Judge Lewis became a member of the New York Typographical Society in the year 1817, on the nomination of the late Thomas Snowden. Although separated from it by distance, he fondly clings to the pleasurable associations of his youth. He visited the Society some years are an one isited the Society some years ago, at one of our annual gatherings of the craft from quarters of the Union, after an absence all quarters of the Union, after an absence of thirty years. Although he met but few of his former associates, yet it was like the return of a first love to the object of his youthful devotion. Mr. Lewis was a compositor for some time on the "old" New York Courier, under Barent Gardenier, and afterward continued in the office of the New York Duilu Advertiser, under Dwight. New York Daily Advertiser, under Dwight offices with our late, lamented brother, Gen. Morris, Samuel Woodworth, one of the Harpers, and many others of the old school. On leaving this city he returned to Pennsylvania, edited a newspaper for a time, studied the legal profession, was elected to the Legislature, afterwards taken into Gov. Wolfe's Cabinet as Attorney-General; then appointed Judge of the Eighth Judicial District, and a few years subsequently to the Second Judicial District, composed of Lan-caster county, which is as populous as some of our small states. He pursued a some of our small states. He pursued a life of unremitting industry and study, and, by improving hours which many others devoted to anusement and recreation, he was enabled to produce his celebrated work on the "Criminal Law of the United States," and to do his share as one of the editors of the American Law Journal. A number of years ago, when the best talent of our country was called into remistion to estabcountry was called into requisition to estab lish a system of Common Schools, Thadlish a system of Common Schools, Thaddeus Stevens, a distinguished lawyer, made a masterly speech in the Pennsylvania Legislature in favor of education. Judge Lewis was then zeulously engaged in promoting the same cause, by delivering literary and scientific lectures. At this time a poem in favor of education made its appearance. The Judge made inquiry concerning the author, who proved to be Lydia June Pierson, who had just then published

Jane Pierson, who had just then published her "Forest Leaves." He ascertained that the lady had been at one time in good circumstances, but owing to the illness of ner husband, and a sad train of misfortunes, in a state of great pecuniary embarrass-ment. Mr. Stevens was then a rich bache-lor. Judge Lewis met him in the House of Representatives, and suggested the propriety of raising something for the relief of so much talent. Mr. Stevens immediately so mucn ment. Air. Stevens immediately authorized the Judge to purchase a suitable farm, such as the lady herself might select, without any limit to the price. The lady was overwhelmned with astonishment when she received a letter from Judge was overwhelmed with astonishment when she received a letter from Judge Lewis, who was only known to her by reputation, apprising her of his commission. She made the selection, and the Judge made the purchase, drew on Mr. Stevens for the money, and forwarded the deed, drawn in two of Lydia Jane Pierson her drawn in favor of Lydia Jane Pierson, her neirs and [assigns, forever. A PRINTER'S MATRIMONIAL ADVEN-TURE.—The Philadelphia Daily News has the following "good one" on the matrimoes of a "typo" of the "City nial adventur horse-shoe—in badly burned fingers. Occasionally, however, it ends in real hymeneal union. A month ago a well-known Philadelphia typo inserted a modest four-fine personal in a daily journal. As the addice enumerated certain very "solid" attractions on the part of the candidate, it was responded to from far and near, and by about a hundred bidders. Some of the letters were decidedly spicy. We were permitted to peruse the tender epistles, but supposed the young typo was only in fun, and had no serious intentions of "setting up" a matrimonial "take" unless it should be "double leaded" and otherwise "fat."

It seems, however, that the follower of Faust was not so stony-hearted as we supposed, and that in his singular "chase" after a neatly-made-up" form" he actually found a "copy" that suited him. The affair had not come to a "head," but he had received several "proofs" that his sighs were not considered as "dead matter." On Friday night the enamored typo left his comrades at work in the news-room, and told them he would be back in a short time. He proceeded to the residence of his enslaver, where a number of young people were collected, and the time passed off quite pleasantly. When he arose to return to the office some one joeularly proposed that lots should be drawn to decide whether he should be to work or get married. He agreed to this, and the fates declared that he should be work or get married. He agreed to this, and the lates declared that he should be married. This brought matters to a crisis, and the result was that in half an hour he was transformed from a roving bachelor into a gay and festive husband. " 25.

Sherman Retaliating for the Killing of His Foragers---Reply of the Confederate General Wade Hampton

H'DQR'S, MILITARY DIV. OF THE MISS'I, IN THE FIELD, Feb. 24. Lieutenant-General Wade Hampton, Com manding Cavalry Forces, C. S. A.: GENERAL: It is officially reported to me that our foraging parties are mur-dered after capture and labelled, "death to all foragers." One instance of a lieutenant and seven men, near Chesterfield, and another of twenty "near a ravine, eighty rods from the main road, about three miles from Feasterville. have ordered a similar number of pris oners in our hands to be disposed of in a like manner.

