The Cry of Corruption. Those Radical journals, wl engaged in declaring that the action of the Democrats in voting for Gen. Irwin is evidence that corrupt means were employed, are arguing in a very illogical manner. The Democratic members de-cided in caucus to defeat the man who was the representative candidate of the Republican party. Mackey was the choice of Senators Cameron and Scott, of Covode. Forney and a large majority of the prominent men who lead the Radical party in Pennsylvania. To defeat such a candidate was to strike a blow at the corrupt combination which has ruled the Republican party in this Viewed merely in the light State. Viewed merely in con-of a stroke of party policy the acminority perfectly justifiable, But they had higher object in view. The people agement of the affairs of the State Treasury, and the Democrats in the their power to effect it. With Mackey rs-elected there would have been very little chance for accomplishing the de-breaking of the caucus slate. The people will be the gainers, and we do not think the Republican members who helped to accomplish the result will have much difficulty in answering to their constituents for the course they pursued.

The Findlay-Scull Case.

The State Senate have had a warm time over the contested seat in the 20th Senatorial District. The Radical members heldacaneus and a majority of them to save coal he has altered radically with the party in power we are glad to notice that there are two Republicans in the Senate of Pennsylvania who can not be forced to commit an outrage by the lash of party drill.

Mr. Warfel was which the charge was freely made that his competitors were fully committed to Mackey's re-election and receiving support from him. Such being the case, i was to be expected that Mr. Warfe would oppose the re-election of Mackey. ow that Mr. Billingfelt did no approve of the manner in which Mackey was nominated a year ago. He told us so at the time. The position which Committee appointed to investigate the remagement of the State Treasury placed him in a position which rendered his voting for either of the candidates a very delicate, if not an entirely improper thing. We think he acted wisely in declining to vote.

Restaurant keepers will take the same course. The argument of the hotel keepers is that their business is of a private character, and that they have the right to refuse to do business with whom they please, black or white. The common law as to hotel or inn keeper has been ceive all proper persons resorting to his house as travellers. Whether they can be sustained in refusing to accept negroe as proper persons, is to be determined i Courts. If the negroes were not stone blind as to their own interests, they would not force such an issue upon the courts; but, hoodwinked by white scal lawags and partisans, they first make war for mixed schools, and now for mixed bed and board, as well as mixed liquors, in the restaurants. The Elkton Whig calls the attention of the Maryland Legislature to the fact that the murderous method, now employed by gunners on the flats at the mouth of the Susquehanna, are driving the celebrated canvas-back ducks from their favorite feeding ground. The Whig says that they will disappear from those waters if not protected. In the name of epicures in general we call for the passage of a law for the protection of this most delicious water-fowl. If driven from the flats which lie at the junction of the pure waters of the Susquehanna with the brackish waves of the Cheappeake, the canvas-back duck proper will be stricken from bills of fare forever.
