

The Lancaster Intelligencer,
PUBLISHED WEEKLY AT
CORNER OF SANDERS & CO.
H. G. SMITH, Editor.
Wm. A. Moxton, Manager.

TERMS—Two Dollars per annum, payable in advance.
OFFICE—Southwest corner of CENTER SQUARE.
All letters on business should be addressed to Captain, SANDERS & CO.

LANCASTER, PA., WEDNESDAY MORNING, AUGUST 1, 1866.

NUMBER 30.
SATURDAY, AUGUST 1, 1866.
PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY SANDERS & CO., OF THE
LANCASTER, PA., AT
CORNER OF SANDERS & CO.
RECEIVED FOR MAIL DELIVERY
BY POST OFFICE AT LANCASTER, PA., AS SECOND-CLASS MATTER,
MAY 15, 1866.
NO. 1000.

Literary.

A Story of Two Kisses.

I am an old man; so old I am that looking back, life seems very long, and yet so short that I do not know what many things did not happen in a dream. I am lame and hearty, and merry, for the matter of that; and when I laugh, my laugh rings, so merrily, that the people around, especially my grandchildren, and nephews, and nieces, laugh to see me, and the laugh is hearty, and as if it were their own, and when I stop laughing, my eyes are dry and my mouth is as if it were sleep-laugher in a dream.

When I stop laughing, my eyes are dry for the merriment and enjoyment, and for the matter of that, the grief and pain of old men, are short and sudden, like the lightning of a storm, and the tears of old men, are short and sudden, like the lightning of a storm, and the tears of old men, are short and sudden, like the lightning of a storm, and the tears of old men, are short and sudden, like the lightning of a storm.

Well, I need not tell you what she answered. "This fifty years, Alice," she said, "I have loved you as if you were the one true man in the world, and I have loved you as if you were the one true man in the world, and I have loved you as if you were the one true man in the world, and I have loved you as if you were the one true man in the world."

Well, I need not tell you what she answered. "This fifty years, Alice," she said, "I have loved you as if you were the one true man in the world, and I have loved you as if you were the one true man in the world, and I have loved you as if you were the one true man in the world, and I have loved you as if you were the one true man in the world."

Well, I need not tell you what she answered. "This fifty years, Alice," she said, "I have loved you as if you were the one true man in the world, and I have loved you as if you were the one true man in the world, and I have loved you as if you were the one true man in the world, and I have loved you as if you were the one true man in the world."

Well, I need not tell you what she answered. "This fifty years, Alice," she said, "I have loved you as if you were the one true man in the world, and I have loved you as if you were the one true man in the world, and I have loved you as if you were the one true man in the world, and I have loved you as if you were the one true man in the world."

Well, I need not tell you what she answered. "This fifty years, Alice," she said, "I have loved you as if you were the one true man in the world, and I have loved you as if you were the one true man in the world, and I have loved you as if you were the one true man in the world, and I have loved you as if you were the one true man in the world."

Miscellaneous.

The Radicals in Congress Preparing for Another Fight.

Starting Developments.—Not Enough to Print the Principal part of the editorial letter of Mr. Raymond, Chairman of the National Executive Committee of the Republican party, and member also of the House of Representatives, published in the New York Times of Tuesday.

Political panics are quite as mischievous in their way as panics in an army. Parties are demoralized, and sometimes destroyed, by the approach of a panic that proves to have been wholly imaginary. Sometimes, too, the fears create the dangers they dread, and thus create the very conditions they dread.

You may have noticed the passage in the House a few days since, of a resolution offered by Gen. Paline, of Wisconsin, called on the States to organize a militia of ten thirds of the arms, ordnance and ammunition now under the custody of the General Government but not in the hands of the States.

The following pretty little story is narrated by Frederica Bremer, who has written a good deal about Sweden, lived a young student, a noble youth, with great love for studies, but without means for pursuing them.

