The Rumored Attempt to Assassinate Prince Arthur.

The rumor of an attempt to assassinate Prince Arthur, which was telegraphed over the country on Saturday evening seems to be without foundation. The New York correspondence of the Philadelphia Ledger says:

"After the royal party had left the Brevoort House, a suspicious looking character approached a detective who had been detailed to watch his movements, and presenting a revolver at his (the detective's) head told the officer "he had better leave as quickly as possible." The detective at once summoned other officers to his aid, and while these were disarming ruffian No. 1, seven or eight other roughs apeared on the scene.

A severe fight then ensued, but the ruffians were finally captured and marched off to the Twenty-ninth precinct station house, where their names were registered as Patrick Mulhide, Charles D. Gardner, Wm. Murphy, John Lough and Michael McNulty. Lough is a native of England, Gardner hails from Yonkers, Westchester county, and Murphy and Mulhide are Irishmen.

As deadly weapons were found on their persons, and the men declined to explain why they were hanging about the residence of Mr. Stoughton, the disposition with some persons is to come to the conclusion that they intended to shoot the Prince.

It is proper to say that Mr. Stoughton denies that there was any intention to assassinate or otherwise harm the Prince. The story published in one of the evening papers, that he had to leave by the back door, he also says is a canard. At the police office, it is also stated, that the men under arrest are charged with drunkenness, and not with the attempted assassination of anybody. So a very great mountain has been made of a minute molehill.

The Prince and his attendants left for Boston in the 3 o'clock P. M. train, having previously called upon one or two of the Wall street bankers, who urged him to visit the Gold Room and the Stock Exchange, courtesies which had to be declined for lack of time.

A Four-footed Whnt-Is-It?

The scene is in Oakland Township, Louisa Co. Mr. Peter Houtz, a resident of that locality, known as a gentleman of veracity, informs us that, for several months past, an animal of singular aspect had been prowling around the township, frightening men, women and children, and attacking and killing dogs, though, strange to say, it has never been known to injure or destroy stock. It was first seen last August, by Mr. H. Keys, near the residence of Cyrel Carpenter. Since that time different parties have run after it, but none have been prepared, or could muster sufficient courage to attack it. When it finds itself discovered, it manifests no disposition to fight, but, on the contrary, trots off to more sentimental quarters. Last Friday, Mr. Daniel Bedwell, a resident of the township, while out hunting, encountered the animal, and pursued it about five miles, but was unable to overtake it. During the chase it leaped across Crooked Creek, a distance of some 18 feet, with the agility of a cat. Mr. Bedwell who had a very near view of it several times, and who has lived in the West several years and is familiar with the various animals that have inhabited this part of the country, says it is neither a lynx, panther nor any other kind of a quadruped that he ever knew. He describes it as being of a color between a red and a gray, nearly the size of a panther, and with hind legs about one-half as long as the fore legs. It has a hissing, screaming cry, quite terrifying to persons not accustomed to hearing it. A grand hunt is being organized among the residents of the neighborhood it infests, for the purpose of capturing it. Its presence in Oakland Township is, of course, a mystery. Some account for it on the supposition that it is one of a cage of animals which according to a current report, recently broke loose and escaped from a circus in Missouri.—Muscatine, Iowa, Journal.

An Elephant on the Rampage.

The Somersville (Indiana) Times says that during the temporary absence of the keeper, not long since, the elephant Jenny Lind, belonging to the Van Amburgh Menagerie, now wintering in that place, determined to free herself from bondage and exhibit herself free of charge. Her first performance was to try if it were possible to upset the building in which she was confined, but, finding she was unable to push the solid masonry from its foundation, she seized the stout, oaken, which stood in close proximity, deliberately lifted the frightened beast out of his stall with her trunk, held him poised in mid-air, then dashed him violently to the ground, a lifeless mass. Not satisfied, one of the sacred cattle shared the same fate. Everything was in the wildest confusion; lions, tigers, and all the wild beasts, terrified by her unusual fury, made the building ring with roars, trying to burst their bars and escape. Mr. Winner, the lion-tamer, tried, both by coaxing and threatening, to pacify her majesty until the return of the keeper, but without success, and at one time Mr. Winner says she made her chains ring like a harp-string. If she had succeeded in escaping she would have inevitably demolished the whole establishment, animals, and the damage they would have done in the surrounding country could not be realized. Word was instantly sent to the keeper, Mr. Nash, and he arrived on the scene just in time. Her royal highness was so blinded by her rage that she did not recognize him, as usual, by his bootstop; but the moment she heard his voice, accompanied by his terrible spear, he forced her to immediate subjection, and she trembled and begged for mercy most pitiably.'

