INDEPENDENCE DAY-How IT WAS CELEBRATED IN THIS CITY AND VICINITY. -The 89th anniversary of our National Independence was celebrated with a good deal of spirit and enthusiasm in this At 12 o'clock on Monday night the National airs were played on the Trinity chimes, and shortly afterward a party of wellknown musical gentlemen appeared on the streets, and sang the same with grand effect. The streets during the whole night were filled with enthusiastic throngs of young men, and there was but little chance for those who retired to get their usual rest. At 4 o'clock, A. M., the day was properly ushered in by the ringing of all the bells and firing of cannon. At 9 o'clock, a parade of the "Jeff, Davis Guerillas," or olden-time 'Fantasticals," took place. A small tent had been erected in the southwest angle of Centre Square, in which "Jeff," and his good lady imagined themselves safely enconced while the "Confederate" guards and pickets were thrown out to warn them of any danger. But notwithstanding this, 'Colonel Prichard" arrived in due time with as motley-looking an assemblage of "soldiers" as we have ever seen. Falstaff's grand army was no comparison. One or two of "Prichard's" men made an attack on "Jeff," who was attired in female apparel. "Jeff." and his "better-half" fought with desperation, until at last one of the assaulting party very unsoldier-like tripped him up, and he was placed hors du combat, 'Colonel Prichard," with his valuable prizes, then made an extended march over the city and it is needless to say that his "Veterans," fresh from the field of conquest, met with a warm reception where ever they appeared.

At intervals of two hours all the bells wer rung. The display of bunting was very profuse and fine. During the notwithstanding the intense heat of the weather, the streets were crowded with people, bent on enjoying the Fourth in their own peculiar way. The day, albeit the heat, was remarkably fine, and we have heard of nothing occurring to mar the pleasures and plays of fireworks, and bonfires were blazing in different quarters of the city. The display made by our friend, J. J. Sprenger Esq., of the Eagle Brewery, corner of Water and Walnut streets, was exceedingly fine and afforded much interest and was highly appreciated by the citizens of that portion of the city, of whom there were a large number present.

In the evening the grand display of fire works, under the superintendence of the Bell Ringers' Committee, attracted thousands of people to Centre Square. We estimate the number present in the Square at from 6 to 8,000, and all the streets leading to sex. The pyrotechnic display was decidedly the finest ever made in this city, and to much praise cannot be awarded the gentlemen having the matter in charge for the skill and taste exhibited in the selection of the different pieces. The display was made under the direction of Mr. George Kircher, a practical pyrotechnist.

THE DAY AT LINDEN WILD. The romantic country seat of Dr. Henry Carpenter, on the Old Factory Road, but really within the city limits, was celebrated by the Annual Re-union of the members of the City and County Medical Society There were also a large number of other guests present. Nothing was left undone by the proprietor to contribute to the pleas ure and comfort of the guests, and the entertainment consisted of the choicest viands and liquids, in fact just such an one as might be expected from the generous hos of Linden Wild.

AT FRANKLIN AND MARSHALL COLLEGE The day was appropriately celebrated in the Hall of the Diagnothian Society by the reading of the Declaration of Independence by Rev. Dr. Porter, after which addresses Nevin. The exercises were interspersed with the singing in fine style of the National airs by the College Choir. There was: large attendance of students and citizens The addresses of Drs. Falk and Nevins were very able and eloquent. A motion was made and adopted that they be published SEVERAL PIC-NICS. Public and private, were also held at the resorts around the city, and from all that we can learn nothing occurred to interfere with the general enjoyment which prevailed among all the participants.

THE DAY AT LITIZ Was celebrated with great celat and enthusiasm. An oration was delivered in the afternoon by Rev. George W. McLaughlin, of Reading, and the charming grounds of the Litiz Springs were brilliantly illuminated in the evening, and a grand pyrotechnic display was made. The City Cornet Band of this city furnished the music for the occasion. There was an immense concourse of strangers present, but our Litiz friends, although having their "hands full," were prepared for all "calls." The Messrs. Lichtenthaler were crowded from "pit to dome," but their guests received all due care and attention. The people of Litiz are progressive, and are always far ahead of the ever-glorious Fourth.

