Bocal Intelligence.

THE FLOOD IN THE SUSQUEHANNA After having reached a height some eighteen inches greater than that of the remarkable flood of 1846, the Susquehanna is falling rapidly. It was at its highest about noon on Saturday. It remained stationary apparently for some four or five hours, when the waters commenced receding. The lower part of the town of Marietta was completely inundated and women and children were removed from some of the houses in skiffs which navigated the streets. Everywhere is to be seen piled up the debris which had been floated down and collected. The furnaces in and around Marietta, all except that of the Messrs. Haldeman, were compelled to suspend operations. They were all flooded, and the water was almost even with the flues. It is not yet known whether they have escaped being chilled or not, but it is to be hoped they The destruction to the canal must have been very great. The river covered it completely and the water rushing downward in a torrent must have In some place's the railroad track is seriously damaged. Even as late as yesterday was frightfully wild. Looking down the river a telegraph pole could be seen here and there, still standing erect along the ever having been a railroad or canal was visible. The water was covered with floating timber and drift wood. Hundreds of wild ducks were flying about, apparently in a distressed condition. The rapid stream would bear them swiftly down toward a rough fall, when they would be compelled to take to the wing. They could only secure a rest of a few moments at a time. In vain did they search for quiet eddies in the midst of this flood. The damage to private property in and about Marietta was not very great, if we except the furnaces and the destruction of fences. At Columbia, the river being so very wide, less loss occurred. The rise there was not nearly so great as at Marietta. Persons who professed to know assured us that the rise at Marietta was over twenty feet above low water mark .-Among other objects which came floating down the river was the entire superstructure of a large Saw Mili. It lodged just above Marietta, some considerable distance from the shore. Where it came from was not

DEATH OF A VETERAN SOLDIER,-Mr. William H. Morton, son of Mr. John Morton, of this city, who has been a soldier in the U.S. army for more than eighteen years died of typhoid fever, at Point of Rocks Hospital, Virginia, on the 21st of February. Mr. M. served all through the Mexican war, and was afterwards engaged on the frontier. At the time the present war broke out, his company was stationed at Fort Ridgely, Minnesota, and it reached Fort McHenry, in Baltimore Harbor, just two days before the ever-memorable 19th of April, 1861. Few men had seen more active service than he. He was a faithful soldier. a quiet, gentlemanly man, and we sincerely sympathize with his aged father in his bereavement. The funeral took place yesterday afternoon, at 3 o'clock, from the residence of his father, on the Litiz turnpike

JOHNSON'S NEW ILLUSTRATED FAMILY ATLAS.—Mr. S. H. Hartwell, agent for this most admirable work, is now visiting different parts of this county. The work is of such a character that it will at once command the admiration of every intelligent man who examines it even cursorily, Mr. Johnson, the author of this celebrated

Atlas of the World, in his earlier days was the general Agent of J. H. Colton, and traveled in almost every county in the United States. He made the first count colored map of the United States that e tended to the Pacific, and 40,000 copies we sold in a very short time. He subsequent made a large number of other valual

J. H. Colton & Co. failed in the fall 1857, and Mr. Colton, soon after the failur requested Mr. Johnson to so arrange ma houses. It was done, and Mr. Johnson once became the head and front of the gre est geographical establishment in the wor This Atlas is the result of the coalition the talent and experience of these two greemap publishers. New maps—yes, tow States which have townships; and Colton Atlas was only partially a township Atla Even the great State of Pennsylvania wa only a county map; hence, in this a many other States his work was literally worthless; and for want of these township maps it could not be sold. These new maps alone have cost thousands of dollars and years of labor to produce; and they are nearer perfect than any other maps ever before put into an Atlas.

It contains full statistical tables carefully made up; and such a general fund of useful information as cannot be found elsewhere. The Teachers of the State Normal School speak of it in the following flattering but truthful terms: The undersigned, having had an oppor-tunity of examining Johnson's New Illus-trated Family Atlas are of the opinion that trated Family Atlas are of the opinion that in beauty, accuracy and general excellence it has no superior, while it possesses some new features which give it a decided superiority as a popular Atlas.

The articles on Physical and Descriptive Geography especially adapt it to the use of the family; and the provision which has been made for the introduction of such new matter as the progress of geograpical and topographical science, the advance of civilization, and the changes in the political topographical science, the advance of civilization, and the changes in the political world shall give occasion for promises to make it a standrad authority for many years. These merits, and its remarkable cheapness, bespeak for it a large patronage, and we hope that it may be widely disseminated in the schools and families of our State.