Two Negroe Horse Thieves Taken Out of Jail and Hanged to a Tree.

NASHVILLE, Feb. 1.—Two negroes were taken from the Lebanon jail and hung under the following circumstances: A short time since two negroes named respectively Jerry Young and Bob White, known to have been desperate and bad characters, who had been very successfully their business for a long time without being detected, stole some horses and a lot of cotton from parties living not a great way from Lebanon. The two parties were arrested, and on a preliminary examination were put in the Lebanon jail to await a further trial. There being no particular exasperation manifested against them at the time of their incarceration, no unusual precautions were deemed necessary either to prevent the negroes from making their escape or to protect them from suspected violence. Between the hours of ten and twelve o'clock on Friday night a large party of men, numbering nearly thirty, surrounded the jail, and called out the jailor. They demanded of the jailor admittance and the keys. Not having the power to be complied with in their demand. On getting the keys the party told the jailor to go back in his house and behave himself. They were undisguised and made known their intention at the time. They then forced the doors of the jail and took the two negroes referred to. They then conveyed them to a place known as Ashworthy's glade, a point about a mile and a half on the west side of the town, where they hung them to a limb and left them. On Saturday morning the two men were discovered still hanging, with their faces to the road, both stiff, cold and dead. They were cut down and placed by the roadside. They were buried on Sunday. The perpetrators, though they were not disguised, are entirely unknown and no clue published their work without noise or disturbance and departed, leaving no trace as to who they were or whence they came.

The Effect of the Supreme Court Legal Tender Decision on the Money Markets.

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—The Supreme Court decision on the legal tender question is the great subject of discussion in the financial circles this afternoon. The decision, as understood in Wall street, is that the legal tender act was justified by the war, but that Congress had no power to issue any more legal tender notes, and that all contracts made before 1862 are to be paid in coin. In this shape the decision is certainly very important, but its influence on values was remarkably slight. The price of gold advanced this morning because of private telegrams from Washington to the effect that the decision would be in favor of all contracts made before 1862 being payable in coin; but the subsequent receipt of the decision was made known, in the afternoon, the price of gold declined, from the fact that Congress, under the decision, cannot issue any more legal tenders.

Rev. Horace Cooke.

The New York Commercial says that Rev. Horace Cook, who lately eloped with a hunk of his flock, has not gone to parts unknown.

The Commercial adds: "The unfortunate man is neither in Boston nor Chicago, he has sent no telegram to his wife stating that she would never see him again; but, on the contrary, he is with her, receiving medical treatment and being kept as quiet and secluded as possible. His physician states that his nervous system is completely shattered, and that several weeks of perfect rest and quiet will be required to restore him to himself."

The Great Southern Mail Route

Many of the travelling public have received a wrong impression from some quarters that the Great Southern Mail to New Orleans, Mobile and intermediate points via Washington, Richmond and Lynchburg to Mobile and New Orleans, has been changed via Cincinnati and Louisville. We are reliably informed that this is not the fact, and that the Postoffice Department, after repeated trials, have given the former route the preference as being the most expeditious and reliable. We make this statement in justice to the above route, as some of the Northern and Eastern papers have stated that since the completion of the Cincinnati shore line the mail had been taken from the route via Washington, Alexandria and Lynchburg.

Dougle Bigamy Case.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 7.—A double bigamy and elopement case has just came to light in the town of Chester, a few miles below this city. It appears that a few weeks since two brothers, Daniel and Edward Agnew, agents for a Philadelphia tookstore-glass establishment, while disposing of their wares in that section, formed the acquaintance of two sisters, Rosanna and Bridget Dougherty, and representing themselves to be unmarried, soon gained their confidence and married them. The quartette left suddenly for parts unknown. It has since been discovered that the Agnews have wives and children in Philadelphia depending upon them for support.

From Fort Benton.