Well, I need not tell you what she answered. "This fifty years, Alice," she said, "I have loved you as if you were the one true man in the world, and I have loved you as if you were the one true man in the world, and I have loved you as if you were the one true man in the world, and I have loved you as if you were the one true man in the world."

Well, I need not tell you what she answered. "This fifty years, Alice," she said, "I have loved you as if you were the one true man in the world, and I have loved you as if you were the one true man in the world, and I have loved you as if you were the one true man in the world, and I have loved you as if you were the one true man in the world."

Well, I need not tell you what she answered. "This fifty years, Alice," she said, "I have loved you as if you were the one true man in the world, and I have loved you as if you were the one true man in the world, and I have loved you as if you were the one true man in the world, and I have loved you as if you were the one true man in the world."

The Monkeys in Congress, and How They Take Their Food.—Debate on the Tariff Bill.

(Correspondence of the Chicago Tribune.)
WASHINGTON, July 7.

Your readers, doubtless, remember the little story of the monkeys in the Zoological Garden in London, which runs thus: "The monkeys in Exeter Change used to be confined in a room in the center of its front for the benefit of the public. When all the monkeys were supplied with their messes it was observed that scarcely any one of them ate out of his own pan. Each thrust his arm through the bars, and robbed his right or left-hand neighbor. Half what was so seized was spilled and lost in the conveyance; and while one monkey was so unfortunately engaged in plundering, his own pan was exposed to the marauding of the monkey-knavery and absurdity was shockingly human."

During the greater part of this week, the tariff bill was in Committee of the Whole, an exhibition of this kind was going on in the House. To recount the details of the proceedings would be to tell the story of the monkeys in Exeter Change, for the monkeys in Exeter Change, for the monkeys in Exeter Change, for the monkeys in Exeter Change.

The Italian army suffered a sad reverse that was the result of trusting in the goodness of its cause, it marched boldly upon fortresses whose strength was its own. The result was the capture of the fortresses, and the good of the country, but not throwing itself against the Philadelphia Convention until it had secured its own safety.

Mr. Morrill decided that fifty cents per ton coal was enough for Mr. Kelley, of Pennsylvania, and that he would stand out for the tariff. Mr. Morrill decided that fifty cents per ton coal was enough for Mr. Kelley, of Pennsylvania, and that he would stand out for the tariff.

Mr. Pike, of Maine, who wanted to help himself to fifty cents a barrel on her own part, discovered that somebody was taking three cents a pound out of his pocket. Mr. Pike, of Maine, who wanted to help himself to fifty cents a barrel on her own part, discovered that somebody was taking three cents a pound out of his pocket.

Mr. Pike, of Maine, who wanted to help himself to fifty cents a barrel on her own part, discovered that somebody was taking three cents a pound out of his pocket. Mr. Pike, of Maine, who wanted to help himself to fifty cents a barrel on her own part, discovered that somebody was taking three cents a pound out of his pocket.

Mr. Pike, of Maine, who wanted to help himself to fifty cents a barrel on her own part, discovered that somebody was taking three cents a pound out of his pocket. Mr. Pike, of Maine, who wanted to help himself to fifty cents a barrel on her own part, discovered that somebody was taking three cents a pound out of his pocket.

The Stevens Congress.

We commend to the earnest attention of all reasonably disposed members of the Republican party, the following remarks upon the course of this Radical Congress, from one of its own leading organs, the N. Y. Times:

The wisest man in England growed of their labors. Despite the frantic appeals of those who seem to fear a recession as a child fears the mother's scolding, the speaker approaches. Not without hope, however, he approaches, to upset the proposal of the radical majority in regard to a permanent session, and there is a likelihood that in little more than a week the legislative body will be re-opened in their homes.

How well will the account appear? To answer the inquiry we must see how the balance between the radical and conservative parties in the House and Senate is affected by the opening of the doors in December. The war had had its effect on the public mind, and the radical party was in a position to proclaim and denounce liberty; therefore the balance between the radical and conservative parties in the House and Senate is affected by the opening of the doors in December.

