THE OBSERVANCE OF CHRISTMAS.—C hrist mas was generally and appropriately observed in our city. On Monday the streets were crowded by parties who were out making purchases for the occasion, and the good old custom of giving Christmas gifts was very generally observed. This custom is said to have had its origin in the Roma Paganalia, which was instituted by Servius Tullius B. C. 550. It was kept up by the Christians of Rome after they had aban doned paganism, and still prevails extensively throughout Europe and America. Many beautiful and costly articles of use and ornament are annually prepared expressly to be thus disposed of, and there is always a rush to the stores during the days which immediately precede the holidays After dark on Monday evening the streets were filled by a merry crowd-some shopping, others out to see what was going on. The balcony of Demuth's confectionary, on East King street, was, as usual, an object of especial attraction to the boys and girls. The grotesque tigure of Kris Kinkle and the other queer contrivances, which were kept moving by mechanical arrangement, elicited peals of laughter from the crowd o juveniles, and relaxed the muscles of maturer faces. Parties paraded with masks, and wherever they went were followed by curious crowds of boys. Not until late at night did the streets resume their wonted quiet. Many of the grownup tolks worked until past midnight in arranging Christmas trees, and making other preparations with which to surprise the children on the coming morning. The Christ mas tree had its origin among the German and other Protestant districts in the North of Europe. The first forming of the Christmas tree in England is believed to have been by a German in the household of Queen Caroline, wife of George IV.; a queen who saw few happy Christmas occasions after her marriage in 1795. The Germans of Pennsylvania brought their Teutonic custom with them. The stocking hung at the foot of the bed or the side of the fireplace, Kris Kinkle, and the Christmas tree were brought here from the Fatherland at an early period, and that they have not gone out of date was abundantly evidenced in Lancaster yesterday morning. There was a general observance of Christ mas in the churches of our city vesterday Many of them were beautifully and tastefully decorated with evergreens. It is the tradition that Christ was born about the middle of the night, and the Catholic custom of ushering in the day with the celebration of three masses--one at midnight, a second at early dawn, and another later in the morning—originated in the sixth century. In former times the celebration of Christmas began in the latter part of the previous day 'Christmas Eve." The custom of singing carols, recalling the songs of the shepherds at the birth of Christ, arose at an early period. In these songs the clergy, high and low, parents and children joined, combining in the celebration of the occasion the strains of musical instruments with the melody of human voices. The custom of decking churches and houses with evergreen, is derived from the practices of the Ancient Druids. Ivy, mistletoe holly rosemary, bays and laurel, are the favorite trimmings in the old world. In this country we use cedar and spruce to a great extent. It is one of the traditions that during the eve preceding Christmas day certain vineyards of the Holy Land assumed their vernal robes, and even the withered roses of Jericho became fresh and bountiful. In the middle ages it was a nonular idea that during Christmas evecertain apple trees bloomed and bore fruit. To give to this faith a visible form, the evergreen must now lend its crown, and bear golden apples amid the fragrant lustre of waxtapers, that illumine the gifts intended to cheer the heart. This evergreen, with its golden apples, is the symbol of the tree of Paradise that bore the forbidden fruit. The Christian faith imagined new apples on these trees during this sacred eve, fruits of redemption. And thus the apple, through which Paradise was lost, became the token of redeeming love, through which we are again reconciled to God, and again regain Paradise. This is the medieval mysticism of the apple, and the reason why the blooming tree with golden apples is placed on the Christmas board.

Judging from the preparations made beforehand, there was no lack of feasting in Lancaster on Christmas. Our well supplied markets afforded all a chance to lay in a supply of good things for the occasion. Of course there was a moderately free indulgence on the occasion, but little drunkenness or disorderly conduct was visible on our streets. The suspension of business was universal and total, and the great annual Christmas holiday was appropriately observed by our people. SALE OF CITY PROPERTY,-The Baer property advertised in the Intelligencer, was sold at Michael's Hotel last night, to John I. Hartman for $14.750.

STATUE OF GENERAL REYNOLDS.—The Gettysburg Star says the committee of the First Army Corps, having the matter in charge, have decided to place a bronze statue of General Reynolds in the National Cemetery, and not on the spot where he fell. The statue is to be six or seven feet high, with a base of nearly the same height. The triangle formed by several avenues near the gate, in front has been selected for the sight. been shown two deeds in an excellent state of preservation, and characterized by remarkably time penmanship. The one bears date 1759 and the other 1773. The first o these deeds shows that Michael, Bauginnar purchased from the Honorables John Penn, Thomas Penn and Richard Penn, in the year 1742, one thousand acres of land situated in Penn township, county of Lancaster and Province of Pennsylvania, for the sum of one half penny sterling per acre (quit rent) payable annually, and one ear of Indian corn for every hundred acres, to be delivered every year on the first day of No-vember. In 1773 Michael Baughman sold three hundred and fifty-six acres of this land to Ulrich Zug, for sixty pounds lawful money of the Province of Pennsylvania, per acre. Zug in his title was released o the quit rent and the ear of corn annually. was one of those of that name who emigra ted from Switzerland about the time these