FORT BENTON, Feb. 7.—Half breeds arrived here, from the Indian camp, on the Maras, report that the Indians are dying at the rate of 25 per day of the small-pox, and are begging the whites to spare their lives.

LATEST NEWS BY TELEGRAPH.

From Washington.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—Amongst other remonstrances sent to Congress against the extension of Corliss' patent, is a very strong one from Zachasiah Allen, of Rhode Island, conclusively showing that Corliss was not the first and original inventor of the improvement in the steam engine, which resulted from the abolition of the throttle valve, and the introduction of the system of regulating the engine by combining the regulator with a liberating valve-gear, as is apparent from the specifications of the letters patent of the United States, granted to Allen in 1854. Further, Allen claims that to grant the extension to Corliss, would bestow on him for seven years longer a reward for benefits which have been conferred upon the world by Allen, and because Corliss employs the detachable valve and valve mechanism invented and patented by Frederick E. Sickes in the year 1842, with which valve and mechanism he has combined the regulator and thus engrafted Allen's improvement in the system of regulating the steam engine upon the Sickes invention in valves and valve gearing.

A very formidable opposition will be made before the committee on patents to the extension.

The snow storm which commenced here last night continued till daylight, and the ground is covered to the depth of about two inches.

From Hartford.

HARTFORD, Feb. 8.—The liabilities of D. W. King, commission tobacco merchant, who made an assignment recently, will, it is thought, reach nearly $100,000. It is said one his creditors will bring against him soon a charge of false pretence.

The Republican State Convention will meet here on Wednesday. There will be a caucus on Tuesday evening. Senator Buckingham, who is one of the delegates from Norwich, is expected to be present and will probably preside—the renomination of Governor Jewell is regarded as certain.

Departure of Prince Arthur.

BOSTON, Feb. 8.—Prince Arthur will leave Peabody this afternoon, direct for Montreal. Gen. Capl. Consumeau, and other British officers dined with the Prince.

Harmony Grove—The Last Resting Place of George Peabody.

SALEM, Jan. 27.—While the great philanthropist lies in state in your City Hall, your thoughts will naturally turn to the resting place which awaits him here, in the State and town which gave him birth, and has so good cause to honor and remember him. Not a mile away on the shore of the North river, stands the beautiful grove which has been consecrated for the ashes of our people. It lies partly in the town of Peabody, lately South Danvers, where the life, since grown famous, began humbly enough. The house in which his business life began, in the capacity of a grocer's lad, is still standing, with a small shop front, and a high window is often pointed out in the narrow attic which was his bedroom. Sixty-five years ago, when he looked out of that window, a thick walnut growth overspread the site of the present cemetery, and its shades were hunted on holidays by noisy parties. Not a few of the trees fell victims to the squirrels. Hardly a trace now remains of the natural beauties of the scene; but art has come instead, and a hundred acres have been enclosed, adorned with shade trees and flowers, and laid out in lots and traversed with avenues. Only a single clump of old trees remain outside of the cemetery, on an eminence too rocky and unsuitable to be occupied. The cemetery lies partly in Peabody and partly in Salem. The Peabody entrance is through a simple rustic gate; but the visitor from Salem passes under a massive arch of rubble work, overgrown with wounding, which rustles drearily in the wind. Passing down the main avenue about a hundred rods, you come to the Peabody lot. The cemetery slopes to the north-east, and is washed at the foot of the slope by the tide ebbing and flowing through the North river. Eastward the ground rises, becoming very irregular and broken on the eastern border, where the hillside rises abruptly to an eminence, from which there is a wide view of the sea and land. The Peabody lot lies on the side of this hill and faces southwesterly towards the river. Along the front runs a wall of stone ten or twelve feet high and thirty feet long. The side walls strike the bank a dozen feet from the front, but the hill is hollowed out, so that the level surface of the lot is about thirty feet square. A slight of stone steps gives access to the lot. In the centre stands a unique monument of granite. The base is ten feet long, two feet high, and four feet wide. Upon this, near each end, stand two blocks of granite a foot high, supporting a massive slab eight feet long, three feet wide and three feet high, suggesting and faintly resembling a sarcophagus. Upon the front and ends of these blocks are exhibits three panels inlaid with blocks of marble. The left panel is blank; the other two bear these inscriptions:

Thomas Peabody, died 1811, aged 49.
Judith Dodge, his wife, died 1830, aged 50.
David Peabody, died July, 1831, aged 36.
Achsah Peabody, died Feb. 26, 1852, aged 39.

