THE FOURTH IN LANCASTER.-There was no general celebration of Independence day in our city, but it was almost universally observed as a holiday, the stores and places of business being generally closed. The patriotism of the juvenile world found noisy vent in the explosion, of all kinds of fire crackers. On the evening before, and throughout the entire day, there was an unremitting report of gunpowder explosions, and, go where you would inside the city limits, the fumes of sulphur filled We hope the legislature will pass a general law before the next Fourth prohibiting the promiscuous explosion of firearms and fire crackers within the limits of all incorporated towns and cities. The church bells rung of course, beginning at 4 o'clock in the morning and continuing their clanger at short intervals all day long. The day was intensely hot, and scarcely breath of air was stirring to mitigate the fierceness of the sun's burning rays.

Many persons left the city and sought pleasure at different points in the vicinity. Dr. Henry Carpenter entertained a large crowd of friends at his country place. Many of the most prominent gentlemen of the city and county were his guests, and this annual gathering was, as it has been for some years past, an exceedingly pleasant social assemblage. The genial and genuine hospitality of Dr. Carpenter is proverbial, and all who were present on Thursday will attest that nothing that could be furnished to add to the happiness of those assembled was wanting. At Landis' Woods a grand pie nie was held under the auspices of the "Social Club." Some two hundred fair maidens and more than that many gentlemen gathered to spend the day in social enjoy-ment. A large platform for dancing was erected, but it could not accommodate al. and not a few tripped it lightly on the green. An excellent dinner was served, choice refreshments were furnished and a good time generally was had. The only thing which occurred to mar the pleasure of the day was the misconduct of a young man named Charles Wise, who went on the ground in the afternoon under the influence of liquor. THE DAY AT LITIZ.

The Fourth was celebrated in the usual and time-honored manner at Litiz by a grand illumination of the Springs and Grounds in the evening. A large crowd of spectators from Reading, Columbia, our own city, and the surrounding towns and villages were present during the day and evening, the number being estimated at between five and six thousand. In the morning the principal attraction was a match game of Base Ball between two rival clubs from the borough of Columbia-the Mutual and the Columbia. Although the game was not fully played, owing to some disturbance which occurred, it resulted in favor of the Mutual, who were declared the victors. The following synopsis of the score will show that had the game continued the Mutual would have beaten the Columbia badly.

At the end of the second innings the seor stood for the Mutual 31, and for the Columbia 12; at the 5th the Mutual were only 3 ahead, but on the 7th were 10 ahead. On the 8th the Mutual had made 6 runs, and had two men on the bases, when some outsiders raised a dispute about the decision of the umpire, and the players all came in. In the afternoon the Spring Grounds were visited by all in search of a cool, refreshing spot. In the evening the illumination took place, and would have been a very brilliant and beautiful affair but for the rain and storm which set in. This also interfered with the display of fire works, of which the Committee had a very large and fine assortment. The Committee of Arrangements consisting of Messrs, R. R. Tshudy, F. W. Christ, and others, spared no efforts or expense to get up an appropriate and creditable celebration, and had made admirable arrangements for the illumination. The Ringgold Brass Band of Reading was present on the Spring Grounds and furnished elegant music.

The Litiz Springs Hotel, which is one of our finest and most popular Summer Resorts, was thronged by an immense crowd during the entire day. The obliging proprietors, Messrs, S. Lichtenthaeler & Sons, were unceasing in their endeavors to accommodate their guests, and they succeeded admirably, as they always do. The Hotel has been remodeled during the Spring, and is now all that could be desired. It is now rapidly filling up with summer boarders from the principal cities and towns in Pennsylvania and adjacent States.

