FAST YOUNG MEN .- The times have sadly changed within the last twenty years.-This is evident, not only as regards the political and commercial relations, but also in respect to man. The precocious youth, with the dextrous and inconceivable power of the prestidigitator, merges from the chrysahis of youth and government of the nursery into the full-fledged and whiskered man, divesting himself of the innocence and gen tleness that throw their controlling influence around him, and abrogating the surveillance and parental solicitude of an anxious father and tender mother, he assumes the nobility of manhood, arrogates the vices and follies of his superiors, and, robed with the importance that loosely hangs around the inflated fop or loquacious rowdy, struts heroically on the stage of life as though his fellows were bound to do homage to his assumed importance. We have no more youths and satcheled school-boys. The time for them has gone by, and the seven stages in the life of man, defined by that inimitable writer and poet, Shakspeare, have been reduced to six; the second can no more be found in the history of the present age-it is expunged from the record of life. We are all men now, endowed with wisdom and knowledge far superior to that which our forefathers possessed. Our habits and practices in life are more congenial to our tastes, and would cause the blush of shame to mantle the cheeks of our sires at their ig norance and tardiness in notadopting them in their younger days.

We see these gay and festive young men wending their oscillating way homeward, in the small hours of the night, from the scenes of revelry and debauch-the eye bleared with the excesses of licentiousness the brain fired by the expiring fumes of the poisoned cup, and the mind tortured with the consciousness of wrong. Their slow and uncertain gait, as they drag their erring feet along, speaks plainly of the downward road to ruin and shame; the empty pocket and plethoric head are signs of revelry and sin that cannot be mistaken; and when at last they reach the parental roof, and, like the midnight assassin, steal their way beneath its genial shelter, and lay their aching heads upon the welcome pillow, made so by a mother's anxious care and love. then come crowding upon the heated brain the reminiscences of the festive board, the lascivious smile of the deceitful harlot, and the thorns and adders that cling and clus ter around her amorous bed.

The social board, with its deadly drugs quaffed until the heart sickens and the brain seethes and boils like a lake of liquid fire, presents allurements which cannot be re sisted, while the blandishments of the smiling cyprians, whose ugliness and deformity lie hid beneath a mask of paint and cotton lures them on to that vortex which ends and engulphs them in inevitable ruin and premature death. Deaf to the soft reproof of parental love, blind to the dreadful examples which surround them and insensible to the horrors that await them, they rush madly to the grave; clothed with the unclean drapery of sin and folly, polluted with the extravagance of youthful indiscre tion, they descend headlong to that brink of destruction from which there is no redemption. Can such things be and we sit idly by, gazing with listless and careless mier upon the rapid strides they are making to that fearful and horrid end?

Let the warning word with trumpet tongue be heralded along, and the cry of ruin and death be sounded far and near, until the dreamer awakes from his stupor and lethargy, and sees himself as others see him. We owe it to the rising generation; we owe it as a duty; our forefathers call upon us from the shades of death to cry aloud and spare not; society demands it; Christianity, with aching heart and weeping eyes, pleads to us to act in its behalf; our own, and the safety of our children require it, and woe be to us if we use not every effort to arrest the growing evil, and endeavor, as far as within our power lies, to check the evil and direct in the path of rectitude and sobriety the deviating footsteps of the rising generation.

AN INTERESTING RELIC.—Our esteemed friend Col. Joel L. Lightner, of East Lampeter township, exhibited to us this morning, an interesting relic in the shape of Powder Horn, made about one hundred years ago for his great-great-grandfather, Joel Ferree, by an ingenious Frenchman. It completely throws in the shade any similar horn of the present day. With a common pen knife this ingenious mechanic carved Mr. Ferree's name, a number of mottoes and also representations on it. One is a view of Philadelphia, with the different wharves on the Delaware at that time; an other is the coat of arms of Pennsylvania and still another is a representation of Mr Ferree, who was a famous hunter, just in the act of "bagging" some game, which his faithful dog has eagerly scented. There are also several other scenes. It is a beautiful piece of mechanism, and of course is highly prized by the Colonel, who is likewise the fortunate possessor of a number of other valuable relics.