LANCASTER HORSE MARKET-MONDAY TROUT'S .- The arrivals at Trout's during the past week have been as follows: P. G. Margret, from Bedford county, 16; Myers & Bitner, from Dauphin, 9; Copeland & Cline. 93. There are now about 150 head in Trout's stables, among which are many valuable animals. Keyser will ship 14 head to Philadelphia this afternoon, and Copeland & Cline some 90. The sales to parties in the county have been brisk at satisfactory stables. The rise in the Susquehanna has prevented some arrivals. During the past week the arrivals have been as follows: Adam Brenner, from Medinacounty, Ohio; 16; Christian Miller, 15 head, from Ohio; John H. Adams, from Franklin county, 12. Sales to parties in the county have been

It is expected that the arrivals at the commencement of this week will be larger than usual in consequence of the delay to the parties on the road necessarily caused by the flood in the Susquehanna. Wm Snell, of Bedford county, is expected at Trout's to-day or to-morrow.

HARRISBURG MUNICIPAL ELECTION. Democracy Triumphant!

Abolitionism Defeated Yesterday by an Increased Majority! The Patriot and Union thus announces the result of the recent municipal election in that city:

Although the vote at the municipal election yesterday was a light one, and no special efforts made by the Democracy o defeat the well organized voting forc of the "Union League," we are pleased to announce that the Democracy have been victorious in the city by an increased majority over previous municipal elections, and over those of last fall. In the townships, so far as we have heard, the results have been equally favorable to the Democracy. We hope, sincerely, that these indications presage a change in the popular current that a change in the popular current that shall eventually bring the State and na-tion back to the good old times of pure and free Democracy and free Democracy.

Borough Election in York, Pa .-- Increased Democratic Majority. YORK, Pa. March 18, 1865. To THE PHILADELPHIA AGE:-The borough election held here yesterday proves that the Democratic strength in this region is still increasing notwithstanding the extraordinary exhibitions of unusually large majorities made by this county during the past three years. The majority for David Small, for Chief Burgess, at the election held last year was 206, which was beyond all that had ever preceded it. Mr. Small was yesterday elected by a majority of two hundred and thirty-seven! The Demo-crats also carried the First, Fourth and Fifth wards for Councilmen, leaving the Abolitionists but the Second and Third wards, by small majorities. The Democrats accordingly have entire control of the Borough Councils, without requiring the casting vote of the Chief Burgess. In Spring garden and some other neighboring townships, the vote was almost unanimously Democratic.

Henry S. Foote's Manifesto-The Rebel Congressman's Explanation of H Flight from Richmond and America. From the New York Herald.1

Henry S. Foote, late rebel Congress nan from Tennessee, has found the sequestered spot" where he hoped to be free from persecution and taxation. It is at the "Golden Cross Hotel, the Strand, London;" and from here he lates a manifesto to his constituents in his usual grandiloquent style. His purpose in addressing them he declares to be in order that he may represent the reasons which influenced him to leave the rebel States, and in doing this he intimates that "the actual condition of things in both sections of his own dear native country" (and not Mr. Lincoln) forced him to seek refuge in a foreign land before he could communicate said reasons and diversother matters, which he assures his "well-beloved constituents" "are vitally associated with their honor and happiness."

He begins by endeavoring to show that he was and is a Union man. His facts are not strong, his arguments are weak and his success rather lame. His assertions are worthy of notice, however, from the fact that he couples them with the statement that his opposition to the disunion schemes which had culminated in the Montgomery rebel gov ernment and Congress were well known to nis constituents when they elected him in 1862, without solicitation on his part, to represent them, or, in other vords, that he was elected to the rebel Congress as a "Union man." He refers to his course in that body, and claims to have early and persistently opposed "the shameful efforts of Mr Davis and his servitors to undermine the public liberties and establish a despotism on its ruins." He claims credit for his efforts "to effect the remodeling of the wretched Cabinet of Davis: the exposition of the rank official corruption. the earnest and seasonable indication of certain meritorous military commanders when heartlessly and wickedly assailed by Mr. Davis and his employes;" and the untiring industry which he has displayed in the arraignment of incompetent generals, with a view to their lismissal." He states that he at last grew disgusted with the "gross and undeniable mismanagement" of Davis, and "the servility of his incompetent and snobbish Congress;" and so, with 'the advice of all his discerning friends.' he came to the sage conclusion that the "South would be inevitably ruined" if an honorable peace was not speedily effected. Knowing Davis was selfishly bent on a further prosecution of the war for his vile purposes, Foote says that, "after consulting with the best and wisest man whom I(he) met." he resolved to lose no time in introducing resolutions into the rebel House of Representatives looking to immediate action on the part of Conress itself. They were rejected, as is well known, much to Foote's mortification, which is expressed in the manifesto in a review of Davis' administration. -While this disgust was still on him, Foote left Richmond, sent his wife through to Nashville, got captured, was released and escaped to Sheridan's lines and announced himself as a peace commissoner in a long letter to Mr. Seward, chiefly remarkable for the assertion that he represented in that capacity "a large number of the most weighty and influential statesmen that the South contained, and at the wish of a very large majority of the people of the Southern States," whom he assures Mr. Seward "are ready and anxious to enter once more into fraternal Union with our fellow-citizens of the North." He has a plan for the settlement of what he considers the chief difficulty in the way of slavery. He begs the North to deal steamers that were carrying supplies up the