Beneath this spot the body, which has been borne with so much pomp and circumstance across the sea, will rest quietly and undisturbed. To the left stands fair Salem; in front the river rises and falls with the pulsations of the ocean; on the right the sun lies warm on the home of his boyhood.

Tis little; but it looks in truth
As if the quiet bones were blest
Among familiar names to rest,
And in the places of his youth.

Novel Scene in the Senate Chamber—The Negro Senator From Mississippi—Fraternizing with the Sable Legislator.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2, 1870.

Revels, the Mississippi Senator, the first representative of his race and color chosen to fill a seat in the upper branch of the national legislature, made his appearance again to-day on the floor of the Senate. Revels was dressed in a black suit of fine cloth, was very long and clerical like, and pants and vest of corresponding proportions. He wore dark gloves, also, and carried a mulatto colored cane, with the distinguished air he made quite a sensation. The moment he came into the Senate Chamber and took his seat on one of the luxurious lounges, several Senators hurried to his side, and welcomed him by the hand and welcomed him to his new field of labor. Charles Sumner was among the first to offer, in very hearty style, assisting all over and saying a quantity of very pretty things to the new colored Senator heard with genuine pleasure. It was a spectacle worth looking at to see Sumner and Revels, thus practically illustrating the political and social equality. Wade, Thayer, Chandler, Howard, Cameron, Warner, Spencer, Drake, Lewis. Howe and other Senators paid their respects. Cameron had quite a talk with, Revels, and Sumner, Howe, Sherman, Wilson and Revels, and, while making his congratulations, took a full survey of the ladies in the gallery, who were looking down upon the scene, some with pleasure and others with astonishment and horror. Spencer, you must know, is a great favorite with the ladies. An effort was made to get fiery little Garret Davis to allow himself to be led into the presence of Revels for introduction, but the live Kentuckian could not see it; neither could the facinating McCreery, colleague of Davis, who clings to the old time prejudices with true ante bellum tenacity.

VICE ADMIRAL PORTER.

A Nice Little Trip in Prospect.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—It is rumored that Vice Admiral Porter intends to order himself on a fancy cruise to the Mediterranean and all the points in Europe and Asia visiting next summer. He is now busily engaged in arranging the list of vessels and in selecting the officers who are to accompany him, and also in devising a new uniform for the occasion that will surpass in gorgeousness anything ever seen on the persons of United States naval officers. Porter has a great fancy for "bright work," and the changes he proposes to make in the decorations will be a source of joy to the hearts of tailors and gold-lace manufacturers. Some change or other is made in the navaluniform about every six months, and officers with small salaries do not look at the matter in exactly the same light as the Navy Department people and the tradesmen whose pockets are benefited thereby.

Choosing a Business.

"What shall I do?" is a question which forces itself upon every young man of quality and brains. And it often becomes an embarrassing one where it is associated with proper reflection and earnestness. As a choice must be made at an early age, the intensity of the question increases with the limited time to which the decision is confined. There may be danger of increasing the perplexity unnecessarily, by indulging the hope of fully satisfying himself, while he is outset in the choice of a business. But here there should not be an over-anxiety. The pursuit of a business creates a taste and satisfaction as qualification and adaptation advances. The path that is perseveringly trod, soon becomes familiar and pleasant.

The great object then is a business. Fortune does not often condescend to snatch any up into her happy embraces. She is to be wooed and won by exertion and solicitation. And favorable opportunities do not always fall in our way in precisely the manner and place we imagined. They present themselves often in the unsolicited garb of fortuitous events; coming or occurring unexpectedly, or without any visible connection between our concern and their facilities. Though facility and hope of success might sometimes decide in the choice of a business, they cannot make the path so smooth that no obstacles at all will be encountered in the way. Every young man then should settle his mind to a contest, choose whatever business he may. Energy, tact, and moral power will be in great demand not only on the way, but at the very beginning. For every thing almost depends upon giving a proper direction, and having a suitable purpose at the very outset of business life.

And an important question here is, what is the object of choosing a business at all? To secure the means to support life; to attain independence; to gain a competency, these are the several answers. Some start with the first in view, speedily gain the second, and after a struggle secure the third. And we may add that any regular business will certainly afford a livelihood, and furnish many with power to attain to independence and a few at least to gain a competency.