The Colonel also exhibited to our astonshed gaze a Turnip which weighs 10 pounds, grown in his garden. If any person car beat this, we should like to hear of it. Col is one of that class of men who never do things by halves. Whatever his hand finds to do, he does with all his might.

EX-PRESIDENT BUCHANAN IN YORK. The York Press of yesterday has the following notice of a visit of ex-President Buchanan to that borough:

Ex-President Buchanan was in town for veral days. He returned to Wheatland several days. He returned to Wheatland on Monday. He was the guest of James F. Shunk, Esq., while here. He is looking remarkably well. A number of his friends called to see him during his short sojourn in our town. It gave them much pleasure to find this venerable public officer, not only in health of body, but, with the vigor of his mind unimpaired, and the exuberance and glow of his spirits undiminished and undamped. It was a matter of regret and undamped. It was a matter of regret to his wide circle of friends that his stay in

York was unavoidably so limited as it wa THE WORKING MEN.—The Trenton (N. J.) True American "hits the nail on the head," in the following article, in reference to the interests of the working men. We advise all such, and we are proud to say we have a large number of them among our readers, to read and ponder the article well The working men seem to have aroused to the importance of looking after their own interests. The eight hour movement is growing formidable, and will no doubt be pressed with considerable effort on the next legislature of this State. It is a very certain thing that working men and mechanics do legislature of this State. It is a very certain thing that working men and mechanics do not have sufficient time to improve either mind or body. A steady workman who has a large family has but very few hours for recreation. He scarcely gets time to read the news of the day. Work and sleep seems to be the destiny of all, "Eat, drink and be merry," hardly will apply to the working man. He may with these exorbitant prices, find enough to eat, but he will find that he has nothing to spend for drink, and if he had it would be folly to do so; but as to being excessively merry, while speculators and excessively merry, while speculators and shoddyites hold in their hands the bread shoddyites hold in their hands the bread, meat and clothing of the country, it is hardly "in the wood." At least we see very little merriment among this class of our people. Two hours a day knocked off the hours of labor will add very materially to their comforts and enjoyments, and give those who have the disposition to do so, an opportunity to see and read what is going on in the world. We should like the mechanics and working men of Trenton, just at this time, to keep themselves posted in the proceedings of Congress. They will very soon learn who are the men that make the mischief, and keep the country in a constant feyer of excitement,

INTERESTING DECISION.—An interesting lecision was made by Judge Allison in the Court of Common Pleas of Philadelphia on Saturday. It was in reference to the right of the Lancaster Turnpike Company to collect toll of an undertaker traveling to and fro in the discharge of his duty as such over their road. The Judge decided that the Company had no right to collect toll. We find the following report of the decision in the Philadelphia Sunday Mercury:

In the Court of Common Pleas yesterday Judge Allison delivered a very interesting decision in the case of the Lancaster Turn pike vs. Simon Gartland. The latter, whi is a well known undertaker, resisted the demands of this turnpike monopoly in th collection of tolls going to and returning from funerals, and claimed the freedom of the Highway for this purpose under an act of the Legislature passed April 1, 1860, wherein the above facts are distinctly set

Judge Allison, on behalf of the Court, said the defendant passed over the road of plain-tiff and through the toll-gate in a carriage, in attendance on a funeral, and refused to pay toll: for so doing this suit was brough to recover the penalty under the act of 1798. This offence, if an offence it be, is clearly ot one of the acts or causes for which a pen not one of the acts of causes for which a pen-alty may be recovered. That act contem-plated the practising of some fraudulent device for the purpose of evading or lessen-ing the payment of the legal charge, in the shape of tolls, which the company are au-thorized to collect from persons who travel