THE FOURTH Was also celebrated at other places in the county, but we have received no account from them, and are therefore not prepared to speak of them in proper terms. We beli ve, however, that it was appropriately celebrated everywhere.

FOUND DROWNED .-"One more unfortunate, Rashly importunate, Gone to his death."

On Sunday morning last, about six o'clock, the dead body of a man was discovered by Mr. Emanuel Rhoads, in the Conestoga, just below the dam at Ranck's Mill, a short distance east of the city. Information was immediately conveyed to Deputy Coroner Snyder, and he at once summoned a jury, and proceeded about 8 o'clock to the scene of the drowning. The body was still in the water, and the Coroner accompanied by Dr. Compton and Mr went out in a boat and brought it to the shore. Although very much distigured, it was recognized as that of Mr. Jacob Crossley, who resided in the alley in the rear of Howell's Marble Works. on North Queen street. He had been miss ing since Friday, having left his home at an early hour that morning. It was the general supposition that he had committed suicide, because when he left home he had on a hat, vest and pair of boots, and when the body was found these articles were missing. There was a deep gash on the top of his head, which was no doubt caused by striking a sharp stone at the bottom, or else when the body was forced over the dam .-The Coroner's jury returned a verdict of death by drowning. The deceased was a cooper by trade, having for a long time been employed in King's establishment or Plumb street. He was between 50 and 60 years, and leaves a wife and several children in rather destitute circumstances.

REV. DR. KERFOOT.-We insert below from the New York Tribune an interesting ecount of the inauguration of Rev. John B. Kerfoot, D. D., as President of Trinity College at Hailford, Connecticut. Dr. K. was formerly a resident of this city, and is a younger brother of the late lamented Dr. George B. Kerfoot. Until within the last vear or two he officiated as President f St. James' College, in Washington county, Md., and is one of the ablest clergymen in the Episcopal church:

HARTFORD, Conn., June 29, 1865. The 39th Annual Commencement of this nstitution is celebrated this week with the fact that the chair of the Pre having been informally occupied for a year by the Rev. John B. Kerfoot, D. D., is for by the Rev. John B. Kertoot, D. D., is for mally filled by the inauguration of tha gentleman. The inaugural service took place yesterday afternoon, at Christ Church on Main street, Bishop Williams, of Con-necticut, who is the Chancellor of the College, performing the act of installment. The remarks of the Bishop, and the reply of the President, were all that could be desired to which were shipped to Philadelphia market,

Prof. Brocklesby presented the congratulations of the Faculty, and the Hon. W. E. Curtis, U. D., performed the same office for the Alumni. The students same office for the Alumn paid their respects through Mr. C. T. Olm-sted, in a Latin address, which did nothide sted, in a Latin address, which did nothide the warm sympathies with which they seem to welcome their new superior; and the Hon, Henry Barnard, LL. Allusion was made by several of the speakers to the Bishop who recently filled the Chancellor's seat in Trinity College, and to the distinguished notes whose prome to the distinguished poetess whose name has passed into history indentified with the espect and esteem in which the new officer is held by all. The succeeding day has seen devoted to the Commencement exercises. A very large number of the Alumni were present, and the house—Allyn Hall—presented a most happy appearance. No city of Connecticut can boast a more pleas-ing public assembly-room than is in this city of Hartford—in this, as in many other spects, presenting a marked contrast to sister capitol. The thrifty people of Hartford spare no pains nor expense to give evidence of that public spirit without which so many cities live but half a life and fall into premature decay.