Court Proceedings.

In the Court of Common Pleas, before Judges Hayes and Libhart, the following cases were disposed of during the past week:

Jacob B. Shuman vs. Thomas C. Steiner. This was an action brought by plaintiff to recover damages from defendant for trespass. It seems that the plaintiff owns certain lots in the borough of Columbia, against which defendant has been assessed, and not paid. Defendant, who was tax collector, seized one morning, a horse and wagon belonging to plaintiff, and offered it for sale to satisfy the tax bill; plaintiff redeemed his property by paying the taxes under protest, and brought the present action to recover damages. The jury having handed in a verdict for plaintiff, the Court mentioned them that it was necessary to find damages, nominal or otherwise, and ordered the jury to return to their room and consult, which they did, and after a few minutes consultation, returned with a verdict for plaintiff, with six cents damages and six cents costs.

G. G. Horst & Son vs. John H. Sweigart. Court granted an issue to try by jury the right to certain property levied upon by the Sheriff of Lancaster county, as the property of John H. Sweigart; notice given to counsel at bar, that John H. Sweigart shall be plaintiff, and G. G. Horst, defendant. At the same time the bond of Sweigart, in the sum of $500, with George D. Sprecher as surety, was approved in open court.

The Wyoming Coal and Transportation Company vs. Frederick S. Bletz. This was an action brought to recover the value of a boat load of coal shipped to defendant, who refused to receive it on the ground that it was not the kind of coal he had contracted for. Verdict for defendant.

Shenk vs. Burger.—Petition and affidavit of Jacob K. Shenk, Esq., presented, and on motion, Court granted a rule to show cause why an issue should not be granted.

John A. Shober vs. Lewis Suter and Emanuel Shober, and Lewis Hartman, Terre tenant. Verdict for plaintiff in the sum of $854.80 debt, with six cents damages and six cents costs.

Christian Zug vs. Printer's Paper Mill, to recover damages for alleged injury done to complainant's property by the overflowing of his land by the back water caused by the raising of defendant's dam. Verdict for plaintiff, with $300 damages and six cents costs.

LOCAL ITEMS.—Samuel Boyd, of Drumore twp., has been appointed Assessor of National Bank Stocks for Lancaster county.

Daniel Heitshu, Christian Gast and J. M. Long have been elected Directors of the Lancaster Cemetery. The members of the Board who hold over are John Zimmerman, Adam Wolf, Luther Richards, Christian Zecher, John Metzgar and John S. Gable.

The Willow Street Turnpike Company has declared a dividend of fifty cents per share. The reason for this small dividend being owing to the extraordinary expenses incurred by the sweeping away of bridges by last Spring's freshet.

MR. G. G. Hickman, of Coatesville, has been appointed route agent on the New York Railroad, from Lancaster to Harrisburg and Philadelphia, in place of Thos. R. Ferry.

The Wrightsville Star says "a young deer was brought to this place recently by a colored man in Deerfield county. Nobody appeared disposed to buy it, so it was taken to Lancaster to be raffled for."

Two of the Mormon prophets, or preachers, who have been preaching in the Northeastern portion of Lancaster county, have crossed the Welsh Mountain safely, and are now engaged in preaching to the citizens of Waynesburg, Chester county. What success has attended their labors, in Chester county, we have not as yet been informed. The Lancaster County Agricultural Park Association was represented at the National Congress, of the Trotting Associations of the United States, which recently met in New York, by three delegates, Messrs. B. F. Shaum, A. Hiestand and John T. MacGonigle. The object of the Congress was to take steps for the reform of the abuses which prevail on the trotting turf; to refine and elevate the sport, and by the enactment of proper rules to prevent the fraudulent practices which exist to some extent at very many trials of speed in this country.

On the 26th inst. a young man by the name of Stark, near Reamstown, accidentally shot himself with a pistol. The ball entered the palm of the hand and came out near the wrist.

It is said that the cattle plague is prevailing in Colerain twp. Mr. Robt. Hogg has lost 10 head of cattle and several more have the disease.