In this case there was no pretense of In this case there was no pretense of fraud; the demand by the defendant that he should be exempted from payment of tolls was made under a claim of right; and his right was nothing less than a license from the State itself expressed in a public act of the Legislature, which in the clearest terms denied the authority of the plaintiff to collect the tolls demanded from the defendant. In this there was the practice of no dant. In this there was the practice of raudulent device.

audulent device. We were requested to express an opinion We were requested to express an opinion as to the power of the Legislature to take away from the plaintiff, or to abridge, in the manner attempted by the act of 1880, a valuable corporate franchise without the consent of the corporation; to do this would be to travel away from the case before us, and prejudge a question which is not presented by the case stated.

Judgment must be entered for the defendant

MUNIFICENT GIFT TO A FORMER LAN-ASTER MINISTER.-The following, which we clip from the Trenton (N. J.,) True American of Saturday, will be read with much interest by the friends of Rev. E. W. Appleton, some years since rector of St. John's (Free) Episcopal Church, this city, and especially by his former parishoners It will be cause of regret to his friends that his health is seriously impaired, and that he compelled to leave for a more genial climate on account of the same. The sympathies of all his old parishoners and friends will go with him:

A Munificent Gift.—The Rector of St Michael's Church of this city (Rev. E. W Appleton) was agreeably surprised or Thanksgiving day, by the presentation of a purse, containing one thousand dollars, by his congregation. After the services for the day had been concluded and the Rector had day had been concluded and the Rector had retired to the vestry room, a member of the congregation asked that all would remain seated for a few moments, as the present for the Rector (which had been quietly collected from the congregation during the few days previous) would now be presented. He then stepped into the vestry room and informed Mr. Appleton that the congregation were awaiting his presence. As he (Mr. A.) re-appeared in the chancel, F. R. Wilkinson, Esq., on behalf of the congregation, stepped forward and presented him with the purse and the following address:

announcement of your early departure to tender it as a parting gift.

"As a congregation we feel that we have been greatly blessed during the three years of your ministration among us. The present flourishing condition of our church, and the rich harvest of souls which has blessed-your ministry, offering the best attestation of your faithful and efficient service. It is with sincere regret that we part with you as our Rector. Your kindness to our families in the hour of affliction and death, and your consistent course as a fearless expounder of God's Word, have endeared you to our hearts. You have the sympathies of our people in your present affliction, and our prayers for the speedy restoration of your health, and your eternal welfare, will ever accompany you."

This address bore the name of nearly every member of the congregation, embracing all who have contributed to the purse.

On receiving the address and gift, Mr. Appleton was so surprised and affected that for awhile he could scarcely find words to On receiving the address and gift, Mr. Appleton was so surprissed and affected that for awhile he could scarcely find words to answer; and many an eye dimmed with tears throughout the congregation, told plainer than words, how deep was the love and sympathy they bore their pastor, and how great the regret in having to lose him.

Mr. Appleton's reply was touchingly appropriate and beautiful, asynopsis of which even we cannot venture to give. An examination of his lungs by skillful physicians has revealed the fact that they are diseased,

Correspondence of the Chicago Tribune. WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 24.-A entleman of considerable prominence and whose opinions and statements can be relied upon, writes, or reports to one of our departments in reference to the recent operations in the Northwest against the Indians, as follows:

