and interest the figure was the conductive that the cold of ourse, to enter into any consideration of course, to enter into any consideration of Mr. Buchanan's public career, or to pronounce any judgment in particular on the policy of his administration as President of the United States. The time, indeed, has not yet; come for a fair, and competent historical verdict on this subject, in any quarter. We stand too near the vast and mighty struggle through which we have just passed, and from whose surging billows we have not yet fully escaped, to understand it properly or to estimate fairly its moral and political merits. properly of to estimate fairly its moral and political merits.

No such grand crisis in the history of a nation can ever be fully understood by the generation which has been immediately involved in its convulsionary movements. It will require the distance of half a century, at least, to place the world in a proper position for exercising a dispassionate and clear judgment on the history of our late war. To the calm inquisition of that coming time, rather than to the political passions of the present hour, must be committed the public reputation of the illustrious statesman to whose funeral solemnities we are called this day. Only this much, in justice to the dead, I may be permitted to say, in the form of two general observa-In the first place, we have no right to In the first place, we have no right to judge Mr. Buchanan's conduct at the beginning of our late civil troubles by the course of events subsequently, when the contingent became actual and the problematical certain, in many ways, which only the eye of Omniscience could previously forsee. How far this sort of cx-post facto judgement (cruel and wrongful in history, full as much been carried in the case before us, all who been carried in the case before us, all who care to look into the matter can easily see and know. Every man, every public man especially, has a right to demand that his opinions and actions should be measured by the circumstances and conditions of his own lime, and not by the circumstances and conditions of another, and it may be a wholly different time. Any other mode of judgment is at one grossly unhistorical, grossly unphilosophical, and I will also add grossly unchristian. My other observation is, that whatever other observation is, that whatever may be thought by others now or hereafter of Mr. Buchanan's Presidential adminisof Mr. Buchanan's Presidential administration on the eve of the rebellion, he himself never changed his mind in regard to the righteousness or wisdom of the course which he saw proper to pursue. That his own policy was thwarted and overwhelmed by another policy, altogother different, never led him to believe that in the circumstances of the country, as they then were, his own policy was not right. "Had I to pass through the same state of things again"—he would say calmly but firmly—"I do not see, before God, how I could act otherwise than I did act." han I did act." This of course does not prove that his This of course does not prove that his course was the wisest and best for the exigencies of that fearfully volcanic time, as they came to view afterwards in the lava flames of our civil war, but no one who was intimately familiar as I have been with the last years of Mr. Buchanan's life could doubt, at all events, the sincerity of his own convictions, thus expressed in regard to the closing portions of his political career. Whether absolutely wise or not mall his counsels he was in this time, that career. Whether absolutely wise or not mail his counsels, he was, in this time that tried men's souls, honest at least, conscientious and patrictically true to what he conceived to be the highest interests of hi Country.

But these political surroundings of the But these polifical surroundings of the presept solemnities, however they must unavoidably crowd upon our thoughts while we are engaged in it, form not by any means what we should all feel to be, for us now, its main interest. The relations of time, however otherwise vast and momentous, are here to-day swallowed up and made small by the relations of eternity. Mr. Buchanan has passed away, not simply as a politician and a stateman, but as a Christian, and this it is we now feel, standing between the standing that is the second section. , and this it is we now feel, standing b his collin and his grave, to be a distinction of the infinitely higher account than all the honors and dignities of his life, under any honors and dignities of his life, under any other form.

These, at bost, are but of ophemeral significance and worth. One generation of politicians passeth away and another generation comoth. Where are the voices that thirty or forty years ago filled our Congressional halls and electrified the land with their advances words? Is lines and presidents, the ional halls and electrified the land with their cloquent words? I hings and presidents, the princes of the earth—terrestrial gods, as they are sometimes called—are like other men. "All flesh is as grass, and all the glory of man as the flower of grass; the grass withbreth and the flower thereof fall-eth away, but the word of the Lord endureth forever." And where do we find this enduring word of the Lord in fall presence. orday, to-day and forever.

Happily, the venerable sage of Wheat-land, as he has sometimes been called, sought and found what he himself was ready to acknowledge as something better than all the greatness of the world, an humble, but strong trust in the atoning rightensusses of Christ, which brightened the whole evening of his life, which proved to be the strength of his spirit when heart and lesh began to fail, and which now makes his death but the quiet sleep that precedes the morning of the resurrection. He died in the Lord; this is our great confort in following him to the grave. We sorrow rday, to-day and forever. dlowing him to the grave. We sorrow of as those who have no hope. "For if we ionowing nim to the grave. We sorrow not as those who have no hope. "For if we believe that Jesus ched and rose again, even to them also which sleep in Jesus will God hring with him."

Dr. Nevin continued at length, speaking knowingly and feelingly in reference to AFTER THE CEREMONY. A large number of persons who had not reviously been privileged to view the ecensed filed through the hall and took a property of the hall and took a property decensed their through the half and took a hist view of the Ex-President, Among them was a large delegation of the Demo-cratic Association of Pennsylvania, from Philadelphia. ON THE ROUTE.

