

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 29, 1865. The printing press shall be true to every person who undertakes to examine the progress of the war...

Selling the Legislature.

A decided stir was made in the State Senate yesterday morning by the announcement that certain outside parties...

When the Senate found out what had happened, they grew most virtuously indignant against the lobby members.

There are a number of perfectly honest and respectable persons who are in the Legislature, but it is a recognized fact that almost any bill can be put through...

The swindle was perpetrated on the strength of the well-known corruption of the present Legislature...

The Cruelty of Abolition.

The much-vaunted tender mercies of the fanatical philanthropists of New England have turned out to be the bitterest cruelties.

The Depletion of Our Population.

In many of the poorer and more sparsely settled rural districts of this State the present merciless conscription...

Piquette's Report of Hospital at New Orleans.

I have now under my charge nearly eight hundred negro convalescing patients, and of all ages, most of them sick, and many of them destitute.

The Rebellion from a Historical Point of View.

A special correspondent of the New York World gives the following review of the situation, and indulges in some serious reflections upon the probable results of military movements.

MR. LINCOLN'S OPINION ON THE DESTRUCTION OF THE WAR.

Mr. Lincoln, who has become somewhat wiser by experience, said in my presence this morning: "I think this year is going to be one of the hardest fighting years we have seen through; if fighting is up at the end of December next, we must consider ourselves as exceedingly fortunate."

A MILITARY CRITIC UPON SHERMAN'S PLAN.

As a contrast to the flattering, and I fear deceitful, picture we form of our own resources, and the weakness of the South, I will mention a few facts...

THE REBELLION FROM A HISTORICAL POINT OF VIEW.

I know that moral strength is a powerful weapon in the hands of an efficient number of bayonets to back it, and I know, also, this is hardly the case with the South...

THE TACTICS OF THE WAR TO BE FOLLOWED.

"If you ask me whether the abandonment of their capital, and of their seacoast cities, is the tearing up of their own feet, I would answer that it is not a mortal blow to the Confederates...

THE TACTICS OF THE WAR TO BE FOLLOWED.

There are not enough, nor half enough, men left to till the soil. What crops will be raised will be but a small one, and by women and children; many of the farms will be entirely vacant...

THE TACTICS OF THE WAR TO BE FOLLOWED.

What is said in this country is true of many other sections of the State. The woes of this war are pressing most heavily upon such sections as are making no money out of it.

THE TACTICS OF THE WAR TO BE FOLLOWED.

Nearly all our country exchanges are filled with accounts of the ravages of the recent great flood. Every insignificant creek in the northern and western part of the States seems to have been swollen down to a rapid, and in some cases to a deluge.