How well will the account appear? To answer the inquiry we must see how the balance between the radical and conservative parties in the House and Senate is affected by the opening of the doors in December. The war had had its effect on the public mind, and the radical party was in a position to proclaim and denounce liberty; therefore the balance between the radical and conservative parties in the House and Senate is affected by the opening of the doors in December.

How well will the account appear? To answer the inquiry we must see how the balance between the radical and conservative parties in the House and Senate is affected by the opening of the doors in December. The war had had its effect on the public mind, and the radical party was in a position to proclaim and denounce liberty; therefore the balance between the radical and conservative parties in the House and Senate is affected by the opening of the doors in December.

How well will the account appear? To answer the inquiry we must see how the balance between the radical and conservative parties in the House and Senate is affected by the opening of the doors in December. The war had had its effect on the public mind, and the radical party was in a position to proclaim and denounce liberty; therefore the balance between the radical and conservative parties in the House and Senate is affected by the opening of the doors in December.

How well will the account appear? To answer the inquiry we must see how the balance between the radical and conservative parties in the House and Senate is affected by the opening of the doors in December. The war had had its effect on the public mind, and the radical party was in a position to proclaim and denounce liberty; therefore the balance between the radical and conservative parties in the House and Senate is affected by the opening of the doors in December.

The Soldiers' Convention.—Don't Radicals

The Disunion papers don't like the idea of a Johnson-Clymer Soldiers' Convention being held at Harrisburg, the cause of the great body of returned soldiers are opposed to the radical policy of Summer, Stevens & Co. The Pittsburg Commercial and Gazette, in its issue of August 1st, has by several hundred returned officers and soldiers. The latter journal is shocked because the call is so widely signed by those who are of little or no consideration either in military, political or social circles.

The Disunion papers don't like the idea of a Johnson-Clymer Soldiers' Convention being held at Harrisburg, the cause of the great body of returned soldiers are opposed to the radical policy of Summer, Stevens & Co. The Pittsburg Commercial and Gazette, in its issue of August 1st, has by several hundred returned officers and soldiers. The latter journal is shocked because the call is so widely signed by those who are of little or no consideration either in military, political or social circles.

The Disunion papers don't like the idea of a Johnson-Clymer Soldiers' Convention being held at Harrisburg, the cause of the great body of returned soldiers are opposed to the radical policy of Summer, Stevens & Co. The Pittsburg Commercial and Gazette, in its issue of August 1st, has by several hundred returned officers and soldiers. The latter journal is shocked because the call is so widely signed by those who are of little or no consideration either in military, political or social circles.

The Disunion papers don't like the idea of a Johnson-Clymer Soldiers' Convention being held at Harrisburg, the cause of the great body of returned soldiers are opposed to the radical policy of Summer, Stevens & Co. The Pittsburg Commercial and Gazette, in its issue of August 1st, has by several hundred returned officers and soldiers. The latter journal is shocked because the call is so widely signed by those who are of little or no consideration either in military, political or social circles.

The Disunion papers don't like the idea of a Johnson-Clymer Soldiers' Convention being held at Harrisburg, the cause of the great body of returned soldiers are opposed to the radical policy of Summer, Stevens & Co. The Pittsburg Commercial and Gazette, in its issue of August 1st, has by several hundred returned officers and soldiers. The latter journal is shocked because the call is so widely signed by those who are of little or no consideration either in military, political or social circles.

The Disunion papers don't like the idea of a Johnson-Clymer Soldiers' Convention being held at Harrisburg, the cause of the great body of returned soldiers are opposed to the radical policy of Summer, Stevens & Co. The Pittsburg Commercial and Gazette, in its issue of August 1st, has by several hundred returned officers and soldiers. The latter journal is shocked because the call is so widely signed by those who are of little or no consideration either in military, political or social circles.