Of course the hall is the enterprise of one from 6 to 8,000, and all the streets leading to it were filled with a dense mass of human beings. The windows of the different buildings in the Square were filled with the fair sex. The pyrotechnic display was decidedly this day's exercises. Chancellor Williams occupied the chair of honor, supported by President Kerfoot, both in robes and wearing the collegiate cap. The students also retain the flown and cap of European usage, and in this respect afford a marked contrast to the plainer garb of other colleges in this vicinity. A STRANGE FANCY OF AN INSANE

Woman.-There was admitted, last week at the Lancaster County Hospital, an insane

female who had come to Mount Joy from some unknown parts, and who became so annoying to the citizens of that place, by her strange manners and her eccentric con duct, that complaint was lodged against her and she was taken before C. M. Martin Esq., who committed her for safe keeping to the Insane Department of the Lancaster County Hospital. She gives her name as Lavina Cochenour; says that it was formerly Stouch; has, or had, a brother by the name of Israel Stouch, and by what can e gleaned from her disconnected sentences she has lived near Berlin. Dover township York county. She also asserts that she had a brother-in-law living there by the name of Samuel Kaler-a weaver by trade. She labors under the impression that her mother is murdered, and that those about her have concealed the place of her interment. She also fears that those who are her associates will murder her. So intent is she in search of the body of her mother, that it is with some difficulty she is restrained from removing every movable object in the vard. where that class of patients are at liberty ereise. Whilst searching every place yard, in the every stone that she possibly can for the purpose of finding the body of her mother, or, as she fancies, the sected members of that body, she sings funeral direes that would do no discredit to some church choirs. She is apparently about 35 or 40 years of nge, of small stature. dark complexion, and robust health. If friends, or the proper authorities of York county, they will know where to find her. SUDDEN DEATH.-A sudden death occurred on Thursday last, at an early hour, at the Franklin House, North Queen street.— Mr. John Hiestand, a Wholesale Notion Pedlar of Philadelphia, but well-known in this city and county, came to the above hotel about 3 o'clock, and was admitted by Mr. Rea, the proprietor, who addressed several questions to him, without receiving any answers. He was given the key of om No. 2, and it is supposed must have died immediately after entering the room, for he was found lying across the bed with all his clothes on, and his memorandum book in his right hand, it is supposed for the purpose of making an entry. This book also contained two photographs, one of himself and the other of a female. Mr. their neighbors in a proper celebration of Rea thought it very strange that no replies were received to his questions from the deceased, and the supposition now is that he was dving at the time. He was discovered about 6 o'clock by one of the female servants, as she was passing the room. An inquest was held by Deputy Coroner Snyder this morning, and the jury rendered a verdict of death from apoplexy. The pockets of the deceased were searched, and among the effects were a pocket book containing some $860 in bank notes. The money was placed in his carpet bag, which was deposited at the Lancaster County National Bank. The deceased was between 55 and 60 years of age, and we believe leaves a wife and family to mourn his sudden death.

RELIGIOUS.-We had the pleasure, on Sunday last, at the First M. E. Church, North Duke street, of listening to a real gospel sermon (almost a rarity now-a-days) to young ladies by the pastor, Rev. Charles J. Thompson. The sermon was founded on the latter clause of the 42d verse, 10th chapter of St. Luke: "Mary hath chosen that good part which shall not be taken away from her." The introduction consisted of an interesting historical reference to the occasion of the words of the text. Martha, Mary's sister, was busying herself altogether about her household cares and duties, while Mary had taken her seat at Jesus' feet, and drank in deeply His wondrous words of divine wisdom. Martha complained to Jesus of Mary's inattention, but, instead of rebuking the latter, He gently reminded the former of her great neglect, closing His rebuke in the words of the text. The sermon was divided into three parts, viz: 1st, The good part chosen by Mary was the religion of Jesus Christ 2d, The choice was freely and simply Mary's own. 3d, In making this choice of the good part, she had the guarantee that it would not be taken from her. The sermon throughout was exceedingly practical and well-timed. The reverend gentleman did not confine his remarks to the young ladies, but every one in the congregation received some excellent hints and suggestions which were they heeded and carried out would make many more christians and far less hypocrites and false professors in the church and world generally. The speaker did not by any means intimate that young ladies, or old ones either, ought not to trouble themselves about the cares and duties of a household. It is highly proper they should do so; but they should not nake these a pretext for neglecting the 'good part" or religion of Jesus Christ -The discourse was attentively listened to by

