The Hall in 84. Leuis.

IFrom the 83, Louis Republican, April 20,1

For twenty minutes, minutes which seemed lengthened into hours, these missiles, varying in size from a quarter of an inch to an inch and a quarter in diameter, fell as thicsly as snow flakes; and, driven by the angry blast, struck with the force of bullets. They were of a jagged, irregular shape, resembling that which molton lead assumes when thrown out to cool; the centre being of a white, opaque substance, and covered with pure, transparent ice, twisted by the fingers of the frost into a thousand fantastic forms. One of them plaked up on Carondelet avenue weighed 25 cunces. Of the quantity some idea may be gained by a single incident. Balley & Co.'s Circus was sperforming on the Lindell lot, and the proprietors, fearing the tent might be demolished, let down the center so that it assumed the shape of a huge funnel. When the storm was over no less than fifty bushels of hall were removed! The force with which it came may be judged from the fact that a negro on Third street was knocked down by three of the stones striking him on the head at once. Individuals unable to gain a shelter were severely wounded, and there are rumors that one or two persons in the northern part of the city were killed outright. Quarter Sessions Court. Tuesday Afternoon.—Court re-assembled at half-past 2 o'clock.

The case of Leonard K. Seltzer, indicted for the larceny of a watch and chain, was for the larceny of a watch and chain, was not given to the jury until half-past four O'clock,
Benjamin Kapp was indicted for the lar-ceny of two turkeys, from John Brill—re-siding about three-quariers of a mile from the Lancaster county line, in Dauphin county, on the 28th of October last. The county, on the 28th of October last. The prosecutor stated that he saw the defendant and two others—Sam and Joe Musser, in a swagon, together, near Redsecker's Mill at seven o'clock in the evening, and afterwards saw Musser's wagon, between eleven and twelve o'clock, within 100 yards of his house. The principle evidence connecting if Kapp with the larceny depended on the confession of Sam and Joe Musser, after they had been detected; when they admitted that all three were together and stole the turkeys, and the next morning sold them at Marietta. The jury retired and the Court adjourned.

Ignored Bills.—The indictment against John Hardecker for larceny, was ignored; also those against John Stein and Frederick Miller, severally charged with assault and battery, were ignored, with county for costs. costs.

ROBBERIES AT THE CIRCUS.—On Monday several robberies were committed during the evening performance by, doubtless, a gang of light fingered gentry, who usually follow circuses, and some of our own well spotted depot loafers.

Mr. A. Bard was relieved of a gold watch; a gentleman from Rapho lost his purse, and James Devine came near parting with the same valuable article, as he felt a hand at his pocket as he reached up for his ticket; but, in consequence of the crowd around, could not detect the thief, although he was quick enough to prevent the consummation of the gentleman's polite intentions.

Three young town scoundrels, named Harry Weaver, Lippincott and Hinder, were charged last night by one of the showmen with stealing a valies from the tent. They were seen to make off with it after the show was out and when the tent was being taken down, but being pursued closely they show was out and when the tent was being taken down, but being pursued closely they threw it into the lot of Constable John McCutchen, Mrs. McCutchen being in the garden at the time. She gave the valise to the showman, who waited about for awhile to see if they would return for it; shortly after Weaver came along, looking over the fence, when he was grabbed by the man. He at first denied and even swore he did not know anything about it, but, upon being promised that he would not be prosecuted, he at last owned up to the theft and gave the name of his accomplices.
