A Washington correspondent thus describes Butler's delivery of his speech on the opening of the impeachment trial;

For three mortal hours he bored the High Court of Impeachment with a harangue involving a wide range of subject which in the general run had very little to do with the immediate question under consideration. The speech is spoken of, oven by the admirers of Mr. Butler, as an excessively dull and feeble effort, tar short of the great expectations placed upon it. Mr. Butler read the formidable document, which covered thirty-eight printed pages, in a tone and gesture which would rather suggest mimicry than sober earnest. Mr. Butler's voice is the strangest ever mortal speaker saluted the public ear with. It resembles in its intonations the combined and varied noises of a cracked barrel organ and a chorus of built terriers in a street fight—now sharp and snappish, and again wheezy and rasping. Anybody who has ever seen and heard the manager of attravelling peep show, describing to a gaping audience of country bumphism the proture which illustrates the passage of the Alps by Napoleon with a cotton umbrella under his left arm will by hearing Butler on impeachment. The bottled orator read his speech and made about as much impression on his audience as he did on Fort Fisher.—Towards 3 o'clock a large number of the speciators left, evidently exhausted and disappointed, and commenting upon the effort in not complimentary epithets. The speciators left, evidently exhausted and it is considered itshelderlash will be pretty well exposed. Certainly impeachment starts under very unfavorable circumstants under very unfavorable circumsta scribes Butler's delivery of his speech on The New York Tribune public wing translation from Le Follet in regard A few years ago the ladies were repreach-d for having too indiscriminately appro-riated everything connected with the mas-uline tollet. Hardly any of these articles the ornaments most en vogue were her, nails, and other articles of tha lescription. At that time the cavaller style was considered the most elegant. At the foresent this is no longer the case, and as Dame Fashion has a predilection for striking contrasts, we suddenly adon the Forkan Dame rushion has a predifection for struc-ing contrasts, we suddenly adopt the Florian or pastoral style, in fact anything that is fresh, graceful, and occasionally a little affected. Ladies of tasto succeed in making spring poems of their toilets or recall Trianon, and the inspiration of Wat-teau, &c. There is even a tend-ency toward simplicity, and some-young married ladies adopt in their homes silk, shot color, or any other shade with lace sewed in rows or platted round them, with a long sash floating over the skirt. There'is nothing prettier than these small aprons on skirts of light shades. Flowers are also vindicated for the contempt which they long suffered and are now allowed a conspicuous place in every complete tollet. The following simple and very graceful costume for young ladies is an illustration of this: Blue Chambery gauze skirt on transparent white taffeta. The skirt is worn very long but quite plain. The lowneck waist is cut square and very low on a plaited raff; it is bordered by a blue ribbon fastened so as to float over the shoulders fastened so as to float over the shou and bosom, and is apparently held by an glantine. The belt is tied behind and fas-On account of the heroism displayed by the Princess Salm Salm in Mexico on be-haif of Maximilian, the Imperial family of Austria nave taken her under its protec-tion and placed a handsome competency at her disposal. This, for a Canadian ballet dancer, is pretty good. A blue velvet ribbon, tied round the neck, is fastened behind a similar floweret. This toilet is very graceful and is well adapted for dinner or small evening parties.

For skirts every material of changeable color is preferred, and the Marie Autoinette style is adopted not only in regard to the fashion, but to the colors worn at that period. For the same reason, wide stripes continue to be en vogue. Plain skirts tucked up en paniers on striped underskirts will consequently be done away with, and a number of small ruches of fibbon or silk scattered all over the costume robact them. The Menken has had snother triumph. She has won Swinburne, the poet of the passions, and been photographed at Loudon "in conjunction" with him. It makes even the big and busy town talk, and helps to let the outside world know what sort of a and vary from that of Bordeaux wine to Meternich green. Maize-color, scika, bronze, gray of every shade, and Pompadour, deserve likewise to be quoted. But two colors are used for a costume, and it is considered good taste for the ornament to be of a similar shade. As for the material, one of the richest Spring tolicts which has been noticed was a dress of Persian lline satin, a cloak detached from the shoulders in the style of pages or princes in fairy tales.—

The Princess of M—— wore a short gruy satin dress. Another princess, likewise swer them through the press:

HARMISBURG, Feb. 10th, 1768,
Dr. S. B. Hartman & Co. Gentr.—Mr. Abraham Martin, of this county, paid me a visit on the 10th of becember last. I observed an ulcer central his ear, and his eyes also were sore. On questioning him, he told me that he has several ulcers on this legs, and small ones all over his body, and even among the roots of his hair, with shooting pains along the bones.
I advised him to write to you, and see what you would say of his ease, knowing Dr. Hariman to be a practising physician of the olos when the shoot. CHARLES FORREY. The Princess of M—— were a snor gray sath dress. Another princess, likewise dressed in gray, bore on her arm the immense train of her dress. The latter style is generally adopted now. A capacin toilet has been observed, which is both original table and solve the style of the st has been observed, which is both original invorm and color; it had the pranter shape, the second skirt being tucked up in a very striking manner by the sash of capacin stilk. All these toliets are only the precursors of the fusitions of 1898, and will assume a more sottled character after the first races of the senson. It is expected that high head-drosses will be affected, and that bonnets will adapt a neutral attitude; the front will be two fingers in width, or a more diadom, ending in vail, may be worn.-Capacha bonnets are also made. Those are nothing but narrow fronts terminating in a Onpuch bonnets are also made. Those are nothing but narrow fronts terminating in a lace hood. The Spanish mantilla, with an idea of a bonnet, is likewise among the fishions of the day. Steel takes the p. ace of gold and jet for everything; fancy jowelry is all spangled with it. Lace and ribbons are also covered with this metal, for ornaments of skirts and dresses. For linen, I must quote the Marie Antoinette lace, or embroidered muslin mantalet, Lamballe collars, with ends fastened to the belt, Trianon collars, fastened on the object, stolemantelets of muslin or lace, and other styles, all ornamented with platts or ruches of ribbon and lace. The Gallows on Which nonovan was Hung.

The York Democrat has the following paragraph in regard to the gallows upon which Donavan was hung:

Anderson and Richards were convicted and hung in Lancaster county some years ago, for the murder of Mrs. Ream and Mrs. Garber, two old and decrept women who fed them at their table and treated them with all the kindness and hospitality immaginable. The murder was committed in the afternoon, during the absence of all the male members of the formit. After the maginable. The murder was committed in the afternoon, during the absence of all the male members of the family. After their victims were already dead the negroes cut their throats from ent to en, almost severing their heads from their bodies and then, to crown their britishity committed a nameless crime upon their persons which was confessed in prison. EXCEPT WHEN The New Orleans Bee says that the late Judge Tuney refused to receive greenbacks in payment of his salary, on the ground that the Constitution of the United States that the Constitution of the United States itself provides, in section i, article III., that "the Judges, both of the Supreme and Inferior Courts, shall receive for their services a compensation which shall not be diminished during their continuance in office." This, according to Judge Taney, inhibited the Treasurer from paying him in anything else than gold or silver coin, or its equivalent. Mr. Chase was then Secretary of the Treasury, and he refused to pay the Judge's salary excepting in greenbucks. But, adds the Bee, and upon information "from a high and responsible source." "it is a fact that since Mr. Chase, became Chief-Justice of the Supreme Court, the Judges have been paid their salaries in gold." The public is interested in knowing if this is so, and Chief-Justice Chase can give the information.—N. Y. World.