FIREMEN'S VISIT,-On Tuesday last, some twenty-two members of the Union Fire Co., under their president, Capt. H. E. Slaymaker, started on an excursion to deliver their engine and hose apparatus t the town council of Hamburg, some sixteen miles above Reading, on the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad. They went by the Reading and Columbia road to Reading, where an hour was spent very pleasantly in viewing the town. At Ham ourg they were made the guests of the Union Fire company of that place, and most handsomely entertained. On the norning of the Fourth, the members gave an exhibition of their engine's capacity throwing one, two and three streams alternately. A procession was then formed and, headed by the town council and the Union boys of this city, the apparatus was dragged along the principal streets of the town and at last taken to a splendid grove, where the ladies had made ample preparations for the reception of the firemen. A fine repast was prepared to which ample justice progressed finely. The young folks had managed to scrape up acquaintance, and made preparations for spending a jovial day. But unfortunately some of the citizens of the town, who had opposed the purchase of the engine, now interposed and urged so many objections and intimidated their firemen so much as to make some regret their bargain. The town council attempted then to evade their agreement, but the members of the Union promptly refused to accede. One staid old Hamberger, attired in his Fourth of July dress and sporting a mounted cane, desired to be heard on this scores of years without a "suction," and ne didn't want to have an engine now. He had been to Reading once, and saw an engine there that made and "srowed" its own vater, all by itself! He scouted at the mere idea of that engine having drawn water from plug. And because this engine didn't make 'its own water, he didn't want it Another—the custodian of Hamburg morals objected, because they hadn't enough water for the engine and it burst the hose. Still nother said it threw too much water altorether! And so on until the assembled visdom of Hamburg got into a snarl. On one side was the Union, and on the other the old fogies; but at last the Union boys won. as they generally do. The money was paid and that ended the affair. The gay and estive boys of the Union then "went in" with the beauty and fashion of Hamburg Promenading over grassy knolls under the ool shade of giant oaks, or participating in the exciting game of "Copenhagen," where rosy cheeks and pouting lips made up the bill of fare. At four o'clock the boys left for home, arriving at Litiz at S o'clock, where they participated in the celebration, pitality at his grand hotel, which was of that day. crowded to its utmost capacity. At a late hour last night a writ of habeas rpus was sworn out before Judge Wylie. of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, in the case of Mrs. Surratt, by her attorneys, as stated in the Herald of this morning; but Marshal Gooding decided that it could only be served during legal office heurs, and postponed it till nine this morning. The writ was promptly served. The writ was served upon Major General Hancock by United States Marshal Gooding when he proceeded at once to consult Attorney General and the President. The latter promptly advised General Hancock to disregard the writ and proceed at once with the execution of Mrs. Surratt.

The writ was returnable at ten o'clock but nearly two hours after that time Gen. Hancock entered the court, accompaned by Attorney General Speed, who apologized for the apparent delay in making a return on the part of the General, as it was unavoidable. He then proceeded to read the return, in which General Hancock said the body of Mrs. Surratt was in his possession, for the purpose expressed, &c., and which order is as follows:

EXECUTIVE OFFICE, July 7, 1865. or-General W. S. Hancock, commandi Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, do hereby declare that the writ of habeas corpus has been heretofore suspended in such cases as this and I do bereby specially suspend this writ, and direct that you proceed to execute the order heretofore given upon the judgment of the Military Commission. And you will give this order in return to this writ.

ANDREW JOHNSON, President.

The court remarked that no further step would be taken in the matter. THE GUARD. The number of troops on guard was estimated at about three thousand, and was made up of four regiments of infantry from Hancock's corps, who were posted upon the walls immediately overlooking the prison yard, where the scaffold had been erected, upon the grounds leading to the doors and gates of the Arsenal building and again about the avenue of approach to the main gate at the foot of Four-and-a-half street. THE LAST NIGHT OF THE CRIMINALS.

