Among the latter are the artists and publishers, who have rare and novel works to show to Her Majesty, or her likeness to take: persons intrusted with presents. for the aviary, foreigners with special introductions from their own sovereigns, tradesmen with articles which the Gueen is desirous of purchasing and so forth. After these folks have been dis-missed, the loyal family take their lunch, at which the Queen eats and drinks heartily. The horses and car-riages are then brought to the door, and Her Majesty either rides or drives out the nobility, the Duchess of Inverness, or even—in the country—poor but worthy people who are confined by sickness. Her Majesty's kindness to sickness. Her Majesty's kindness to the sufferings of her own sex is pro-verbial. It is on record that when Mrs. Warner, a tragic actress of excellent character, was ill of a disease which ultimately carried her to the grave, the Queen sent a carriage every day that she might have the advantage of pure air. On her return home the Queen spends an hour in her private boudoir of the advantage for the section of the sect or library, and then dresses for dinner. A dimer at the palace has always been a very stately, dreary, tedious af-air. The table service is, of course, sufair.

perb gold plate, Sevres, porcelain ala-baster vases, flowers, brilliant chande-liers, servants in scarlet coats and powdered heads, a military band performing in an ante-room, and many ladies and gentlemen at table in full dress costume. A profound silence reigns throughout the meal, only broken by the voice of the Queen, addressing herself to some one or other of the guests. who are expected to limit themselves to a direct reply. General conversation is carried on in whispers only. A great variety of wines are drank at the royal dates of a mes are obtained at the loyal table, the Queen confining herself to German (Rigne) wines. After dinker, the party adjourns to the drawing-rooms, and there the Queen casts aside all ceremony, and gives her-self up to innocent pleasures and the promotion of the enjoyment of her guests and family. If the party be not large, a chamber concert or a dance is

The exquisite beauty of the youthful ladies who are to be presented, are exhibited to the greatest advantage, when the weather admits, to the dresses being vorn low; the dowagers blaze with the family diamonds; the major part of the noblemen and gentlemen rejoice in mil-itary or naval attire; the embassadors are grand in their gold lace coats, swords and bags; the guards are in their new-est uniform; the carriages are of every hue, the panels emblazoned with rich coats of arms, and the hammer cloth composed of embroidered velvet or cost-ly woolen fabrics; the servants and coachmen all wear velveteen, silk plush stockings, powdered wigs, and vast bo-quets; the proud horses caparisoned with silver harness, snort and paw the ground, challenging the part of the ad-miration bestowed by the thousands who crowd the street near the palace, upon the vehicles and their handsome occupants. On the drawing-room day, the Queen. On the drawing-room day, the Queen, of surrounded by the other members of the family, and the great officers of State, takes up her position, and the company passes before her. The ladies courtesy to the earth, the gentlemen fall on one knee and kiss the Queen's hand—all pastics backing out through a doer on parties backing out through a door op-posite to that by which they entered.

Gen. Wade Hampton.

It is the boast of this dashing ex-Con-federate cavalry officer, we understand, from one who knows, that upon his Mississippi plantation, every able-bodied negro who was once his slave is now his hired man. He pays the men $10 a month and the women $8, fur-nishing the houses, not board, for each. He expects to raise 300 bales of cottor where before the war he raised from 1,300 to 1,500 bales. The small crop expected, we presume, grows out of the fact that it is only since the close of the war that he has been able to resume work upon his plantation. Gen. Hampton declares his intention to give free negro labora fair trial, and that he shall hope the best results from the wages system until it fails. He has already dissuaded many of his countrymen from dissuaded many of his countrymen from the folly of emigration. His recent let-ter shows that upon this subject he had in his mind the following example told by a wise man of Italy. The applica-tion will have a subject of the subj Letters of Administration on the estate o heminith A. "The town of Salerno was once in-fested with lawless gangs from the neighboring mountains. So power-less were the peaceful inhabitants to grapple with the evil, that many of them decided on leaving their birth-place and seeking shelter in Naples.— The result was that those who remained, large, a chamber concert or a dance is improvised, the Queen herself taking a prominent part in the singing. A drawing-room at St. James's Palace is a grand affair. It is then that the aristocracy makes it grandest display. The exquisite beauty of the youthful ladies who are to be presented, are exof surrendering all hope of making the best of the misfortune—instead of yield-ing to any impulse of self exile—they remained at home, to do all they could for the maintenance of order and the re-covery and preservation of their personal rights and possessions. And the protected them and prospered; while Salerno pincd and almost perished." ----

SPEER'S

For the Communion Table, for Family Use, and for Medical Purposes. This is an article of Wine from the Pure Port Grape Juice, fermented, without the addition of spirits of any liquors whatever. Has a full body, rich flavor, and slightly stimulating.-None is disposed of until four years old. The beneficial effect derived from it use is astonishing thousands, and cannot be realized from other wine, nor from the thousands of Patent Bitters now erowding the market. All who try it expressibler surprise that so delicious a Wine is produced in this country, and that it is so far different from what they had expected. Some who knew nothing further of the Wine then seeing it advertised, thought at first it was a humbug, not knowing it was pure grape Juice, have found out their mistake, and now lay their lives to the use of this Wine. Excellent for Females and Weakly Persons and the Consumptive. A great Remedy for Kindeys, Affections, Rheumatism, and Bladder Difficuities. Try it once, and you will not be deceived. 450 Hesure the signature of ALFRED SPEER is over the cork of each Bottle.
