He was mistaken and has suffered. He was one of "the sons of the morning," and, in addition to all he has endured, he must hear about with him always the bitter conscious, reas of deteat. A great mind like yours can appreciate that trial. Now, in the even-ning, of life—in, that is past, in the night of life—it must be dark night with him to the end, there is but one single solace left him—the loving presence of his wife and children. His httlechildren cry out in their destitution upon their father for bread. Ot hear their young voices and be pitiful! In this, also, you will show wisdom and moderation and courage—to use a good American word, "pluek." Throw off the trammels of a narrow-minded party and act at once, without Cabinet consultations, and irrespective of our gentle and genial Judge Advocate. Put the vexed question, which I know has cost you many an anxi-ous and perplexed hour, of "What shall I do with Mr. Davis" forever at rest. It is a difficult thing to bring him rightly to trial; more difficult still to dispose of hun after-wards. "Behold, I show you a more ex-cellent way." Give us the permission to go now to his prison, bearers of your full pardon, and let him go quietly home. The "Southern Confederacy" is gone, the wave has closed over it. It was a rich argosy, but its treasures are buried. With your help, and by patience and skill, its precious things may again see the light, and grace and adorn our common country.