Of course, much of the time previous to the hour of execution was devoted to in quiry and discussion of the manner in which the condemned had passed the night To the officers of General Hartrauft's staff, who had been constantly on guard during the night and throughout the morning, the public is indebted for the details atter upon the manner in which the prisoners were severally affected by the knowledge of their impending doom, and how the awaited its unerring approach. With all it was a wretched night, from which rereshing sleep was debarred, and the fear ful boding of the frightful events of the morrow refused to be gone. The friends relatives and spiritual advisers of the prisoners were with them until nearly elever o'clock last night and ministered to the comforting of their mental distress by all the means in their power. Miss Anna Sur ratt remained with her mother nearly the entire night.

Payne was the only one of the miserable party who is said to have rested at all soundly or unbrokenly, and this unexcitable and stalwart man was not vouchsafed rest and unconsciousness until nearly dawn. Unlike Mary E. Surratt, are hereby approved, and | the rest, he consumed a hearty breakfast and in no way gave evidence of the failure of that matchless nerve and resignation which he has exhibited from the hour of cating with his friends and pastor he displayed genuine contrition, and believed he was justly expiating his monstrous of-

Mrs. Surratt early in the evening became completely unnerved and somewhat flighty in thought and expression. She seemed not only overwhelmed with mental anguish, but utterly prostrated physically with the near approach of the terrible ordeal which was meted to her. The intellectual resources and will that sustained this dark and sinister woman throughout the session of the court of inquisition completely forsook her when hope vanished and the gibbet from which she was to swing was already reared scarce fifty paces from the portals of her cells. her cells. Harold, like Payne, succeeded in gaining several hours of sleep towards morning, and was apparently much comforted throughout the night by the presence of his sisters, six in number, who consoled him with reminders of the pardon that awaits repentant and contrice hearts. The Scrip-tervals. Atzerott, completely beside himself with lismay and fear, suffered indescrible agony throughout the weary watches of the night, aud could take no nourishment whatever this morning. Weak and shrinking with waited him, he evinced the spirit of the wretched complicity that has brought him to the gallows. Like his associate in crime. Minister of the Gospel, and endeavored as therefrom the comfort they manifestly derived from such ministration.

and were admitted to the cell of the condemned. At this time came Miss Anna Surratt, accompanied by a gentleman, and was immediately shown to the cell of her mother. As she entered and followed her conductor through the hall into the corridor beyond, her bearing was quite firm, and her manner and step almost confident in the expression, which gave rise to an opinion, quite generally concurred in, that the interview she had with General Hancock this morning, between eight and nine o'clock and subsequently attempted to bring about with the President, had finally been crowned with success and her petitions for clemency and a respite for her mother granted. Next to Miss Surratt came the sister of Harold, followed by a sister of Atze rott, all of whom gained immediate access to the prisoners, Scarcely half an hour had elapsed before they all issued, nearly swooning with anguish, from the inner door, and vere conducted to apartments upon the second floor, where restoratives were administered. All of these heart-broken women were attired in deep black, with heavy veils of serge screening their faces from the multitude; but their sobs and tottering steps excited the sympathies of all, and many eyes were bedimmed as the nournful cortege passed beyond sight or hearing.

THE PROCESSION TO THE GALLOWS.

At exactly one o'clock the heavy door opening from the northwestern hall of the prison building into the court yard opened, and Mary E. Surratt, leaning upon two gentlemen, issued forth, followed by Fathers Wiget and Walter, the latter of whom carried a small cross with an effigy of the Sa viour thereon, and also a book of praver. She looked very pale; her limbs seemed to fail her, and it required no small exertion on the part of the gentlemen alluded to to lead her as far as the scaffoid steps. Step by step she ascended, her hands manacled behind her, every eye united on her now shrunker cheeks. Her face betrayed more of horror than of physical fear; her upper lip, as sometimes seen in the newly dead curled upwards from the now incomplete teeth, which added greatly to the ghastliness of her expression. She sat on a chair placed at the northwestern corner of the scaffold. waiting upon her leaned forward, applying the crucifix to her ashen lip, and pouring into her ear the words of comfort expecte to soothe to resignation the rebellious human heart that sets itself against the decree of mortality upon the scaffold, the field or the

