It is said there are four prominent varieties of bonnets, viz: the "Dagmar," the "Princess," the "Maria Alnette" and the "Margaretta." The "Dagmar" is regarded as the queen of the season, and is one of the extreme of the series, of which the "Margaretta" is the other. pert, uplifted bow, and a small flaring cape.
The "Princess" is a contracted "Dagmar," about half of the ears, bow and cape of the latter being absorbed in its cape of the latter being absorbed in its crown. Taking the "Dagmar" as the maximum, the "Princess" is a healthy approximation towards nothing.

Of the "Maria Alnette" and "Margaretta," we can only say, they are diminutive wash bowls, regarded asgreat inventions now, but like most great inventions gorldivalently simple polydy inventions now, but like most great inventions, so ridiculously simple, nobody ever thought of them before. Recall the scull caps of former days, and you have an intelligent idea of their shape. In the hat line there is also a great similarity, the styles being only distinguishable by an extra curl of the rim or an inclination of the crown. The "Patti," "Ristori," "Florita," "Dexter" and "Gom" are the most popular youteties. All have shallow flat crowns, varieties. All have shallow flat crowns, and narrow rims. The "Dexter," to use a nautical phrase, is a rakish lookuse a nautical phrase, is a rakish looking craft, apparently scudding under bare poles. The rim is perhaps an inch and a half wide, and does not turn up at the edges. The "Ristori" differs from the "Dexter" only in the turning up of the rim, giving it a heavier appearance. The rim of the "Gem" is turned up more than the "Ristori," is much the same, the crown meeting it at an angle of about forty-five degrees.

The hats are made of Milan, pearl, English, pedal and split straws. Cimp bonnets are much in vogue, plain and mottled.

Christian B. Wolgamuth, Vs. Vs. John Peck, Jr., & John Peck, Sr. John Peck, Sr. Ex. Doc. The everlasting jet ornaments have given way to crystal and amber, with a decided preference for the latter. Bonnets and hats are loaded with amber, John Peck, Jr., & John Peck, Br.) Ex. Doc.

HAIR EXTERMINATOR! Female Criminals.

Why is it that there are so many murders perpetrated in this country nowadays by women? It is not a great while since Mr. Burroughs was killed in Washington by Mary Harris. It is only a few weeks since Molle Trussell shot to death the man whose name she bore in Chicago. A fortnight since, the servant woman, Bridget Durgan, stabbed and killed her mistress at Newmarket, N. J. On Friday last Emma Howard stabbed to the heart a young man named Starr, in Chicago. And beside these actual murders, there have within a few months been half a dozen attempts at murder by women, which have been frustrated by one circumstance or another. It might be worthy of thought whether the impunity which women enjoy in this country of doing men to death has not something to do with this shocking state of affairs. It is true that Mrs. Grinder was excented for her butcheries in Pittsburg a couple of years ago, but this was an exceptional case. As a rule, murderesses are acquitted with triumph.—N. Y. Tones.