The side-walks along the streets through which the procession passed to the Cometery were crowded by thousands of people, all bearing an impression of seriousness befitting the solomn occasion. The streets would have been uncomfortably dusty had not some members of the Humane Fire Co. thoughtfully brought out their hose and sprinkled them from the extreme end of West King street to Centre Square, a distance of three-quarters of a mile. It is estimated by the best judges that not less than twenty thousand people were either in the procession of looking on at the mournful pageant as it passed through the streets in which the stately form of James Buchenan had been a familiar figure for so many years. The whole population seemed to feel that the city of Lancaster had not only lost its most distinguished man, but that the masses had lost a kind and devoted friend, this Lodge, who died at his residence, "Wheatland," near this city, on Monday last.

Mr. Buchanan became a member of our order in the year 1816. From the time he was first raised to the sublime degree of a Master Mason, he exhibited treat admiration for the tenets of Free Masonry, and made marked progress in our mysteries. Exemplery in his conduct, persevering in the practice of every virtue, he soon gave evidence of that merit which entitled him to Masonic privileges and honors. In 1822, he was elected Worshipful Master of this lodge and filled the office for one Masonic year. Skilled in the noble science of the royal art, true and trusty, he discharged his dutles with fidelity, leaving, when he retired from his honorable position, a trestle-board which would bear most critical inspection.

I need not, on this mournful occasion, detain you by referring to the many noble qualities which adorned the character of our brother in private as well as in public life. I need not tell you how his native State, nay, how the nation lavished honors upon him. These facts are familiar to all, and when written by a faithful historian, will illumine a page in American history. In private life he was pure and uprightfull of sincerity—a giver of charity without ostentation. As a lawyer he was eminent, fearless, indefatigable and conscientions. As a public servant he exhibited inflexible fidelity to his trust, and meant to be true to the faith of the fathers of the Republic.

His work is finished. The Grand Master of the Universe has removed him from the cares and troubles of this transitory existence in the Lodge on Earth to a state of endless duration in the Lodge on high.

Like all men he had his faults. None are perfect. Let us, however, commend and imitate his virtues—and as we drop a tear over his grave, let us, as worthy members of an ancient and honorable fraternity, cast around his foibles the broad mantle of five around his folbles the broad mantle of MAsonic Charity.

H. S. Gara moved that a committee of five
(of which the W. M. shall be chairman) be

The naked dogs were very rare animals, the only other one of the kind I know of being owned by my much esteemed friend, I.M. Johnson. The stuffed owls were splendid specimens of the genus "Booby," and were shot expressly for Mr. H's. Menagerie, by his special agent, on the towering hills which overlook the Safe Harbor shad fishery.

It is true, however, that several of the four negro ministrels who had been clothed and painted at great expense, got very thirsty towards afternoon, owing to the high temperature of the air under the canvass, and the beer which they drank to quench it not agreeing with them, their performance was therefore suspended. This however, was not Booggy's fault, and to my own knowledge he was in despair at the untoward occurrence.

The Musical Organs are, also, very cuitous, and difficult to describe. Directly under the shoulder of the wing on each side of the chest there is a beautiful membrane, somewhat triangular, convex, and ribbed with bornyridges. This membrane resembles a small shell, and is stretched over a cavity in the chest, the lower angle connected internally with a strong muscle. On the breast there are two large scales; one on each side, firmly attached to the breast above but free below. On bending the body back ward these scales, are elevated and expose two large cavities, also covered with extremely fine and silken like membranes. DANIEL BAKER. DR. CARBALL'S VEGETABLE CORDIAL! The only known Cure for the Gravel, Diabetes, Weakness and Inflammation of the Kidneys and Urinary Organs. Dr. Carrall has made the diseases of the kidneys his special study for several years, and is now able to put before the public

A PERFECT CURE FOR THE SAME. A FERFECT CURE FOR THE SAME.

The following are evidence, so of the kidneys being affected: First, a distress in the small of the back when walking, standing or lying too long, especially when first getting up in the morning, or in case of too much exercise. This is generally followed by a distress in the sides, stiffness of the limbs, swelling of the limbs and stomach, also a tendency to dropsy, shortness of brea il and rheumatic pains. This is an affection of the kidneys. Fersons may know this by feeling worse when having cold, and in this case the urine will have a very high color. Know people are confined to their homes with that the same and have given up to die with the dropsy or rheumatism. DIABETES. This is a weakness or inflammation kidneys and urinary organs, causing requend discharges of urine both day and night; thes discharges being at times uncontrollable, a other times with much pain and disagreeabl burning. THE GRAVEL.

THE GRAVEL.

This is a stone, caused by a sediment which collects at the kidneys when they fall to set freely; then passing through the urinary channels into the bladder, there becomes an increasing stone. All this is caused by the kidneys not performing their proper functions. The experience of thousands is that Dr. Carrall's Cordial Will Dissolve This so that it will pass without pain, clear out all that sediment from which they collect, and stimulate the kitdeys to their proper action, therefore remove all the above mentioned trouble. The use of this article, from one to three months, will cure the most severe cases. PRICE ONE DOLLAR.

PRICE ONE DULLAR.