ing the long trial. So instinctive is the admi ration which men feel for any man who in th ast hour meets unmoved the king of terrors that this youth with the bull neck and close shaven crown, short face and quiet blue eye drew more sympathy than the fears of a housand Atzerotts could ever evoke. Or ne went to the steps, side by side with the minister of his choice, Mr. Gillett. Checked in his gait, but seemingly unembarrassed he reached the platform and sat down nea to Mrs. Surratt. and there he remained gazing, as he used to do in the court room through the bars at the white fleecy cloud that shifted before the intense rays of a sun that gilded with all the pomp of a summer noon one of the most solemn scenes ever exhibited in this land, so free hitherto from such crimes. Payne (we prefer the more generally known name ooked neither to the right nor to the left, but straight forward and upwards. It wa evident that to him the crowd were nothing his own thoughts everything. His face might be likened to that of a builder o astles in the air. Fear there was none, no more than on the face of a sleeping infant raggadocio, or the morbid vanity that so ften supplies courage, was not to be read in the quiet, dreaming eye, where the old wildness alone had fled, and as the sun faced him as truly as he faced it, the photographer whose instrument stood in a win-Chicago and Rock Island... Michigan Southern dow of the western wall will hand down Payne to posterity with a face on which no man could read either remorse for past crime or the fear of present punishm The memory of his horrid crime, which had appalled a nation, was lost in contemplating his bearing, which at the very foot of the scaffold a soldier who had braved death from Chattanooga to Savannah, styled right regal. Last, and in every way least, came Harold, with bloodless, sallow cheeks. still sufficiently self-contained to walk or hobble as well as his shackles would per mit, and, attended by Dr. Olds, he, too, mounted the stairs and sat between the The preachers having ended, an order in quaking Atzerott and the quiet Payne. THE PREPARATIONS FOR THE EXECUTION. audible from below was given, and Payne slowly walked forward to the rope allotted to him; then stepped forth Mrs. Surratt, aided by her reverend advisers, who had read to her a portion of the Catholic ritual prepared for such occasions. Then, at the other end of the platform, rose Atzerott, nivering in every nerve, his knees knock ing together, his arms trembling even in heir manacles; and last again came forth Harold, less demonstative of terror, but only less pale than Mrs. Surratt, over whose face there began to steal an expression of resignation. Then the arms of all four were tied above the elbows with strips of white muslin.

Men have issued from imprisonment of years with whitened locks and from shipwreck with shattered reason; but Atzerott apparently suffered more in those sixteen inutes that elapsed from his entering the ard to the time of his being led forward to the rope than was ever endured in the Bas-tile or in St. Marks. His eyes stood out, his shoulders drooped, and no aspen ever trembled as he did from toe to head. It was pitiful to look at him, and withal sickening. Payne's eyes still followed the thinning white cloud. Harold was expressionless, while Mrs. Surratt seeming less and less terrified, submitted to the tying with no appearance of conscience. Then other strips of muslin were brought forth to tie the leg between ancle and knee.

THE FATAL NOOSE.
Then over the head of each was passed the fatal noose. Payne bent gracefully to it, as if he were assuming a crown, and when it circled his powerful throat he drew himself up, and turning his head slightly, addressed held the rope. To all present it was the execution of a murderer; to the murderer it evidently was the coronation of martyrdom, and the noose an aureola of glory .-None resisted the rope.

THE CAP OF DOOM. Then over the face and head of each was placed a cap of white muslin shaped some what like a jockey's skull cap, but large enough to enclose face and head, and long enough to reach below the chin, and nov the pent up fear of Atzerott breaks forth in words and he exclaimed: "Gentlemen, beware!" And as Harold's cap was pulled on last of all, Atzerott again burst forth with-"Good-bye, gentlemen!" At half-past one o'clock, as the minister.