MRS, SURRATT'S HOUSE NOT HAUNTED We published a few days since a state ment that the Surratt house in Washington which was drawn as a prize by a Lancaste soldier, was haunted. Mr. T. J. Mackey has written a letter to the Hartford Press, in relation to the improbable story which has been extensively published, that several families have occupied the house since the execution of Mrs. Surratt, and that "none of them have been able to stay long. as she is a ghostly visitant there almost every night." Mr. Mackey says: This statement is incorrect both in letter

This statement is incorrect both in letter and in "spirit." The house referred to is, and has been for many months, the residence of Brevet Brigadier General Bulloch, the worthy chief disbursing officer of the Freedmen's Bureau. The General is a "bonny Scot," and as a true scion of the thistle and the heather, he allows none but good "spirits" to enter his house. Any spirit that enters his hospitable mansion must "down at his bidding," with many "punches," and the only "ghost" ever punches;" and the only "ghost" even seen there, thus far, is that of the "bo seen there, thus, John Barley Corn." THE COLLAPSE OF CRINGLING - Wahare repeatedly announced that a collapse in crinoline was about to take place. We are now able to state that it has actually taken place. The ladies have reduced their proportions and the amplitude of their skirts. The New York Times, noticing the change says:

"No one who promenades Broadway now-a-days will doubt that the long-fore-told, long-felayed 'collapse of crinoline' has at last come to pass. It is visible to the most careless observer, and has proof in our most fashionable ladies as they 'march along.' The immense circumference of skirt and sweep of train that came in vogue a dozen years ago, and have been expanding and lengthening ever since, until recently, are now things of the past. In their stead masculine eyes are now gratified by neat trim dresses, at once moderate in size, neat trim dresses, at once moderate in size gracefully brief, and pre-eminently pi

TERRIBLE RAILROAD ACCIDENT.-A ge leman who arrived in this city, yesterday nforms us of a most terrible railros ccident, which occurred on the Indian branch of the Pennsylvania Central ves erday afternoon. While the passenge rain was running up a stiff grade, two cars, which contained coal oil, became de ached from a freight train in front, and tarting backward, down the grade camiolently into collision with the engine of he passenger train. The two oil cars were wrecked at once, and the oil caught fire rom the locomotive. The engineer of the assenger train was jammed in between the oil cars and the locomotive; and was liter ally burned up in the fierce flames. An other man, the assistant engineer, or one of he firemen, was so badly burned that h nas since died, and a third man, who wa on the engine, was also seriously burned The passenger cars were detached, an one of the passengers were injured.

THE FRIENDSHIP STEAM FIRE ENGIN No. 2.—The Steam Fire Engine purchased by the Friendship Fire Company arrived vesterday. The frost chilled shif fidee everything exposed to its plerting cold.

Mr. Day, President of the Stonington Railroad, who was on board the vessel at the time of the disaster, has furnished the following statement: The steamer Commodore left this port on Thursday at half-past four petods P. M., taking about eighty passangers—dock and cabin—and a quantity of resign to a transfer of the control o passatigera—deck and cabin—and a quintity of freight for Stonington. At the time of leaving there was acteady wind blowing, and the weather was quite cold, but the vessel behaved well and nothing of an unusual nature occurred until about half-past ten o'clock, when the breeze, which had been blowing freshly from the west, came up with great violence, cansing the steamer to pitch heavily. At this time the vessel was in the vicinity of the Canfield Light, and the storm continued to increase in violence, so that at eleven o'clock, P. M., it was a perfect hurricane. The flood tide set in about this time, and we were then in the vicinity of Horton's Point. The vessel then broached to," and, getting into the trough of the sea, became utterly unmanageable. Every attempt possible was made to keep the vessel's head to the wind, but without the vessel's head to the wind, but without avail, and in about twenty minutes afterwards the smokestacks were carried overboard, solely by the force of the wind. The sea was lashed into a perfect fury, and the "caps" visible on the waves of a rough sea were undiscernable, the bay being an expanse of seething, hissing waters, covered with foam, and boiling like a cauldron Great difficulty was now experienced in keeping the engines in unition, owing to the Great difficulty was now experienced in keeping the engines in motion, owing to the heavy rolling of the steamer, and all on board became more or less impressed with the idea that the vessel would go down. Large numbers of the passengers huddled together in the cabins and staterooms, expecting momentarily that the ship would go to pieces. By almost superhuman efforts the engines were kept working, and the vessel was immediately headed for the shore of sel was immediately headed for the shore of sel was immediately headed for the shore of Long Island. The gale continued to blow with unabated fury, and a heavy snow storm prevailed during the whole of the time the vessel was so fearfully exposed. We were now nearing the beach, and as soon as daylight appeared we let go the port anchor within about three hundred yards of the Long Island shore. We then gave the vesel a little sheer on the starboard side and el a little sheer on the starboard side, and she went ashore within two hundred vards of the beach, striking on an even keel. Boats were immediately lowered, and some Boas were immediately lowered, and some of the women and children were put in them, the order being given and strictly enforced that the women and children should all leave the ship first. The sea now began to break clean over the vessel, and her position became critical in the extreme, from the fact of her being held at anchor and offering such great resistance to the force of the waves. The power of the gale was so great that it blew in the windows, and the steamer began to show signs of going to pieces, when it was concluded to let go the anchors and drift on to the shore. The scene at this time became harrowing. All expected to lose their lives, and groups of frightened women and and groups of frightened women and children, with numbers of their male pas-sengers also, crowded into the cabin and sengers also, crowded into the cabin and state rooms, clamoring for protection and praying in loud and earnest tones, while many cried aloud and bitterly. The cabin passengers as a body, including the ladles, behaved nobly; but many of the deek passengers displayed great fear, and became so uncontrollable as to seriously interfere with those who were in less dread and in a conhose who were in less dread and in a con-lition to afford assistance. The work of anding passengers had now fairly commenced, and at about half-past six A. M. meniced, and at about half-past six A. M., all hands, it is believed, were safely landed. The residents of Pequonnick, a little village about half a mile from the scene of the disaster, afforded valuable assistance to the sufferers, and promptly conveyed such of the baggage as was saved and some of the weaker of the passequent to safe and comfortable our terms. passengers to safe and comfortable quarters. At the time of our eaving the wreck she was fast going to pieces, and the sea was breaching clean over her, careening her on one side. The vessel will undoubtedly prove a total loss, as will also the greater portion of her freight. The Commodore carried a crew of about forty men, and at the time of leaving it was re-ported that two had been drowned, but I have every reason to doubt the authenticity of this statement. The Caucus of the Radical Members of the Legislature.

