There was a little girl named Sarah Ann.

There was a little girl named Sarah Ann, who was a poor girl when she commenced business, and had nothing except what she could cabbage from the women for whom she worked...

There was an honest German lad named Heinrich.

There was an honest German lad named Heinrich, who came to this country for five dollars a month and found himself. Think of the lowly situation of the lad, especially if he had tumbled into a beer-vat!

There was a little boy named Thomas.

There was a little boy named Thomas, who had a brother Jeremiah, and the delightful beverage, called Tom and Jerry, was named after them by their grateful fellow-citizens...

There was a little boy named Samuel.

There was a little boy named Samuel, who had been told that virtue was its own reward. He supported himself and his aged mother by picking up little things that other people seemed to have no use for...

There was a little boy named Sam.

There was a little boy named Sam, who was a very good boy. He was a very good boy, and he was a very good boy...

Daniel Bryan's Oath.

Daniel Bryan had been a lawyer of eminence, but had fallen, through intoxication, to beggary and a dying condition. Bryan had married in his bedchamber the sister of Moses Felton...

Wonderful Log Rolling at the West.

An Englishman who had lately traveled to the Mississippi river told some rather tough stories about the London thieves. A Cincinnati chap, named Chase, heard these narratives with a silent but expressive frown...

An Awkward Mistake.

A farmer who had bought a calf from a butcher, desired him to drive it to his farm and place it in his stable, which he accordingly did. Now it happened that very day that a man with a grudge against the farmer, was passing by...

Origin of the English Party Names.

Those who took the King's side were Anti-Birmingham, and Birmingham was a very important town in the West of England. At this time were first heard two nicknames which, though originally given in insult, were soon assumed with pride...

Poor but Proud.

A highwayman undertook to rob Mr. Jones. He met Jones in a wood over in Jersey. He asked Jones for his pocket-money, and he refused to give it...

How Jones Popped the Question.

"Too bashful to 'pop the question' in the usual way, Major Jones persuaded his sweet heart to put up a stocking, which will hold a couple of pounds, and he then asked her to give him the stocking to hold the question...

Women and Men.

Women may talk of their inherent rights as much as they please, but they can't overcome nature. Men and women were made to be twined, and woman is a suitable mate for man...

One of Uncle Sam's free nigger agents.

One of Uncle Sam's free nigger agents, in Virginia, the other day, was about a thousand of them in the act of voting. He told them they should be allowed to elect a Commissioner of their own choice to see after their affairs...

Miscellaneous.

Truth in the Night Quarter.

Two Oratorical Specimens.

Speaking extemporaneously is rather difficult, and it is a young lawyer in New Hampshire, who has never yet had a case in court was invited to deliver an oration on the occasion of the dedication of a new bridge. It was a fine opportunity of establishing his reputation, and he prepared a paper for the occasion...

Instincts of Immortality.

The Indian buried the hunting implements of his friend, and he felt it necessary to repeat that this bridge, fellow-citizens, only five-and-forty years ago, was not what you see now. It was a bridge of the howling wilderness. Again he paused. "Cries of 'Good, go on, go on,'" were now and then heard...