REMEDIAN OF THE FOURTEENTH RECOV. LYN REGIMENT.-The 14th Regiment of ooklyn Volunteers arrived in this city on Friday evening from Gettysburg, where they had been participating in the ceremonies of that place on the Fourth. They were received at the Pennsylvania depot by a number of our citizens, some of whom had served with distinction in the late war and were escorted by them to the front of the Court House when his Honor, the Mayor, on behalf of the citizens of Lancaster, welcomed them to the hospitalities of the city, in substance as follows:

Major McNeal, Officers and Soldiers of the 14th Howkijn Regiment:
It gives me great pleasure, as the representative of the citizens of Lancaster, to welcome you to our midst. The Regiment, of which you formed a part, distinguished itself greatly by its heroic deeds and noble sacrifices during the terrible civil war through which the country was called upon to pass, and, side by side with the brave men of our own city and county, many o them yielded up their lives a willing sacrithem yielded up their lives a willing sacri-fice in order to maintain the integrity of the Government which had been handed down to us from our Revolutionary fathers. The terrible battles of the Peninsula, and the decisive and bloody conflict at Gettysburg, decisive and bloody conflict at Gettysburg, where under the command of the brave and lamented Reynolds you exhibited almost superhuman effort and courage, attest your patriotism, and have earned for you and your dead comrades an undying fame which will be cherished in all future time by your admiring countrymen. Your visit to Gettysburg and your contemplated visit to the tomb of your lamented commander are acts of patriotism peculiarly appropriate at this time, and show that their memory is is still cherished by you their surviving brethren in arms.

rethren in arms. Gentlemen: I will not detain you longer for I am sure that you are both hungry and thirsty, after the labors of the day. Our thirsty, after the labors of the day. Our fellow-citizens have prepared a collation for you, and I hope you will all do full justice to the table which has been so bountifully spread for your benefit. And now, in conclusion, permit me to again bid you thrice welcome to the hospitalities of the city of Lancaster; and may kind Heaven long preserve your lives, so that you may be useful to your country, and receive many more similar tokens of the affectionate regards of your fellow-citizens.

Major McNeal responded on behalf of the Regiment in a brief and appropriate spreach Regiment in a brief and appropriate speech after which they were escorted to Jonathan Sprecher's Hotel, where they partook of a sumptuous collation that had been prepared for them by the citizens. The Regiment then visited the grave of General Reynolds in the Lancaster Cemetery, in a body, and were also accompanied by their excellent band of music, as well as large number of our citizens .-The scene at the grave was truly impres sive, many of the war-worn and crippled veterans shedding tears as they viewed in solemn silence the last resting place of their beloved commander. On their return they were shown the city by gas light. They let on Saturday in the 9 o'clock train for Brooklyn, and all seemed pleased with their brief visit in Lancaster. They are a fine looking body of men, and deported themseives, during their brief stay in a very dignified and gentlemanly manner. The regiment was one of the brovest of e war, and served with distinction from the commencement to its close, when only 115 remained alive. THE EXCURSION OF THE EMPIRE HOOK AND LADDER COMPANY.—The members of he Hook and Ladder returned on Friday highly delighted with their excursion. On the morning of the 3d, after a short parade through our streets, they took the 11.15 train for Altoona, where they went by invitation to assist in dedicating the monument to the deceased soldiers of Blair county. At Harrisburg a delegation of citizens and firemen met the Company at the depot and extended them an invitation to stop on their return. This was accepted by Major Howell on behalf of the Com-The journey up the Juniata Valley and through the mountain ranges which herald the approach of the Alleghanies is a most delightful one, presenting a succession of charming and picturesque views. > THE FISH BASKETS .- Says the Sunbur Gazette: As the restoration of the shad fisheries in the Susquehanna river may be regarded as an accomplished fact from which the people of the Susquehanna country will derive great profit, measures should be adopted for the removal of the numerous fish baskets in the river which prove so very destructive to young fish, iFishermen say that thousands of young shad, salmon and other fish perish in these traps every summer and full. They are a nuisance and should be removed. We believe there is provision in the fish law recently passed, earing upon this point, and it should be enforced We expect to see a vigorous movement made this summer in attaching fish-ways to all the dams in the river. The success of the movement has been demonstrated beyond a doubt or cavil, and the interest inolved is so great that neglect or indifference on the part of the people would be almost criminal. Already the old fishing grounds, the deserted islands and sandbars which have been of no value since the disappearance of shad from the river, are belooked after, and the titles inquired into, in anticipation of future profits.

A young man asked an old gentleman for his daughter in marriage. The answer was, go into the orchard and bring in a parcel of apples. Give me one half of the parcel of apples. Give me one-half of the whole number, and to the mother one-half of the balance and half an apple over, and to the daughter one-half of the remainder and half an apple over and have one left for yourself without cutting an apple, then if she is willing you can have her. He solved the question and how many did he bring?

