As most persons flid it convenient to accept the judgment of bankers or experts in the matter of permanent investments, thefollow-ing concerning Messrs. Fisk & Hatob, which we take from the New York Methodist, bears we take from the New York Methodisi, bears directly on that point: The safe and profitable investment of money realized from the sale of Government bonds, at a high premium, and the accumulating cap-ital which no longer finds in the Government an eager and profitable borrower, is a matter of much auxious thought and inquiry. During the past few years, while the Govern-ment debt has absorbed the bulk of the iner-capital of the contry, other kinds of morable sconreducatly selling at comparatively low figures. That some of these are as as a at the bonds of the Government is anguestionable. That many of them have no substantial basis of security is equally trae.
