ergeant, and Nicholas Biddle.
And then we pause with mingled feelings, as it were on the edge of the liv g generation, and wonder what the judgment of history will be on them. To some, or at least to one of them, no greater injustice can be done when dead, than there is while living. The dark cloud of prejudice which wicked men have tried, and perhaps successfully, to wrap around the fair form of the only President of the United States that Pennsylvania furnished, a states-man of pure, private, and eminent pub-lic character, must, in the end, be dis-sipated, and Mr. Buchanan, if we mistake not, will pass without cavil into the canon of her illustrious men. So with others less prominent, but still distinguished.

We have been led into this train of thought by the perusal and the reperusal -for no one will be content with one reading-of what we do not hesitate to describe (and in this we measure our words) as one of the most remarkable productions of the day. We refer to Judge Black's reported argument, or more properly oration, before the Supreme Court of the United States on the subject of military commissions. In speaking of it as an oration rather than as an argument, we do not disparage it as a forensic effort. What we mean is this: To prove to a bench of learned lawyers, by authority or logic, that a citizen, outside of a camp or even within it, no war existing, cannot be convicted, or imprisoned, or hung, without a trial by jury, would be, even in these abnormal times, hardly necessary. There is not a lawyer in the world, unless it be Mr. Speed, who disputes it. But so inert and benumbed have of late become the judicial instincts throughout the land, so ready have judges, high and low, Federal and State, been to bow to Executive will, to shut their eyes to Executive intrusion, to be deaf to the prayer or the demand of those who appeal to them in behalf of violated law, that it needed something like the blast of the trumpet to arouse them. From the 27th of May, 1861—five long years ago—when, on the record of a Federal Court, not far off, were written these brave but ineffectual words:

fectual words:

Ordered that an attachment forthwith issue against General George Cadwalader for a contempt in refusing to produce the body of John Merryman according to the command of the writ of habeas corpus, returnable and returned before me to-day, and that said attachment be returned before at 12 o'clock to-morrow. fore at 12 o'clock to-morrow, from the day when the late Chief Justice wrote this order, down to this month when military commissions have been pronounced illegal, and their acts of blood, murders, not even judicial, we repeat our convictions that the high instincts of the judiciary were benumbed. It was to stir them into new life, to shock them, as it were, into vital action, to make judges feel that it was time to assert their ancient functions, and to stay the hand of arbitrary power, that Judge Black and his colleagues spoke. We doubt not the efforts of all were worthy the occasion, and we shall be glad when the opportunity is afforded us to do them justice. Our gratitude and our praise are now due to this remarkable effort of our Pennsylvania lawyer.

We shall not attempt, within our narrow limits, to analyze it or to sketch its course ofreasoning. There is not a word in it which the commonest mind can-not comprehend. The heart must move sluggishly, and the imagination must be dull indeed, which its appeals do not stir and excite. Its rhetoric, often ornate. as is everything Mr. Black's pen writes is so clear and direct, that no one can resist its influence; and the feeling every honest man must have when he lays the lawless tyrranny of which for four or five years the Northern people have been the victims, in the guise of these irregular processes and tribunals, is that of wonder and of awe at the escape which we have at least made. Listen to its concluding appeal, the only extract we can afford to make:

While such tribunals are utterly power-less to do eyen a shadow of good, they will be omippetent to trample upon imposence.

be omnipotent to trample upon innocence to gag the truth, to silence patriotism, and crush the liberties of the country. They will always be organized to convict, and the conviction will follow the accusation as will always be organized to convict, and the conviction will follow the accusation as surely as night follows the day. The government, of course, will accuse none before such a commission except those whom it predetermines to ruin and destroy. The accuser can choose the judges, and will certainly select those who are known to be the most ignorant, the most unprincipled, and the most ready to do whatever may please the power which gives them pay, promotion, and plunder. The willing winters can be found as easily as the superserviceable judge. The treacherous spy, and the base informer—those loathsome wretches who do their lying by the jobwill stock such a market with abundant perjury, for the authorities that employ them. A corrupt and tyrannical government, with such an engine at its command, will shock the world with the enormity of its crimes. Plied as it may be by the arts of a market with such as will shock the world with the enormity of its crimes. Plied as it may be by the arts of a malignant priesthood, and urged on by the madness of a raving crowd, it will be worse than the popish plot, or the French revolution—it will be a combination of both with Fouquier Tinville on the bench, and Titus Oates in the witness's box. You can save us from this horrible fate. You alone can "deliver us from the body of this death." To that fearful extent is the destiny of this nation in your hands.

Impassioned as these words may seem

Impassioned as these words may seem —unsuited in one sense as they may be said to be to the tribunal to which they were addressed, they were needed, and what is more material, they were effec-tual, and the highest court of the land has denounced these processes of tyranny as infamous.