"Gen. Sully, with 1,063 officers and men and 1,862 horses and mules, during a campaign of nearly seven months, having marched more than 1,600 miles, did not succeed in killing a single Indian, except, perhaps, one Indian killed after the expedition returned to Fort An express rider claims that he killed one—so that matter is in disput the Indian, at any rate, was admitted to be friendly and foolish. Gen. Sully is an excellent officer. It was not his fault; he could not find the Indians; he could not overtake them; they were too cunning, too fleet for him. His loss, of course, was not heavy. He did, how-ever, kill one hundred horses, to prevent them from falling into the hands of the Indians. "I have been informed by a general omeer of the United States army, who has had a large experience in Indian affairs, who says it costs nearly $2,000,000 a year to support a regiment in the Indian country—$2,000,000 to kill one Indian dian I met an officer at Sioux City who had just returned from the Plains, having been with Col. Cole the whole summer He informed me that Cole and Connor's ommands together had not killed twen ty Indians, and had taken three squaws prisoners; at the same time had lost more than that number of men selves, besides more than 1,200 horses and mules that were taken by Indians, or killed to prevent them from falling into the hands of the enemy. I am informed that between 6,000 and 7,000 men have been employed on the Plains the past season to fight the Indians, say six regiments, $2,000,000 each. $12,000.

5000 to kill perhaps 25 Indians—half a million each. Rather expensive. "The people of Minnesotasent South million each and got a large number of bloodhounds to hunt the Indians. dians shot the dogs and then cooked and ate them—a great luxury!

"The Minnesota Legislature (shame on them) passed an act paying a bounty for the Indian scalps. It I am not mis-taken, an officer, who was connected with an expedition in Minnesota against the Indians, informed me that he knew of six scalps being taken from one Indian, with a tuft of hair and a piece of skin about the size of a dollar that they brought in as the result of that campaign, one hundred and twenty scalps, which at one Indian killed to very six scalps, would show the killing f twenty Indians all told!" The writer then proceeds to narrate incidents connected with the trip up the river to Fort Sully, how they went fully armed and equipped, apprehensive yet prepared for an Indian attack; that they met the Indians in council and then returned comparatively unarmed: they met Indians on the route, all of falo, and savs: falo, and says:

"On the way from Sully to Sioux City, they passed more than 2,500 Indians, and felt no more danger of being molested than they would have felt in Pennsylvania Avenue, Washington, D. C. No disrespectful word or questions did we receive in the whole route of 300 niles.''

An expedition that it is estimated cos the country $20,090,000, what it has cost the people of the Western territories, in the destruction of life and property, and the running off of stock, cannot be esti-nated. Neither can it be determined Powder river until he had rendered the Platte route perfectly safe (to travel and settlement) from Indian depredations.

From the many respectable recommendations given to Dr. Hooffand's German Bitters, I was induced to give them a trial. After using several bottles I found them to be a good remedy for debility, and a most excellent tonic for the stomach.

I take great pleasure in thus publicly proclaiming this fact, and calling the attention of those afflicted with the diseases for which they are recommended, to these Bitters, knowing from experience that my recommendation will be sustained. I do this more cheerful as Hoodiand's Bitters is intended to benefit the afflicted, and is "not a rum drink."

Although not disposed to favor or recommend Patent Medicines in general, through distrust of their ingredients and effects, I yet know of no sufficient reasons why a man may not testify to the benefits he believes himself to have received from any simple preparation, in the hope that he may thus contribute to the benefit of others.

I do this the more readily in regard to Hoofland's German Bitters, prepared by Dr. C. M. Jackson, or this city, because I was prejudiced against them for many years, under the impression that they were chiefly an alcoholic mixture. I am indebted to my friend, Robert Shoemaker, Esq., for the removal of this prejudice by proper tests and for encouragement to try them when suffering from great and long continued debility. The use of three bottles of these Bitters at the beginning of the present year, was followed by evident reliefand restoration to a degree of bodily and mental vigor which I had not felt for six months before, and had almost despaired of regaining. I therefore thank God and my friend directing me to the use of them.

Dear Sir: I feel it due to your excellent preparation, Hoofland's: German Bitters, to add my testimony to the deserved reputation it has obtained. I have for years, at times, been troubled with great disorder in my head and nervous system. I was advised by a friend to try a bottle of your German Bitters. I did so, and have experienced great and unexpected relief; my health has been very materially benefitted. I confiden by recommend the article where I meet with cases similar to my own, and have been assured by many of their good effects. Respectfully yours.