HARRISBURG, December 31.—At a caucus held this afternoon by the Radical members of the Senate, the following were chosen as officers of the Senate: Speaker—Louis M. Hall, of Blair County; Clerk—General W. Hammersley, of Pennsylvania; Assistant Clerks—Lucius Rogers, of McKean, and Colonel Fred. Hitchcock, of Luzerne; Sergeaut-at-Arms—Major William M. Hinkson, of Chester; Doorkeeper—M. Edgar King, of Fulton; Messenger—Robert Sharp, of Philadelphia; Librarian—Jacob Styers. At a caucus held this evening of Radical members of the House, Colonel John P. Glass, of Allegheny, was nominated for Speaker of the House. The motion was made by Mr. Quay, who had been the opponent of Colonel Grass for the position, and was unanimously adopted.

The friends of General Cameron claim that the result of the caucus this evening is in their favor, and that they will have a majority in both branches on the first ballot. They also claim Speaker Hall, of the Senate, and Speaker Glass, of the House, as ardent supporters of General Cameron. It is conceded that General Cameron will be elected.

Tragegy in Minnesota.

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 28.—A terrible tragedy occurred at New Ulm on Christmas day. Two men, named Campbell and Lis-comb, had come in from a trapping expedition. During an altercation in a saloon, one of them stabbed a resident of New Ulm named Mr. Spinner, severing the main artery, and causing death. The Sheriff arrested Liscomb and Campbell, and while on their way to jail, handcuffed, they were set upon by a mob, beaten with stones and sticks of cordwood, and then rescued from the Sheriff and hung. Even while hanging the mob cut and hacked their bodies in a shocking manner. Their bodies were still hanging and frozen stiff the next morning. Campbell and Liscomb served in Co. PUBLIC SALE OF A SHENANDOAH VALLEY FARM.
At the October Term, 1883, of the Superior Court of Clarke county, the undersigned was appointed Special Commissioner to sell under a decree of said Court, the Farm belonging to the estate of Dr. C. B. K. Kennerly, deceased, lying about one mile south of the village of White Post, Clarke county, Virginia, and containing about 37.5 A C R E S. taining about 37.5 A C R E S, from 70 to 75 Acres in Timber, and the balance under cultivation. I shall, therefore, on THURSDAY, 20TH DECEMBER NEXT, offer said Farm at Public Auction to the highest bidder.

THURSDAY, 20TH DECEMBER NEXT, offer said Farm at Public Auction to the highest bidder.

The Land is limestone, of good quality, well adapted to grain and grass. The DWELLING HOUSE is of stone, with a recent framed addition. The BARN, STABLING and CORN. HOUSE are all new and well constructed. Two never-failing wells of excellent WATER between the dwellings and stables, and a beautiful POND of CLEAR WATER within thirty rods of the buildings. This is the best feeproducing pond in the neighborhood.

There was a few years ago a TANNERY upon this property, which could, with but little outlay, be re-extablished, as the vats were carefully filled and covered with the refuse tantark; a STONE BUILDING used for finishing and storing leather stands in the yard. The great demand for leather would indicate the advantage of re-establishing this Tannery. The decree requires one-fourth of the purchase money on the day of sale, and the residue in one, two and three years, with interest, I am authorized by the Court to sell the whole together, or by yesparate parcels, and shall be governed by the wishes of those desiring to purchase. The title is perfect.

The Land will be surveyed and a plot made by the day of sale. For further partfoulars address the subscriber at White-Post, Clarke county, Virginia.
