Grant on the nomination of Soymour, gives the following impartial account of the condition of the political canvass as viewed at the Capitol of the number of the term of the capital of the number of the point at twice it was a state of the capital is just now the point at which reports from all parts of the country accumulate in regard to the political situation. It is the depository of information furnished by leading men engaged in the canvass in all the States, varied, of course, according to the political bias of those who send forward the data upon which the friends of Grant and Seymour base their calculations. To what extent these statements are rollable as the only basis upon which to rely for such speculations as 1 propose to give in this letter touching the political situation. The resident members of the Democratic Executive committee affirm with confidence that the following States are certain to go for Seymour and Biair:- New York, Connectiout, New Jorsey, Pennsylvania, Delawaro, Maryland, Missouri, Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana, the three Pacific States and all the Southern States sin 1111inois, Michigan and Wisconsin Sin Jinformations favor the radical success in them and Elorida. The canvass in 111inois, Michigan and Wisconsin is being vigorously contested, and while the indications favor able advices are received from Wi-consin. Even in the most favorable advices are orgents of the we England States are of the memory for the radical success of the orgent form with confidence the theory of concress. The reports from the mast radical of the New England States and callence form the most radical succes form the mast radical of the New England States and england the provide of the set form the most radical of the New England States and england the southers of Concress. the Capitol of the nation :

advices are received from who shows in Even in the most radical of the New England States the Democrats count upon some gains in members of Congress. The reports from Maine correspond with those already given by the Herald's correspondent, which in-dicate a reduced Republican majority. On the other hand the Republican Central Committee here profess to have informa-tion upon which they ground, in many re-spects, very different conclusions. They tactly concede the ioss of New York, but they are hopeful of carrying Ohio and Peunsylvania. They claim all the West-ern States, but are distrustful of the South and while they are hopeful as to the general result the disinterested observer cannot fail to notice the most positive evidences of anxiety and alarm. nxiety and alarm. for this condition of the political srow for this condition of the political sentiment, as shown by the representative men of the two parties, there are natural causes that are capable of explanation and appreciation by all whose minds are not imbuod with partison malignity and preiu-dice much partison malignity and preiuimbucd with partism malignity and preju-dice. Those who view the situation from an unselfish stand point do not fail to be impressed with the signs of a political revo-lution. They forcese that the popular voice will demand a change and that such a re sult is inevitable unless the Democrats by impressed with the signs of a political revo-lution. They foresee that the popular voice will demand a change and that such a re-solt is invertiable unless the Democrats by the inauguration of or persistence in some flagrant folly stay the tide that is apparent ly drifting them into power. The evidences of such a result seem to be conclusive, and it will be attributable only to the logic of events and the desire of the people for a change of rulers. This assumption is easily demonstrated. The action of the New York Convention was most unexpected to the party. It failed to place coveted and popu-lar names in nomination. It had been conceded that to insure success it was indispensable to resort to some expedient that would divide the radical party and draw from it a large proportion of those who, during the past eight years, had identified themselves with its organiza-tion. Favorite and popular names were repudiated, and a finat choice was achieved by a resort to strategy. During the progress of the canwass there have been no develop-ments of enthusiasm in favor of the nomi-nees. The personal merits of the candidates are not discussed, but the whole system of warfare is based upon the radical policy and upon the establishment of a system that will relieve the white population of the de-gradation imposed by turning the nego-olement to political account. Another cause for the changes to which reference has been made is referable to the candidates of the radical policy and upon the establishment of a system that will relieve to white population of the de-gradation imposed by turning the negor idement to political account. Another cause for the changes to which reference has been made is referable to the chandidates of the radical policy and upon the signal for a discus prevy day made manifest, a popular candidate. His name is not the signal for account.

manifest, a popular caudidate. His name is not the signal for enthusiastic demonstra-lons among the masses. While this is a rruth too palpable for cavil, it is the fact that be was for a long time the coveted candidate of both parties, on account of bis supposed availability. It may be accounted for by the simple announcement that he is no politician. His participation in the Stanton litician. His participation in the Stanton oblician. His participation in the Stanton unpleasantness" was a scriotis damage to iin, simply because it identified him with political quarrel in which he had no in-erest, save to the extent to which he could id a few politicians, and from the nature of the case he became the oxtensible advo-ate and delender of a man whose immodest pertinacity disgusted and wearded the peo-le and added its moiety to the burden of varion. Subsequently, by the scheming axation. Subsequently, by the scheming f politicians, he was drawn into the im chment vortex, which covered its pro peters with confusion and is lending its peters with confusion and is lending its potent aid to bury them politically. In addition to the causes already enumerated which are apparently drifting the demo-cratic party into power, there are others discernable from this political eminence whose preponderating influence must add no little weight.

Signs of the Coming Political Bevolut. The Washington correspondent of the N. Y. Horald, a paper which came out for Grant on the nomination of Soymour, gives Corresponding with that memorable can-of the South.

whose preponderating influence must add no little weight. The President and his Cabinet, with two exceptions are unquestionably inversableto the success of Seymour and Blair. Mr. Johnson will not, of course, assume the hibition of his anxiety for the defeat of those who have thwarted the success of his ing volunteers, and was largely instru-ing volunteers, woluteers, wo hibition of his anxiety for the deleat of those who have thwarted the success of his measures and sought to depose him for per-sistence in the course to which, in his judg-ment, his oath and duty bound him. With a dignified and judicious adherence to the line he has hitherto pursued, his influonce will inevitably be felt. The Secretary of State, while sympathizing with the Presi-dent upon all questions of governmental policy, and holding, as may be inferred, coinciding views upon most subjects with the democratic nominees, will adhere to his nacient ennity to Mr. Seymour, and ignore his principles out of dislike for the man, A practical and popular comment hero up-on Mr. Seward's peculiar course is, that "to be consistent the must be inconsistent." Secretary Browning is a cautions man and does not hastily place his political views upon record. No one questions his desire for the success of the democratic ticket, nor that be will long delay in deching himself clearly and emphatically. Mr. Evarts is undoubtedly conservative in his views, but as the newly appointed full accord with the democracy. He had nowhere else to go.