The Disunion papers don't like the idea of a Johnson-Clymer Soldiers' Convention being held at Harrisburg, the cause of the great body of returned soldiers are opposed to the radical policy of Summer, Stevens & Co. The Pittsburg Commercial and Gazette, in its issue of August 1st, has by several hundred returned officers and soldiers. The latter journal is shocked because the call is so widely signed by those who are of little or no consideration either in military, political or social circles.

Monongahela City, Washington Territory.

WASHINGTON, July 31.

By the agreement of the Union, was last evening signed by many persons. The following joint resolution, restoring Tennessee to her relations to the Union, was passed by the House of Representatives.

By the agreement of the Union, was last evening signed by many persons. The following joint resolution, restoring Tennessee to her relations to the Union, was passed by the House of Representatives.

By the agreement of the Union, was last evening signed by many persons. The following joint resolution, restoring Tennessee to her relations to the Union, was passed by the House of Representatives.

By the agreement of the Union, was last evening signed by many persons. The following joint resolution, restoring Tennessee to her relations to the Union, was passed by the House of Representatives.

By the agreement of the Union, was last evening signed by many persons. The following joint resolution, restoring Tennessee to her relations to the Union, was passed by the House of Representatives.

By the agreement of the Union, was last evening signed by many persons. The following joint resolution, restoring Tennessee to her relations to the Union, was passed by the House of Representatives.

How the Constitutional Amendment was Ratified in Tennessee.

We take from a Republican newspaper the following account of the ratification of the Constitutional Amendment by Tennessee, as it is given by the members of the Convention, and as it is given by the members of the Convention, and as it is given by the members of the Convention.

We take from a Republican newspaper the following account of the ratification of the Constitutional Amendment by Tennessee, as it is given by the members of the Convention, and as it is given by the members of the Convention, and as it is given by the members of the Convention.

We take from a Republican newspaper the following account of the ratification of the Constitutional Amendment by Tennessee, as it is given by the members of the Convention, and as it is given by the members of the Convention, and as it is given by the members of the Convention.

We take from a Republican newspaper the following account of the ratification of the Constitutional Amendment by Tennessee, as it is given by the members of the Convention, and as it is given by the members of the Convention, and as it is given by the members of the Convention.

We take from a Republican newspaper the following account of the ratification of the Constitutional Amendment by Tennessee, as it is given by the members of the Convention, and as it is given by the members of the Convention, and as it is given by the members of the Convention.

We take from a Republican newspaper the following account of the ratification of the Constitutional Amendment by Tennessee, as it is given by the members of the Convention, and as it is given by the members of the Convention, and as it is given by the members of the Convention.

Practical and Studious Men.

Those who can do, do. The practical men are the ones who are to be seen in the use of instruments and a knowledge of common arithmetic, by the help of certain printed forms and tables.

Those who can do, do. The practical men are the ones who are to be seen in the use of instruments and a knowledge of common arithmetic, by the help of certain printed forms and tables.

Those who can do, do. The practical men are the ones who are to be seen in the use of instruments and a knowledge of common arithmetic, by the help of certain printed forms and tables.

Those who can do, do. The practical men are the ones who are to be seen in the use of instruments and a knowledge of common arithmetic, by the help of certain printed forms and tables.

Those who can do, do. The practical men are the ones who are to be seen in the use of instruments and a knowledge of common arithmetic, by the help of certain printed forms and tables.

Those who can do, do. The practical men are the ones who are to be seen in the use of instruments and a knowledge of common arithmetic, by the help of certain printed forms and tables.

Those who can do, do. The practical men are the ones who are to be seen in the use of instruments and a knowledge of common arithmetic, by the help of certain printed forms and tables.

Those who can do, do. The practical men are the ones who are to be seen in the use of instruments and a knowledge of common arithmetic, by the help of certain printed forms and tables.