Western Cornfields.

Western Cornfields.

We learn from Western papers, and from travelers, that the corn is doing remarkably well. The ground having dried so as to permit a second working, the roots now are striking deep and spreading broad, while the dark green blades are fluttering in the breeze and shining in the sun. Everywhere it is from two to three weeks late. The retarded germ presses forward with a vigor it would not have exhibited if planting had been done in season. In the Arctic Zone, grass and flowers push through the incling snow, and, before the icy cold rivulets flow freely, the forests and the glades are green. The travelers say that the corn laughs. Everywhere, the hot July lays the foundation, if no mishap befall, of an abundant harvest in September.

The importance of the Western corn crop harvest in September.

The importance of the Western corn crop was never over-estimated. Upon it rests prosperity in trade and finance. It makes beef, pork, mutton, and wool; it gives heart to the dairy, muscle to men, and it freights fleets. It is the spinal column of American feets. It is the spinal column of American commerce. Few have an idea of the vastness—of our Western corn-fields. They spread through the Scioto, Muskingum and Miami bottoms, and interlock for 300 miles along the borders of Indiana and Ohio. They are to be found through the wide valleys of the White River and the Wabash, and interspersed with the oak timber to the verge of the Grand Prairie. Almost equally extensive are they on the beautiful prairies of Northern Indiana and Southern Michigan, completing a region 400 by 250 miles. If this is a broad country of corn, much broader is that of Illinois and Wisconsin; for here the fields extend 550 miles in one direction, and 200 in another. The soil has direction, and 200 in another. The soil has no superior on the globe, for it is of an average depth of two feet, and as favorable average depth of two leet, and as invorable for corn as a highly manured garden in a New England valley. Black and spongy, the foot presses on it as on a bed of moss. There, in a thousand localities, one may stand on rising grounds, and between him and the faint horizon of timber, he will see the note pressed in a thousand localities, one may stand on rising grounds, and between him and the faint horizon of timber, he will see nothing but corn. It is true there are other making but corn. It is true there are other making but corn.

This is not all. On his iron seat, the Western farmer drives, across his own land, the flashing, red two-borse cultivator, 500 miles west of the Mississippi, to the banks of the Big Blue in Kansas. He is also seen driving across Iowa, and is even following after the track-layers of the Pacific Railroad in Nebraska. You may see him, also, crossing the fertile plateaus of Minnesota toward the St. Peter's and the villages of toward the St. Feter's and the villages of the Red River of the North; for here, the sothermal line brings warm air from the South-West, permitting corn to mature. It is true that on the extreme borders, and on much intervening ground, wide sections remain to be cultivated; still, the pioneers are there; others will follow rapidly and fill all the wacancies. If all the Western corn-fields were placed together, there would be a solid block of corn at least 200 miles quare. - N. Y. Trib

Last Thursday afternoon, about five o'clock, a large crowd had assembled in the Fair Grounds of the Springville Union Agricultural Association, when a sharp thunderstorm came up. The run began to fall, and the crowd sought refuge from its effects in the exhibition sheds. A flash of lightning took place accompanied by lightning took place, accompanied by a oud peal of thunder, and instantly an awful spectacle was presented.

The lightning struck one of of the sheds which contained men, women and horses. About a hundred persons were paralyzed in an instant, falling on their faces, and as many as fifty were rendered insensible for five octan minutes, while about a dozen.

One woman was prostrated and deprived of her senses, but not of her power of locomotion; instinctively gathered herself up and ran to the omnibus, and was conveyed to Holmes' Hotel, and declares she had no knowledge of what took place after the flash until she found herself in a room at the house The lightning struck a post in the centre of the shed, against which Henry Tillou, the landlord of the West Falls Hotel, was the landlord of the West Falls Hotel, was leaning, and to which a horse was attached by a chain halter. The horse was killed instantly, while Mr. Tillou escaped by being dazed and knocked down. Another woman was struck on the should-er, the fluid passing down her side, raising a perfect blister in its course. A man from Otto was hit on the right side of the bead and on his recovery the mark was found to commence at the right eye, which was swelled like a puff ball, and could be plainv traced down the neck across the chest and off the left arm. The most fearful consternation existed among the people until it was discovered how light the injuries were that had been Inflicted, and the excitement was most intense.