with the South on that point "liberally and kindly," and says: Consider, if you please, that the fate of slavery has been sealed by the operations of the war itself; that Maryland is now a free State, and Missouri likewise; that Kentucky, Virginia, Tennessee, North Carolina and Arkansas are sure in a few years, by their own voluntary action, to adopt a system of emancipation; and that in all probability before the close of the present century slavery will nowhere exist upon the continent.—

sible, then I am prepared to say, in be-half of those whom I represent, that we will agree to such a change of the federal constitution as will secure the entire extinction of slavery on the 1st day of January, 1900, and which will provide also for the freedom of all persons of African blood who shall be born after the 1st day of January, 1790.

In reply to this letter and his application to be allowed to come to Washington. Seward sent orders to Gen. Sheridan to send Foote to New York. On arriving in New York, permission was granted him to leave the country, and he did so in February, 1865, after addressing another long letter to Seward, rency the reign of high prices is sure to following it with one to Mr. Lincoln. Taking his cue from the fact that he erate paper money inflation in Great writes from on board the steamer in mid-ocean, he compares Mr. Lincoln to the suspension of specie payment is thus Neptune, begs him to "look the god, assume the trident of pacification and compose the discordant elements of this | Europe": vexed land." He is also generous enough to tell him how to do this, recommending as the most potent spells to allay the fury of the contending passions of the two sections the adoption of measures for gradual emancipation in lieu of immediate abolition, and the remorseless enforcement of the Monroe-Foote doctrine, and not forgetting that his "sequestered spot" is comfortably, not to say luxuriously, located in the bosom of the British nation. Foote proceeds in a foot note to show that England could very consistently join in the enforcement of the Monroe doctrine, as improved by Foote, and present the race driving the rest of creation off the face of the globe! The "method of Mr. Foote's madness" is probably contained in the concluding paragraph of his manifesto, which has all the virtuous conciseness and wisdom generally attributed to postscripts. He says:

sublime spectacle of the Anglo-Saxon

On arriving in the City of London I sat down to draw up this address to my valued neighbors and friends of Tennessee. It is not now my fortunate lot to see you face to face; I may possibly never again have that satisfaction; but I entreat you, my countrymen and fel-low citizens, whatever may be the action of President Lincoln and the politicians now in power in Washington ticians now in power in Washington city, upon the propositions submitted to them in this correspondence, that you will yourselves lose no time in returning to the bosom of the federal Union. It is far better, in my deliberate opinion, that you should do so, and do so at once, than to take the chances of future military success under Jefferson Davis and his present official associates, and rely upon them for the future restora-tion of your liberties, after they shall have been once completely surrendered to the most unfeeling and degrading despotism that has existed in the world

The Great Freshets ... $2,000,000 of Property Destroyed in Oil City---The Whole Place Inundated and Oil Machinery Floated Away-Particulars of Damag

in Other Localities. PITTSBURG, March 20.-Telegraphic communication with Oil City not being established, we can give but meagre de-tails of the losses of the late flood. The total loss is immense, being moderately estimated at over two million dollars. Oil City was completely flooded, and many business offices were floated away y the water, which rose with unprec dented rapidity. All the bottom lands above Oil City were submerged, and the Mc Clintock and Oil City bridges, over Oil Creek, and Franklin bridge, over French Creek, were carried away Derricks, tanks containing large quantities of oil, came down, and the river was flocked with floating barrels, ost of them filled with oil. rg firms suffered heavily. the banks were sad evidences wreck. Many families whose are gone, are camping along the bank.

All the banks along the Allegheny river are inundated. Considerable of oil in barrels will be recovered, having floated into eddie below this city, and left aground by the receding waters. At the mouth of Sewickly Creek it is estimated that $100,-000 worth of property was washed ashore A large field at Manchester is entirely covered with oil barrels, and one piec of bottom land, a short distance l about twenty-one acres in extent, covered from six to eight feet with oil barrels and lumber in a confused mass.

THE FLOOD SUBSIDING—RESUMPTION OF RAILWAY TRAVEL.