oved back, Atzerott again spoke:-"May we all meet in another world." THE TRAP SPRUNG. A moment after the officials drew back, and down fell the trap, and swaying to and fro swung the four bodies. HOW THEY DIED There was no struggle on the part of Mrs. Surratt. She hangs and swings as if with-within the dark folds of her puffed dress no life had ever been. A bag of old clothes it might be, but for that flesh we see het weer the rope and the cap. Atzerott still shakes horror at the thought of the doom that as if the fear of death were to continue be yond it, and outlive consciousness itself. craven that possessed him and led to the Harold struggles-his chest heaves. Payne slowly draws himself up till he assume for a second the shape of a man sitting in a he was comforted with the presence of a rather low chair, his thighs forming a right angle with his body, and the former formwell as his fears would permit to draw ing a similar angle with the portion of his legs from the knee downwards. He straightens again, but the broad chest heaves and swells, and there is a sort of writhing of the body on the hips. It is twenty-six minutes About a quarter of twelve the friends and fifteen seconds after one. Six minutes relatives of the prisoners began to arrive, and a half have they swung there, and again a spasmodic curving of the body and bending of the lower parts proves Payne still alive, but it is the last. If death must, for the safety of society, be inflicted on the assassin, for the sake of civilization, let some more summary means of inflicting it be devised.

GOLD BEARING BONDS. These Bonds are now worth a handsome remium and are exempt, as are all the Govnment Bonds, from State, County, and Muniipal taxation, which adds from one to three per ent. per annum to their value, according to the rate levied upon other property. The interest is payable semi-annually by coupons attached o each note, which may be cut off and sold to any bank or banker, The interest at 7.30 per cent., amounts to One cent per day on a $50 note. Ten 500 Notes of all the denominations named will e promptly furnished upon receipt of subcriptions The Notes of this Third Series are precisely similar in form and privileges to the Seven-Thirties already sold, except that the Government reserves to itself the option of paying nterest in gold coin at 6 per cent., instead o 3-10ths in currency. Subscribers will deduct the interest in currency up to July 15th, at the time when they subscribe.

The delivery of the notes of this third series f the Seven-Thirties will commence on the lst of June, and will be made promptly and coninuously after that date. The slight change made in the conditions of this THIRD SERIES affects only the matter of interest. The payment in gold, if made, vill be equivalent to the currency interest of he higher rate, The return to specie payments, in the events of which only will the option to pay interest in Gold be availed of, would so reduce and equalize prices that purchases made with six per cent, in gold would be fully equal to those made with seven and three-tenths per cent in currency. This is THE ONLY LOAN IN MARKET now offered by the Government, and its superior advantages make it the GREAT POPULAR LOAN OF THE PEOPLE. Less than $230,000,000 of the Loan authorized y Congress are now on the market. This amount, at the rate which it is being absorbed, will all be subscribed for within sixty days, when the notes will undoubtedly command a premium, as has uniformly been the case on closing the subscription to other Loans.

In order that citizens of every town and secion of the country may be afforded facilities for taking the loan, the National Banks, State Banks, and Private Bankers throughout the country have generally agreed to receive subcriptions at par. Subscribers will select their own agents, in whom they have confidence, and who only are to be responsible for the delivery of the notes for which they receive orders. BLAST FURNACE AND FORGE FOR SALE.—The Blast Furnace and Forge, known as situated in Hardy county, Virginia, are offered at private sale.

"THE CAPON IRON WORKS,"

The furnace is a cold blast charcoal furnace, with water power and about five thousand acres of Timber Land.

The forge has three finery and one chafery fires, and one run out fire; is slinated on Big Capon River, an excellent water power; would be plenty strong enough for a Rolling Mill.

The ore is a brown hemetite; the principal ore bank is about two miles from the furnace; the vein averages at least five feet thick, posed to be inexhaustible; the quality of the iron is not surpassed by any in the State, with a great home demand for bar iron; for boiler plate the iron is first quality.

There is a Foundry connected with the Furnace; and a great demand for Cooking, Wood and Franklin Stoves, Hollow Ware and other castings to supply all that section of country. There is also a SAW MILL on the premises. This is one of the few Iron Works that escaped destruction in the South during the rebellion. For facilities for making the cheapest and best quality of charcoal iron these works cannot be surpassed by any in the country. They will be sold at a bargain.—These works are situated about thirty miles southwest from Winchester, near Wardensville, on the Moorfield pike.

Persons wishing to view the property can call on George F. Hupp, (the former owner,) living at Strasburg, Shenandoah country, or on John C. Gienn, residing at the furnace,