 In connection with this subject someting may be said of the republican Senators who voted against impeachment of the Radical party. Cinemanti Enquirer.
 whom Garret Davis denominated "the seven murdered men of the Senate".
 shall not assume that any of them will openly favor the democratic nominees, but that some of the milling.
 Sonator Fowler by the violence of his radical persecutors has been driven so far from participation and sympathy with his stance is a watering to its support. Under such circumstances he will survive its defeat. Senator for burial.
 Stall support. Under such circumstances is quietly enjoying the watering places, an infifterent spectator of the string places, an infifterent spectator is impeachment vote. It is conceded that Mr. Van Winkle ing evils that be accused was taken to Now Winkie to the sustain his impeachment vote. It is conceded that Mr. Van Winkle Ing to its support. Other such the interna-stances he will survive its dofeat. Senator Grimes is quietly enjoying the watering places, an indifferent spectator of the strife for power. Senator Henderson is looking on in Missouri, with the possible chance of seeing his State sustain his impenchment vote. It is conceded that Mr. Van Winkle is powerless in Virginia, and that his State will be democratic. In the face of continued demunciations Mr. Fessenden will be pas-sive, and for the same reason, and in view of his late affliction, Senator Trumbull will not participate in the canvass. The question of a September assembling of Congress is regarded as another indica-tion of the unxiety and distrust of the friends of Grant and Colfax. The ostensibile object of calling Congress together at that time is to devise ways and menus to save the Southern States. The most engacions re-

of calling Congress together at that time is to devise ways and means to save the Southern States. The most sugacions re-publicans do not besinte to declare that the democrats have practised seductive arts upon the niggers and won them to the sup-port of Seymour and Bhair. This result has long been apparent, but while they had confidence in carrying most of the Northern States they were willing to risk the concest and to succrite their reputation for skill in the art of reconstruction. Wild the indications of changes North, South and everywhere a feeling of alarch has set in and many of the is ders are disposed to listen favorably to the cry of the context Southern vote. Still there is with many an adverse feeling to this course. A Southern lobby elamoring for help would produce a deplorable revelation of weakness, and add its convincing testimony to the rottenness of the Congressional mote of reconstruction. Nothing abort of transferring the power of choosing electors from the people of the Legislatures would avail, and this, besides disgusting the people of the North, would result in a future serious and possibly a disastrous conflict. The democrate do not objet to a September seesion. They con-tend that it would call of the redical snearobject to a September session. They con-tend that it would call off the radical speakobject to a September session. They con-tend that it would call of the radical speak-ers who cannot be spared; that there would be a repetition of the delamand for legislation solely in the interest of the radical party and involve a reiteration of those damaging declarations in which speakers have indulg-ed in their anxiety for party perpetuation. They also believe that the radical portion of Congress has lost much of its party ad-hesiveness, and that this element of strength has been greatly impaired by the death of Thaddeus Stevens, who, during his en-feebled condition, exerted his private coun sels with salutary effect. An extraordinary session, under the aggravating circum-stances which would call it together, would be a scene of strife and struggling for the mantle of the great leader, and of constant dissensions and condicting projects in the humiliating effort to save the party from defeat by special legislation, in response to the cry of distress whose notes are now pieroing the country and affording edifica energy.

Andrew C. Gray, James D. Auld and Wm. H. Senvener were named as Electors to support Seymour and Biar. In adopting a State platform, the follow-ing resolution, which was passed by the State Convention in June, was again af-firmed as one of the party principles: Resolved, That the elective franchise is a political privilege and not a natural right, and is to granted or withheld by the sev-eral States to their respective inhabitants as in the free sound judgment and discre-tion of each State shall be deemed best for the public interest and welfare.

Bargiars Rob a Newly Married Couple by filenas of Chloroform-The Bride Not Expected to Live We learned yesterday of a robbery which was committed on Monday night last, in the western part of the city, upon a newly married couple by means of chloroform, the effect of which, it is thought, will cause the death of the bride.

married couple by means of chloroform, the effect of which, it is thought, will cause the death of the bride. The couple were married early on the night mentioned, and after the usual festivi-ties overybody in the house retired. Some-time during the night some negro burglars climbed upon a shed in the rear of the house, and easily gamed access to the bed-chamber of the young couple, to whom they administered chloroform, and then ransack-ed the room, taking out of it everything of ralue and placed the plunder on the shed of the house adjoining. Into that house the rascals also went, and proceeded to clear it out of valua and placed the plunder on the shed some noise, which aroused the inmates, and the burgins becoming frightened, ran off, leaving all the goods on the shed, which were recovered in the morning. The young husband awoke late the next morning, and ascertained that the room had been robbed. The peculiar small in the room in a moment fold him that the thieves had used chloroform to accomplish their purpose. He attempted to awaken his bride, but could not, and up to yesterday afternoon she still remained in an uncon-isolus state. It is thought that the cannot recover.—Savannah, Ga., News, August 27.