If such thunderbols visit Fair grounds, other establishments may expect to be visited, but, thanks to the genius of the immortal Franklin, ample protection is afforded to all who avail themselves of the services of lightning rods.—Buffalo (N. Y.) Express. Queen Victoria and the King of Abyssinia.

In Abyssinie, as is very well known, the enraged king, whom Queen Victoria refused for a husband, has, in retaliation, made prisoners of a British Consul and several other Englishmen. The English Government, it appears, is at a loss how to procure the release of these prisoners. In the House of Lords recently, in answer to a question from Lord Redcliffe, the Earl of Derby stated that no reply had yet been Derby stated that no reply had yet been received to the last letters of the English Sovernment urging the immediate relief of Government urging the immediate relief of the prisoners; that, therefore, the presents which had been sent, and the artisans who had engaged to visit the country as a condition of the release of the prisoners, had not been forwarded; but that it was not prudent to state what further measures the government intended to adopt. The English Government is afraid of using force, and knows of no other means to effect the release of the cantives.

of the captives. Tennessee. Judge North, of Knoxville, Tennessee, has recently visited Boston, and made a speech to the board of trade. His subject was the good points of Tennessee, which, as he enumerated them, are in brief as follows: "A fertile soil in the farming districts; immense deposits of minerals in the mounminense deposits of minerals in the mountains; good grazing land on the Smoky Hills; sections of land evidently designed for vineyards and orchards; the three conditions of successful manufacturing—waterpower, timber and cheap labor; a climate peculiarly adapted to the Northern system; lastly a general deposition of process. lastly, a general depreciation of property, enabling the shrewd immigrant to get whatever he wants at a bargain." But then, as a drawback upon all this, Tennessee has Brownlow. If there is no foolish financial legislation during the present session of Congress, and if the crops are as large as they at present if the crops are as large as they at present promise to be, we may expect an era of cheapness compared with the prices to which we have been accustomed during the past four years. Manufacturers and merchants who look to the growing crops to help business next fall may as well understand first as last that increased sales can only be secured by lower prices. Unless they can sell cheaper trade will be no better in the fall than it was last spring. It is dile-in the fall than it was last spring. It is dide, therefore, to lay in stocks at the present high prices, expecting to get rid of them in the flush times of next fall. the flush times of next fall.

Let i: be understood, then, that abundance leads always to cheapness. If food in all its varieties is much lower, everything else of prime necessity must come down in price also. Cheap food means dry goods, the probability of the cheap food means dry goods, cheap hats and shoes; and let the working man bear in mind, cheaper labor. If the mass of workingmen are wise, they will not object to a slight concession in wages provided food is cheaper. To increase sumption it is indispensable that protion should be cheapened.—World.

CLIMAX.

A plain statement of facts. I inherited Scrofula and many of my relations have died of it. In 1839 my ase was trightful. Tumors and ulcers spread unti n 1842, under the advice of my physicians I went to Avon Springs. I received no benefit—tried ever Avon Springs. I received no benefit—tried every medicine and did everything I could. I had to rest my arm on a cushion, and had not been able to raise it to my head for over a year. The discharge from two ulcers was nearly a pint a day. Amputation was recommended; but pronounced dangerous. I could not sleep, and my sufferings were intolerable. A not sleep, and my sufferings were intolerable. A friend brought me an English physician who applied a salve with which he said he had accomplished extraordinary cures in the hospitals in England, it commenced to relieve; persisted in its use; it finally effected a perfect and entire cure. It is now 1848. It is five years since I had the appearance of ascrofulous sore, and my health has been good ever since. I procured the receipt of his wonderful article—this blessing of humanity—and have called it. "PAGE'S procured the receipt of his wonderful article—this lessing of humanity—and have called it "PARE'S CLIMAN SALVE," and allow the public to use it or not as they choose. transaction of the business of general advertising agents, are now generally admitted to be superior to those of any similar establish-nent in this country. Our special contracts with most of the leading newspapers through.

out the Eastern, Middle and Western States, give us advantages over all other agents, not only in the price at which we are enabled to contract for, but the position we secure for our customers in the columns of the newspapers, and the promptness and care with which all our advertisements are inserted.-

Persons interested in advertising should make hemselves acquainted with our facilities before contracting. We receive orders for all