HARRISBURG, March 20.—The extradinary freshets in the Susquehanna and Juniata rivers are subsiding, the water falling rapidly. The damage to the Pennsylvania Railroad is found to e very slight, and the road is now in working condition between Harrisburg and Pittsburg. The eastward trains came through on time to-day, from Pittsburg to Harrisburg. The damage done to the track that was overflowed east of Harrisburg, six miles, will be repaired by to-morrow evening. In the meantime, the business to and rom Philadelphia and New York is passing over the Philadelphia and Wil mington road. The Cumberland Valley bridge has been repaired, and the trains of the Northern Central Railroad, between Harrisburg and Baltimore, are passing as usual.

THOMAS A. SCOTT,

Vice President of Penna. Railroad. PITTSBURG, March 20.—The trains are running regularly on the Fort Wayne and Chicago Railrood.

The War.

From Yesterday's Age. On Tuesday or Wednesday last (the tim uncertain), after several days of rest, ieneral Sherman's army at Fayetteville began crossing to the east side of the Cape Fear river. His troops took the road owards Goldsboro, which is about forty niles east of Fayetteville, and is the acadquarters of General Johnston's army. The progress made by Sherman's advance is not known; nor is it evident whether the Confederates made any strong opposition to his march. By means of scouts, who travel by circuitous routes, Shermar ommunicates with Schofield, who is quiet at Kinston. There has not been any junction effected by the two armies, however, On Tuesday last the Confederates were at Goldsboro, and presented two fronts, on towards Fayetteville and the other towards Kinston. Schofield made no attempt to advance from Kinston. The Federal losses in the recent battles at Kinston are now stated at twenty-five hundred.

We continue to receive details of the destruction caused by General Sheridan's raid in Central Virginia. When last heard from ne was at Hanover Court House, on the Pamunkey. No announcement has yet been received of his arrival there, however With the exception of the cavalry fight at the South Anna railroad bridge. Sheridan eems to have fought no battle with the Confederates. The great freshets in the rivers south and west of Philadelphia have broken the telegraph wires, and prevented the transmission of intelligence. We have at length received the Arkansas river to Fort Smith, made by the Confederates in January last. Three steamers were destroyed, eighty-two Federal prisoners were captured, and twenty-seven were killed or wounded. The Confederate loss was one killed and fifteen wounded.

Intelligence has been received that a evere thunder storm prevailed at Mobile on March 8 and 9. It wrecked five transports of the Federal fleet, which had just arrived rom New Orleans. No lives were lost. A new Confederate privateer was at Nassau on March 15th. She is said to be named the Confederate States.

The attack on Mobile began on Saturday, March 11. On that day the Federal moniors engaged two of the batteries defending he city. Secretary Stanton is again in Washington.

It is evident also that large deposits of bituminous coal exist in the elevated portions of this tract; they are however undeveloped.

Within one mile east and west coal mines are worked on an extensive scale.

Recent experiments demonstrate that the Big Sandy " is not second to Oil Creek in oil wealth as to quantity, wh le the quality is far superior, and worth nearly twice the price of the illuminating oil upon Oil Creek; the Big Sandy producing the heavy lubricating oil.
The excitement is now in that direction. Numbers of wells are now down and being bored all along the waters of the Big Sandy. Oil was struck \( \frac{1}{2} \) of a mile above this tract on the 7th of February, A. D., 1895. There is a fifty barrel

SPEER, SSAMBURG PORT GRAPE WINE VINEYARD, PASSAIC, NEW JERSEY. PURE AND FOUR YEARS OLD.

For the Communion Table, for Family Use, and for Medical Purposes.

This is an article of Wine from the Pure Port Grape Juice, fermented, without the addition of spirits of any liquors whatever. Has a full body, rich flavor, and slightly stimulating.—None is disposed of until four years old.

The beneficial effect derived from it use is astonishing thousands, and cannot be realized from other wine, nor from the thousands of Patent Bitters now crowding the market.

All who try it express their surprise that so delicious a Wine is produced in this country, and that it is so far different from what they had expected. This is to certify that we, the undersigned, residents of Burlington, Cumberland and Salem counties, in the State of New Jersey, having seen ELLIOTT'S HAY and MANURE LOADERS in operation, and having ourselves purchased an interest in the same, do not hesitate to recommend it to the Farming community generally, believing that it will soon take its place side by side with the Mower, Horse Rake, and other improved Farming Implements.

and that it is so far different from what they had expected.
Some who knew nothing further of the Wine then seeing it advertised, thought at first it was a humbug, not knowing it was pure grape juice, have found out their mistake, and now lay their lives to the use of this Wine.
Excellent for Females and Weakly Persons and the Consumptive.