One other word.

Judging others by ourselves, and in the dim hope that there is a remnant of sentiment left in there is a remnant of sentiment left in the people of the North, wewould print this speech as a campaign document, circulate it by hundreds of thousands, put it in the hands of every voter of Pennsylvania, and with it make one last appeal to the popular heart. Our conviction is it would meet with a response, and that Judge Black would add to the triumph his eloquence has already won, the greater and the higher one of guiding back into the path of true loyalty to the Constitution and the laws the great array of the people in whose presence judges, and courts, and presidents, and military commissions are literally naught.—Age, April 10.

INCREASE OF RATS.—The Farmer's Gazette (English) asserts and proves by figures that one pair of RATS will have a pregeny and decendants not less than 63,650 in three years. Now unless this immense family can be kept down, they would consume more food than would sustain 65,000 human beings.

RATS versus BIRDS.—Whoever engages in shooting small birds is a cruel man; whoever aids in exterminating rats is a benefactor. EFFICACY OF MISHLER'S BITTERS. WONDERFUL CURE OF NEURALGIA!!
Mr. Benjamin Mishler, the proprietor of that most efficacious remedial agent, Mishler's Herb Bitters, has just received the following certificate of a most remarkable cure effected by means of his Celebrated Medicine. E. G. Groff, who signs the certificate, is a Justice of the Peace in the town of New Holland, Lancuster county, and is too well known to the people of that populous section for honesty, intelligence and truthfulness to admit of the least doubt in regard to the entire accuracy of the statement regard to the charle iterates of the statement to which he has voluntarily attached his name. No man in Lancaster county will ask more than the word of Esq. Groff fer the authentication of the wonderful cure to which he so fully testifies. Read the following certificate and be convinced. Apply the remedy if you would be cured:

New Holland,
Lancaster county, Pa.,
April 16th, 1886.

Mr. Benjamin Mishler—Deak Six —I deem i April 18th. 1888.

Mr. Benjamin Mishler—Diak Sik. —I deem it but due to you that I should give you a statement of the cure effected in the person of my mother. Mrs. Mary Groff, by the use of your Herb Bitters. For a number of ears she had been much afflicted with the most distressing pains in different parts of her right side. Some times her arm and shoulder were affected, but more generally her leg and hip. So affected did these become that she was at last bed-ridden for a considerable portion of the time, and were comparatively free from pain quite unable to move about the house, except with the had of a crutch or cane. Her life was thus made a scene of painful distress and existence almost a burthen. She had applied to all the physicians within reach, and had diligently used such medicines as they gave her, but all to no purpose. They pronounced her disease to be an incurable neuralgic affliction. At length however, something like eighteen months since, she began to use your valuable Herb Bitters. At once there was the most remarkable change, she was speedily relieved to a very great extent from the pain which had been the consensix months was so completely restored to health as to be able to take a pleasure trip to the Western States. Since her return home, and at the present time, she has the complete and free use of her limbs, is entirely free from pain, and able to do her housework, to attend to her flower garden, and to discharge all her domestic duties.

domestic duties.

Thinking that such a remarkable cure should be made known, in order that those similarly affilicted may apply to the same efficacions means for relief, I voluntarily give you this statement to use as you see fit. Any person who doubts its authenticity can have all scruples removed by writing to me at the New Holland post office.

Yours, Very Respectfully, apr 17 tfd&w?

I do this the more readily in regard to Hoofland's German Bitters, prepared by Dr. C. M. Jackson, of this city, because I was prejudiced against them for many years, under the impression that they were chiefly an sicoholic mixture. I am indebted to my friend Robert Shoemaker, Esq., for the removal of this prejudice by proper tests and for encouragement to try them when suffering from great and long continued debility. The use of three bottles of these Bitters at the beginning of the present year, was followed by evident relief and restoration to a degree of bodily and mental vigor which I had not felt for six months before, and had almost despaired of regalning. I therefore thank God and my friend directing me to the use of them.

MPROVED COMPOSITION PAVE

The subscriber has invented and now in use in Reading, Pa. "AN IMPROVED COMPOSITION PAVEMENT," which is superior to any other, and which is destined to entirely supersede the use of the brick pavement. Among its advantages are: It is more healthy, durable and cheaper than brick. It renders the ground damp-tight, is seamless and entirely impervious to water, and is especially adapted for yards, flooring in work shops, &c. It is smooth, level and entirely dry—does not become slippery like a flag pavement, and is not affected by heat, cold, or frost. It does not become damp, green or mossy in the shade, and cannot be penetrated into by grass or vermin.—Rats and mice will not undermine it. It is easily kept clean and requires no scrubing. These are but a few of its many advantages. A very small capitall only is required to carry on this business, and the materials used are easily obtained. City, State and County rights for sale.
