To Campaign Subscribers.

With this issue the term of our Campaign subscribers expires, but, to enable as many of them, as desire to do so, to receive the INTELLIGENCER permasently, and without intermission, we have concluded to send to each of them two more numbers. This we do, with the expectation that a large proportion of them will become yearly subscribers. To all such we hereby offer to send the INTELLIGENCER until January, 1st, 1870, for the sum of two dollars. We hope all will continue with us. They can not invest two dollars more profitably. How Presidents are Elected. The modus operandi of electing a Presi-dent after the Presidential electors have been chosen may not be familiar to all, so we condense from the Philadelphia Ledger an account of the process. This Constitu-tion provides that the electors, chosen in such manner as the Legislature of each State may prescribe, shall meet in their re-spective States and vote by ballot for Presi-dent and Vice President. At the meetings, known as "electoral colleges," the electors they vote for, and the number of votes cash for each, which lists of the persons they vote for, and the number of votes cash for each, which lists they are required to sign and certify, and transmit scaled to the sign and certify, and tra ate of the United States, 23880 3987 $\frac{14671}{3412}$ $25487 \\ 4082$ at the seat of Government. The Marquis of Hastings.

We are informed by cable telegram this morning that the Marquis of Hastings, at morning that the Marquis of Hastings, at once of the most noble, most unprincipled, and most dissipated patrons of the British turf, has gone to his fathers. Dying in his twenty-sixth year, having worn himself out with dehauchery, whe, women and horses, he was a fair but advanced example of the model modern young British noble. With an income of one hundred thousand pounds a year, this man's total assets will not prob-ably buy his executor a gold souff-box. He was a first-class blackleg. At the age when young men of modorate means are about to enter college and propare themsolves for the battle of life, this scapegrace had thirteen mistresses; his name was known and famil-

Grant's position in relation to the Re-publican party. He states that after the General was nominated he sat for quite a long time carefully reading and pondering upon the platform adopted by the Conven-tion; that he finally expressed to bis con-idential friends that he did not like it, and was to react donby whether he would account as zero in the record of standing. They at once opened upon him with avery concivable argument they could bring for-ward to induce him to accept, one of which arguments was that the platform need not be regarded by him in so serious a light—li was simply an enunciation of the genoral principles of the party, necessary only to make up the issues of the campaign. They (disregarded, therefore disregarded, therefore "Resolved, "That we, students of said Williams College, declaro:our connection with said College to cease from this data until the authorities of said College shal repeat the abyea maniloged rule." urged him to accept at all events, and to say nothing more about the platform. Many other arguments of a similar charac ter were used, it is said, which gave Grant to understand that they wanted him to accept the nomination, if even it had to be on a platform of his own adoption.— Washing-ton Cor.
