand apart, separate Republics, but, in either event, we can never attain to a closer friend-ship than subsists between brothers who have quarreled and exchanged blows. But, there is no use for the American people to deceive themselves at this late day, nor to dream of impos-sibilities. The prospect is very dark, very gloomy. We have conjured up infinite evil and they are falling upon us and devouring us. We have sowed the storm with reckless hands, in blindness, and mad fury, and with infinite disregard of history and of reason; now, the whirlwind has sprung up at our feet, and we must reap it in shame and sorrow, how we can. Those prices are much below those usually paid for oil lands in West Virginia, owing to the fact that the Committee have personally visited the locations, and purchased from bona ride owners, thus saving the large profit that is generally placed on lands by Agents before selling to Companies. o Companies. e-whole of these lands have been selecte by the Committee as first class oil Territor, and the Committee as first class oil Territor, which is the Committee of the Co i. Some of these tracts are well improved form

Some of these tracts are well improved farms and all contain fine timber in large quantities They are situated on what is called the "Of Break," or Great Upheaval, and ne well intersected by streams and ravines.

Oil has been found within a very short distance of the most of these locations, so that the Committee are satisfied from personal examinaominitee are satisfied from personal examina-ion, that all the tracts now presented will yield ill in paying quantities.