I hold about one thousand prisoners captured in various ways, and can stan it as long as you; but I hardly think these murders are committed with your knowledge: and would suggest you give notice to the people at large that every life taken by them simply results in the death of one of your Con-

Of course you cannot question my right to forage on the country. It is a war right as old as history. The man-ner of exercising it varies with circumstances, and if the civil authorities wil supply my requisitions I will forbid all foraging. But I find no civil authorities who can respond to calls for forage or provisions, and therefore must collect directly of the people. I have no doubt this is the occasion of much misbehavior on the part of our men; but I can-not permit an enemy to judge or pun-ish with wholesale murder.

Personally I regret the bitter feelings engendered by this war; but they were to be expected, and I simply allege that those who struck the first blow and made war inevitable ought not in fairness to reproach us for the natural consequence. I merely assert our war right to forage, and my resolve to pro-tect my foragers to the extent of life for life. I am, with respect, your obedient servant, W. T. SHERMAN, Major-General U. S. A.

GENERAL HAMPTON'S REPLY. HEADQUARTERS IN THE FIELD,) February 27th, 1865. Major General W. T. Sherman, U. S. Army

General-Your communication of the 24th inst., reached me to-day. In it you state that it has been officially reported that your foraging parties were "murdered" after capture, and you go on to say that you had "ordered a similar number of prisoners in your hands to be disposed of in like manner." That is to say, you have ordered a num-ber of Confederate soldiers to be "mur-

You characterize your order in proper terms, for the public voice, even in your own country, where it seldom dares to express itself in vindication of truth honor or justice, will surely agree with you in pronouncing you guilty of mur-der, if your order is carried out. Before dismissing this portion of your letter, I beg to assure you for every soldier of mine "murdered" by you I shall have executed at once two of yours, giving, in all cases, preference to any officers who may be in my hands.

In reference to the statement you make regarding the death of your foragers, I have only to say that I know nothing of it; that no orders given by me authorize the killing of prisoners after capture, and that I do not believe that my men killed any of yours, except under circumstances in which it was perfectly legitimate and proper they should kill them.

whom you designate as your foragers, to fire the dwellings of those citizens whom they have robbed. To check this inhuman system, which is justly execrated by every civilized nation, I have directed my men to shoot down all your men who are caught burning houses. This order shall re-main in force as long as you disgrace the profession of arms by allowing your men to destroy private dwellings. You say that I cannot of course ques tion your right to forage on the country

"It is a right as old as history." I do not, sir, question this right. But there is a right older even than this, and one more inalienable—the right that every man has to defend his home and to protect those who are dependent upon him; it evérv old man and boy in my country who can fire a gun, would shoot down, as he would a wild beast, the men who are desolating their land, burning their houses and insulting their women. You are particular in defining and claiming "war rights." May I ask if you enumerate among them the right to fire upon a defenceless city without notice, to burn that city to the ground after it had been surrendered by the authorities, who claimed, though in vain, that protection which is always accorded in civilized warfare to noncombatants; to fire the dwelling houses of citizens after robbing them, and to perpetrate even darker crimes than these—crimes too dark to be montioned ese—crimes too dark to be mentioned. You have permitted, if you have not ordered, the commission of these offenses against humanity and the rules of war. You fired into the city of Columbia without a word of warning. After its surrender by the Major who demanded protection to private proper-ty, you laid the whole city in ashes leaving amid its ruins thousands of old men and helpless women and children, who are likely to perish of starvation and exposure. Your line of march can be traced by the lurid light of burning houses, and in more than one household there is an agony far more bitter than gardless of sex or age, but with all his barbarity he always respected the persons of his female captives. Your soldiers, more savage than the Indian, insult those whose natural protectors are

In conclusion, I have only to request that whenever you have any of my men "disposed of," or "murdered," for the terms appear to be synonymous with you, you will let me hear of it, in order that I may know what action to take in the matter. In the meantime I shall hold fifty-six of your men as hostages for those whom you have ordered to be executed. I am yours, &c.,

The Changes in the Interior Department.

It has been determined by the Presi dent to place ex-Senator Morton S. Wilkinson, of Minnesota, at the head of the Indian bureau as the successor of Mr. Dole. The change will take place early this week. The Secretary of the Interior will probably also assume the duties of his position at an earlier date than was anticipated. The cause assigned for hastening these changes is the maladministration of Indian affairs. All sorts of rumors are afloat with reference to corrupt transactions connected with the purchase of goods for distribution among the various Indian tribes. and the names of the Secretary and Comused as being interested in this matter as well as in that of the scrip of the Fox