A correspondent of the Inquirer informs that paper that the mild weather of January has brought several species of spring birds. The Turdus Migratorius (robin) appeared on the 13th; on the same day came the Lanius Ludovi Cianus (butcher bird). These birds generally make their appearance among us in March to beginning of April. The Cyanura Cristaba (blue jay) on the 27th. Bees were seen on the 15th. Depth of rain for the month, 3.47 inches. Snow, 2.00 inches. Mean cloudiness, 6.0; according to Smithsonian scale.

A LARGE WEDDING.—The marriage of Daniel Ermentrout, Esq., of Reading, to Miss Adelaide L. Hartman, of this city, came off Tuesday last at St. Paul's German Reformed Church, before an immense assemblage of the numerous friends of the parties in this and our sister city. The bridal cortege made a brilliant display as it passed up the aisle preceded by six ushers and arrayed itself around the altar. There were four groomsmen and bridesmaids: B. Rockey, Esq., of Reading, attended the bride's sister, Miss Sue Metzger; Dr. Hiester Nagle, of Reading, accompanied Miss Caldwell, of Williamsport; J. B. Ermentrout, Esq., of Reading, was with Miss Metzger, of Philadelphia, and A. J. Steinman, Esq., served with Miss Sloan, of Trenton, New Jersey. The bride was dressed in white silk, with bridal veil and looked exceedingly well. The bridesmaids wore dresses of white tulle, with long trains. The groom and his attendants were arrayed in the old-time style of black dressecoats, black pantaloons, white vestcoats and white silk neckties. Rev. Keim and Ermentrout, of Reading, and B. F. Eshleman, S. Martin, T. S. Dickey and J. R. Patterson acted as ushers. The service was the very beautiful and impressive one of the church, and was performed by the Rev. John Ermentrout, brother of the groom, aided by the Pastor, Rev. J Mr. Nevin, and Rev. Mr. ——— of Reading. The excellent choir of the church took a prominent part in the service. At its close the bridal party repaired to the residence of the bride's parents, where they received the congratulations of their many friends.

A FORMER LANCASTERIAN DEAD.—We learn that H. C. Hambright formerly a resident of Lancaster and the brother of our friend Captain A. F. Hambright, died on Sunday last at New Orleans whither he had gone for the benefit of his health; of the immediate cause of his death we are not informed. Mr. H. was 59 years old; he left Lancaster 30 years ago for St. Louis, where he has since been successful in business. He frequently visited Lancaster where he has many friends who will regret to hear of his death. He was an ardent Democrat and for many years a subscriber to the INTELLIGENCER.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT.—A correspondent of the Inquirer writes to that paper that quite a serious accident occurred in Sadsbury township at the barn of Mr. Levi Scarlet a short time since. It appears that Mr. Scarlet and his men were engaged in threshing, and he, with a colored man named Cato, was overhead packing away some straw when one of the timbers broke causing Cato to fall to the floor the broken timbers falling at the same time, and striking him on the head. He remained insensible for some time and his head was cut in a frightful manner. After consciousness was restored the wound was dressed and he is now recovering.

ACCIDENT.—On the morning of the 28th ult., as Mr. Thomas Totten, of Sadsbury township, was riding in an open wagon, near Walnut Grove school house, accompanied by two gentlemen from the city, the horse made a spring, and turning suddenly, started down a hill at full speed, throwing the men out in a manner frightful to witness. Fortunately Mr. E. S. Jones, seeing the accident, hastened to their relief; and found two of them considerably cut about the head and face, besides being severely stunned. The unfortunate men were taken back to Mr. Totten's residence. Dr. Houston from Homeville was immediately sent for. The third gentleman was not badly hurt. Since writing the above, we learn they are in an improving condition.—Inquirer.

Jacob, dearest Jacob, with thee so early must we part.
Ah surely it doth grieve us, to the very, very heart;
Considering all thy many virtues, which so brightly shone,
Oh! they were truly thine, and thine were they alone.
But since thou'rt gone, and we must here remain.
Why may we not to meet thee, in heaven above again.
Cold, cold, thy little body is, and yet we well do know,
Where'er we love up to thy Saviour, thou shalt surely go;
Oh, Lord will thou not help us, to drink the bitter draught
Prepare us also for the time, when we must feel
Ever help us to remember that, there is a time to die.
Reserve for us in Jesus name we ask) a crown beyond the sky.
