sketch of St. Pauls' Methodist Episcopal Church, Lancaster.

In 1849 the First Methodist Church purchased a lot on German street, and erected thereon a Mission Chapel for the use of the members residing in the southern section of the City, A Sunday School was at once organized and regular -ervices held therein under the auspices of the First Church.—This arrangement continued until 1851, when at the urgent solicitation of the southern members, they were organized into a separate congregation, and the little brick Chapel became the Second Methodist Episcopal Church, with Rev. Jacob Dickinson as pastor. He continued to minister to the little congregation until the Spring of 1853. He was a young man of about 25 years, and was much liked by the congregation. He went from here to Philadelphia and is now, we are informed, preaching in Delaware.

In 1853, Rev. J. H. Alday became Pastor. He was a young man of fine personal appression manners, and outfe
